U. S. Rests Coplon Case in Stormy Climax

Stocks Sink To New Low Of 4½ Years; Billion Lost

Some Key Shares Dip $2 to $7.50; Wall Street Hums 'Business Blues'

New York, June 13 (AP).—The stock market cracked to a 4½-year low today while Wall Street hummed the "Business Blues."

Leading issues dropped a few cents to more than $2 a share—some around $4 to an extreme of $7.50.

The owners of all stocks listed on the exchange were poorer by more than one billion dollars at the end of one of the busiest days of the year. The drop was just about as steep as any thus far in 1949.

Little Explanation Offered

The day's news offered little explanation for the latest slide in a market that has been on the skids for the past month or so.

Wall Street, though, has been moody and blue for months. The pessimistic outlook of the financial district for business prospects was accented today by another drop in steel production, approaching wage talks in several basic industries and another round of reports of price reductions and production cuts.

Start of the scheduled one-week walkout by the Nation's coal miners was not considered an immediate factor, although the possibility the week might stretch out longer was not ignored.

Resistance Level Broken

Also important in trading calculations was the fact that the market broke through a historic resistance level at which a declining market has been stopped three times since the end of the war.

Some key issues taking a beating were U. S. Steel at $20.50; Bethlehem Steel, $23.25; General Motors, $52.25; Chrysler, $44.25; American Smelting, $39.37; duPont, (old) $173.75; Eastman Kodak, $38.37; Standard Oil (N. J.), $60.25; Nickel Plate Railroad, $56.50; Southern Pacific, $32.62, and Skelly Oil, $97.50.

Senate Group Orders Cuts On All Items

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The Senate economy drive yesterday came up with a resolution directing President Truman to slice from 5 to 10 per cent from total 1950 appropriations voted by Congress.

The resolution was approved, 8 to 2, by the Senate Expenditures Committee even as the Senate Appropriations group considered a specific three quarters of a billion cut in Marshall Plan funds.

Testimony Taken On Slash

Undeterred by Mr. Truman's weekend warning that any reduction in ECA funds would be "false economy" and "a great gain, for Communism," the Senate Appropriations Committee spent a morning taking testimony on the proposed ECA slash.

Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.), chairman of the Congressional ECA "Watchdog Committee," was chief witness.

McCarran, supported by members of the committee staff, proposed a 740-million-dollar reduction in ECA funds by sharply cutting back aid to Marshall Plan nations in these three categories:

1. Imports of food and materials for consumers goods.
2. Imports of textile fibers.
3. Imports of capital equipment and certain industrial raw materials.

Hoffman May Appear Again

ECA Administrator Paul Hoffman, who has warned Congress he will quit rather than try to do a job with insufficient funds, again may be questioned by the committee today.

The over-all Presidential reduction in appropriations, recommended by the Senate Expenditures Committee in an entirely separate action, by-passed the question of specific cuts in ECA or any other agency by directing the President to do the pruning.

Senate Expenditures Chairman John L. McClellan (D., Ark.) said the 5 to 10 per cent operation would save the Government from two to four billion dollars.

McClellan wouldn't say flatly it would balance the budget. He said he hoped it would, but that would depend on how Federal revenues hold up.

The resolution originally was introduced by Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.), but as finally reported it incorporated ideas of Senators Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Nebr.), Styles Bridges (R., N. H.), Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.) and others.

Mr. Truman would have some discretion between items in making the cuts, with one limitation: In no case could he trim any single activity by more than 20 per cent.

He would be required to make quarterly reports to Congress on the savings accomplished. He would have to include figures on the number of employees on the Federal payroll at the start and close of each period.

McClellan claimed sentiment for "prompt action" in the Senate, but to become law it must clear both Houses and be signed by the President. If Mr. Truman says "No."

Caucus Seeks Brannan Plan Postponement

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Des Moines, Iowa, June 13.—Midwest farm belt Democrats decided today to ask that action on the Brannan farm program be put off by Congress until next year.

They want to use it as a campaign issue in these 16 agricultural States in 1950. They frankly state they think they can carry this historically Republican area on such an issue.

But they don't want to abandon the present rigid 90 per cent of parity price supports in the meantime. Instead, they asked that the Aiken, or sliding scale, price support formula of the Republican-sponsored agricultural act of 1948 be put off for at least one more year.

"We accept the challenge of the Republican leadership to make the farm programs offered by the two parties the major issue of the election campaign of 1950 in the Midwest so that farmers themselves may decide by their votes whether to entrust their economic future to the party whose policy has been demonstrated by the Republican leadership of the 80th Congress," their resolution read.

Their action came after they heard Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan declare that farm legislation is the most important issue before the Nation today. To him it is greater even than present communism controls.

"We are confronted with a basic test of democracy," he told two large audiences of farmers.

"We can fight the communism doctrine with all our strength, and we should. We could expose every Communist organizer and every executive who sold out to the Nazis. We might test the loyalty of every officer of every labor union, every Government clerk, and every businessman with foreign dealings.

"But if we let our economic system fail again, if we allow depression, if we allow abundance to become a curse, we open wide the door to the foreign and native totalitarians who stand ready to proclaim the end of the great American experiment of democracy."

Then paraphrasing a historic statement by Winston Churchill, as well as borrowing phrases from Woodrow Wilson's famous speech asking for a state of war with Germany, Brannan shouted:

"The Democratic Party has not won leadership for the privilege of starring in the final act of a human tragedy. Like those who pioneered before us, we dedicate our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor to a better future."

Brannan read from a bulletin put out by the Iowa State College at Ames during the depression in 1933. It was titled "Comparative values of corn and coal as fuel for house heating," and declared that 40 busels of corn was equal to a ton of coal.

"The memory is repugnant to all of us," he shouted. "Cribs full of corn, coal bins empty. Corn growers broke, coal miners hungry. Hogs fat, people thin.

"In 1932 we were dealing with

Berlin Truce With Soviet Seems Near

By Wes Gallagher

Paris, June 13 (AP).—A partial settlement to bring a truce to East-West strife in Berlin appeared tonight to be growing out of secret Big Four talks.

The West also bid for a settlement on an Austrian treaty in a drive to end the deadlocked Council of Foreign Minister sessions with at least some successes.

Sources previously proved reliable said the Big Four were making progress toward an accord on the Berlin matter and that Russia was backing down completely from her position on Austria. American sources were less optimistic on Austria, however.

These sources said it was hoped to end the Paris meetings by Friday. There was talk of another meeting in New York in September.

Reported Waiting for Reply

The Western powers were reported awaiting a reply from Moscow on their proposals on Berlin and Austria.

They made their effort for a patchwork accord on Berlin after all hope was abandoned for a complete settlement to end the cold war in Germany.

It would be a "live and let live" agreement that would not touch the main points of disagreement. There still would be a divided Germany, Berlin still would have two administrations, two kinds of money and two of nearly everything else.

But the arrangement would allow the two political camps to do business with each other. It might allow a lessening of tension.

Authoritative sources said the West put its cards on the table at two secret meetings Saturday and Sunday.

British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin was said to have asked Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky to present his minimum demands.

It was reported Vishinsky said Russia wanted increased trade for her zone with West Germany and a single Eastmark currency for all Berlin.

Bevin was quoted as saying Russia's wishes on trade could be arranged in return for Soviet guarantees, in writing, of free access to Berlin from the Western zones.

Acheson Called Willing

He said something might be worked out on fixing an exchange rate between the East and West currencies.

U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson was reported authoritatively to have expressed willingness to agree to the Soviet claim for reparations in Austria if she would drop her support of Yugoslavia's demand for part of the Austrian province of Carinthia.

These have been the two main stumbling blocks to an Austrian treaty.

The whole matter was pressed at a 90-minute secret meeting of the four Foreign Ministers Sunday after their five-hour regular session. The ministers decided to skip a session today to give the Kremlin time to reply.

Chambers' Wife Alters Testimony

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

New York, June 13.—Admitting some confusion, Mrs. Whittaker Chambers changed her testimony several times today as she sought to fix the dates when she says she and her husband saw Mr. and Mrs. Alger Hiss.

Under vigorous cross-examination by Lloyd Paul Stryker, chief defense attorney in the Hiss perjury trial, Mrs. Chambers maintained, however, that she and her husband saw the Hisses several times after January 1, 1937.

In one sharp exchange with Stryker, the 48-year-old Mrs. Chambers declared with indignation that she resented the attorney's characterization of her husband as a man who "misrepresented" himself in 1937 as a "decent man."

Calls Him "A Great Man"

"My husband is a decent man, a great man," stated the somberly dressed mother of two children who conceded that as a Communist sympathizer she shared her husband's views for many years.

Chambers, admitted former courier for a Communist espionage ring which he charges was supplied by Hiss with secret State Department documents, is the chief prosecution witness against Hiss.

Mrs. Chambers is a major witness for corroborating Chambers' charges that he saw Hiss after January 1, 1937, which Hiss denies. Hiss is accused of a second count of perjury in denying he gave Chambers documents in early 1937, when Hiss was assistant to Assistant Secretary of State Francis B. Sayre.

During her testimony on Friday, Mrs. Chambers declared that the 44-year-old Hiss, and his wife Priscilla, celebrated their wedding anniversary at the Chambers' home in Baltimore in December, 1937. On December 31, that same year, Mrs. Chambers said she and her husband attended a New Year's party at the Hiss home at 3415 Volta pl. nw.

Today, Stryker confronted her with pretrial depositions she gave in Baltimore, in a $75,000 libel suit which Hiss filed against Chambers as a result of Chambers' accusations.

She Protests to Judge

In those depositions, Mrs. Chambers was quoted as expressing the belief that the New Year's party was held in Baltimore, and the wedding anniversary at the Volta pl. address in December, 1937.

"Your honor," she protested to presiding Judge Samuel H. Kaufman at one point, "my memory is not good on dates, but associates things . . ."

Stryker charged that she was "confused" because she learned later that the Hisses were married on December 11, and that the

Conviction of Movie Writers For Contempt Is Sustained

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

American courts are not required to disregard "the impact of world events" in arriving at decisions, the United States Court of Appeals said yesterday in dismissing the appeals of two film writers from contempt convictions.

In addition, the court reiterated a position taken in previous similar cases that the House Committee on Un-American Activities "has the power to inquire whether a witness . . . is or is not a member of the Communist Party or a believer in Communism . . ."

The tribunal's opinion upheld the District Court conviction of John Howard Lawson and Dalton Trumbo for refusing to tell committee probers whether they were Communists.

Each was sentenced in May 1948 to one year and fined $1000—maximum penalty for the offense.

The opinion was written by Circuit Judge Bennett Champ Clark and concurred in by Circuit Judge Wilbur K. Miller and District Judge George C. Sweeney of Boston, Mass., sitting as a visiting jurist.

Replying to a contention by the appellants that the "Are you a Communist?" question was not pertinent, the court, citing the possible propaganda weight of the movie industry, stated:

"No one can doubt in these chaotic times that the destiny of all nations hangs in balance in the current ideological struggle between the Communist-thinking and democratic-thinking peoples of the world.

"Neither Congress nor any court is required to disregard the impact of world events, however impartially or dispassionately they view them.

"It is equally beyond dispute that the motion picture industry plays a critically prominent role in the molding of public opinion and that motion pictures are, or are capable of being, a potent medium of propaganda dissemination which may influence the minds of millions of American people.

"This being so, it is absurd to argue . . . that questions asked men, who, by their authorship of the scripts, vitally influence the ultimate production of motion pictures seen by millions, which questions require disclosure of whether or not they are or ever

House Votes Pay Increases For District

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Pay raises were voted by the House yesterday for District police, firemen, school teachers, per diem employes, judges of two municipal courts, and widows and dependent children of police and firemen.

The only major group of city employes left out of yesterday's pay increase action were the classified workers, for whom separate salary increase legislation is pending in both Houses.

Besides the pay bills, the House voted to give District school teachers a system of paid sick leave which would end the present system that makes them hire their substitutes. Also cleared was a bill to tighten local regulation of optometry.

Altogether, 17 District bills were approved by the House in 25 minutes. Majority Leader McCormack (D., Mass.) who presided over the session as acting speaker, said the proceedings set a speed record for House handling of District business.

House approval of the pay, sick leave, and optometry legislation sent the measures to the Senate. The bills are authorizing legislation, rather than actual appropriations for the pay raises, but recent approval of the new District tax bill has given assurance that there will be revenue to meet the increases.

The pay and pension legislation calls for:

1. Annual pay increases of $330, retroactive to last July, for Metropolitan, White House and Park police, District firemen, and the school teachers and other school

Oppenheimer Defends AEC As Competent

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, physicist who helped develop the atom bomb, told Congress yesterday that the General Advisory Committee he heads is agreed on "the clear proof of competence and devotion to duty" demonstrated by the Atomic Energy Commission.

Except in the fields of personnel security and the actual guarding of atomic materials, Oppenheimer told the Joint Committee of Atomic Energy, the nine "knowledgeable" men who form the General Advisory Committee have followed the work of the Commission with close attention.

Oppenheimer, who headed the Los Alamos laboratory during the war and who is given much of the credit for the development of the atomic bomb, upheld the commission policy of shipment of radio istotopes abroad.

As proof that these exportable isotopes contribute little or nothing to military research, Oppenheimer cited the fact that there have been no requests for such radioactive isotopes for secret military research from the defense establishment in this country.

"There are few, if any, situations," Oppenheimer said, "in which this country, with its 15 billion a year armament program, has found it possible to use these isotopes effectively in furthering our enormous defense establishment."

Oppenheimer also stated that it is not within the power of this country to deny these materials to the peoples of Europe anyway, since they are available from Britain, and to a small extent from France.

Chairman Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) asked Oppenheimer if he were "satisfied with our weapon progress since the end of the war."

"It is my business not to be satisfied," Oppenheimer said, "but I am. It is my business to try to find points where it should be

Kelley and Palmer Trade Personalities; Government Score Is 22 Witnesses

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

The Government yesterday rested its espionage case against Judith Coplon. The climax came amid the trial's stormiest personal interchange between Defense Attorney Archibald Palmer and Chief Prosecutor John M. Kelley, jr.

Palmer, in cross-examination of a witness, had been striding back to the prosecution table, shouting and throwing his hand across Kelley's face.

"I've had enough of this," Kelley snapped angrily. "Your Honor, I find sputum all over me—I need a Turkish towel. And I think it's purposive."

'I Want to Push Him'

"I want to push him!" Palmer roared back tempestuously. "He's pushing this girl around."

Judge Albert L. Reeves stopped it but a moment later Palmer, continuing his cross-examination, was again legging back toward the prosecutor.

"Keep back from me," Kelley said sharply sticking a pencil out.

Minutes later, Palmer had finished with FBI Special Agent Robert J. Lamphere and the rangy prosecutor said the dramatic words in a low voice, without rising from his seat:

"Your honor, the Government rests."

Defense Objects

Palmer objected to that.

"That," the astounded Kelley said, "is one thing I've never heard a defense object to."

Palmer wanted to read more notes taken by FBI agents who trailed Miss Coplon and Valentin Gubitchev, Russian U. N. engineer, in New York and arrested her March 4.

She is charged with copying from secret FBI files to pass the information along to Russia.

The defense attorney also wished to bring back for cross-examination William E. Foley, Miss Coplon's former boss in the Foreign Agents Registration Section of the Justice Department.

Judge Reeves granted both requests, provided the cross-examining of Foley be limited. Palmer promised no more than an hour and a half.

22 Witnesses Called

But, anyhow, the Government had completed its case on the first day of the eighth week of the trial.

It had called 22 different witnesses. One of them, FBI Agent T. Scott Miller, has been in the witness box seven times—five as a witness and twice as a "reader" of secret FBI documents after Palmer's voice wore down a bit.

J. Russell Young Wins Approval As Commissioner

John Russell Young yesterday won unanimous Senate confirmation for a fourth term as District Commissioner.

The Senate acted shortly after noon when Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.) asked unanimous consent agreement to consider Young's nomination. No objection was raised.

The Senate District Committee last week gave Young's appointment a 9-1 vote of approval after questioning him at length on Washington home rule, gambling and civil rights.

Senator Matthew Neely (D., W. Va.) cast the dissenting vote in committee.

Preacher Believed En Route Here With Man's Wife

Washington police last night were asked to watch for a 50-year-old preacher who, Waynesboro (Va.) police said, was en route here with the wife of a congregation member and $77.45 in church funds.

A lookout first sent to Alexandria police and later relayed to the District identified the cleric as the Rev. James Madison Cline, pastor of the Church of God at Waynesboro. A warrant has been sworn for him on larceny charges and another warrant sworn for the woman, Mrs. Mabelle Hughes, on charges of deserting her children.

Cline was described as "50 years old, tall, has no teeth." The lookout said Mrs. Hughes was 28 years old, 5 feet, 5 inches, brunette and weighed 160 pounds.

8 Finnish Refugees Reach U. S. After Long Trip in Tiny Boat

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Eight Finns and one probable American citizen—aged 10 weeks—arrived in Miami Sunday night aboard the tiny sloop Vuppa, completing a perilous ten-months voyage from behind the Iron Curtain.

The refugees—four men, three women and two infants—completed the dangerous Atlantic crossing in reasonably good shape, Immigration authorities told The Washington Post.

They are the thirteenth boatload of modern-day pilgrims to complete the crossing since the end of the war and the first since January. Like their predecessors they are here illegally.

What will happen to this latest group seeking sanctuary in the "Land of the Free?"

Immigration officials said they undoubtedly will be ordered "excluded" and sent to Ellis Island pending deportation proceedings. But judging from the fate of the earlier "pilgrims," their chances of remaining here indefinitely appear good.

For unlike stowaways and aliens caught trying to cross the Mexican and Canadian borders, the hardy bands who cross the Atlantic in small boats present the Government with a problem that has yet to be solved.

Of the 235 aliens who entered this way prior to this year, a few were given legal entry. The remainder are in the United States in a curious and anomalous status. They are officially "excluded" but

Supreme Court Splits 5-4

Douglas Criticizes Majority on Standard Oil Dealer Decision

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

Five Supreme Court justices yesterday struck down a Standard Oil Co. of California business agreement as an antitrust law violation and were accused in turn by Justice William O. Douglas of "consciously" aiding monopoly.

Douglas contended that the majority decision "pushes the oil industry" toward monopoly, "helps remake America in the image of the cartels," and "sets the stage" for the Nation's oil companies "to build service-station empires of their own."

Douglas's stinging 12-paragraph dissent was, in effect, a lecture on big business monopoly, expressing his belief that "the trusts wax strong."

Three other justices dissented on the grounds they were not convinced the agreement was "a device for suppressing competition instead of a device for waging competition."

The court's 5-to-4 split was over exclusive dealer contracts made by the Standard Oil Co. of California with independent gas station dealers in seven Western States. The contracts bind the dealers to sell only the gas, oil and other products of Standard or of other concerns it approves.

This, said Justice Felix Frankfurter for the majority, is in violation of the antitrust laws. The majority decision concluded "competition has been foreclosed in a substantial share of the line of commerce." The Frankfurter opinion, upholding a District Court of California decision, was joined in by Justices Hugo L. Black, Stanley F. Reed, Frank Murphy and Wiley Rutledge, an unusual court alignment.

Justice Robert H. Jackson, speaking for himself, Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson and Justice Harold H. Burton, said "it is unfortunate" the antitrust laws put "such economic issues" to court determination. He said the court did not have enough facts before it to make a judgment and therefore the court was making "a guess in the dark."

Jackson then said he was not certain whether the contract arrangement resulted in suppressing or waging competition. Jackson added:

"If the courts are to apply the lash of the antitrust laws to the backs of businessmen to make them compete, we cannot in fairness also apply the lash whenever they hit upon a successful method of competing."

The Douglas dissent, profusely footnoted with references to reports of the Temporary National Economic Committee of 1940-41, declared:

"The economic theories which the Court has read into the antitrust laws have favored rather than discouraged monopoly. As a result of the big business philosophy (underlying three recent court decisions) big business has become bigger and bigger. Monopoly has flourished. Cartels have increased their hold on the Nation. The trusts wax strong.

Eisenhower Opposes Program To Aid Schools in All States

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said yesterday those seeking to centralize power in the Federal Government are "more dangerous to our form of government" than any foreign threat "that can possibly be arrayed against us."

The former Army Chief of Staff, now president of Columbia University, made the statement in opposing Federal grants to help schools in all States.

He wrote Representative Gwinn (R., N. Y.), that he favors giving aid only to those States where tax revenues are too low to maintain the "level of education deemed generally required in discharging the duties of an enlightened electorate."

Gwinn is a member of the House Labor Committee which last week approved a Federal aid to education bill.

"Unless we are careful," Eisenhower said, "even the great and necessary educational processes in our country will become yet another vehicle by which the believers in paternalism, if not outright socialism, will gain still additional power for the central government."

Eisenhower said that in areas where tax income is low he "would heartily support Federal aid, under formulas that would permit no abuse, no direct interference of the Federal authority in education processes and no opportunity to expand the flow of Federal money into areas where need could not be clearly demonstrated.

"I would flatly oppose any grant by the Federal Government to all States in the Union for education

Government Rests In Coplon Trial

ments—and one never knows when they will occur in this trial—the defense will open its case today.

Early defense witnesses, Palmer announced, will include Thoms A. Mendenhall, FBI special agent, and Prosecutor Raymond P. Whearty and Kelley. At one time Whearty was Miss Coplon's supervisor in the Department of Justice.

Palmer said he would ask Mendenhall to testify about Washington surveillance of Miss Coplon.

Palmer has also announced plans to call several big-name witnesses whose names have cropped up, in one fashion or another, from the introduction of hundreds of thousands of words of top-secret FBI reports read at the trial.

These include Harold Ickes, former Secretary of the Interior, in which department a woman named in one of the documents worked, and Dr. Edward U. Condon, director of the National Bureau of Standards, whose wife was mentioned briefly in another report.

Condon has twice demanded that FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover apologize personally to his wife. Hoover conferred with Attorney General Tom C. Clark yesterday, it was reported, but decided to say nothing.

Last night, the perpetual-motion defense attorney was trying to get in touch with the lawyer of Fredric March, the movie and stage actor, to invite March to the trial to defend himself against charges made against him by an FBI informant of having been a Communist Party member in 1947.

On the stand yesterday, FBI Agent Lamphere testified that he reported that employes of Amtorg, official Soviet purchasing agency, have functioned as espionage agents. He said he worked on an FBI investigation of Amtorg in 1945 and 1946.

Bitter interchanges and insults between opposition attorneys are scarcely news any longer in the trial, for they have come by the score.

But yesterday they reached a new high on two points: Direct accusation on the part of Palmer and the degree of impatience on the part of Prosecutor Kelley with the defense lawyer's tactics.

In the "sputum" incident Kelley's hand came up sharply and slapped the paper in the rotund Palmer's hand. The feeling between the two lawyers seemed for a moment about ready to reach the point of explosion.

At another time during the day, Palmer levelled a shouting accusation at Whearty, the other prosecutor.

Amtorg "Decoy" Reports

Lamphere had been testifying about the two "decoy" reports on Amtorg of which he is the author.

Apparently the first one, dated January 27, never reached the Justice Department section where Miss Coplon worked. But notes on the second, dated March 3, were found in her purse when she was arrested the following day in New York.

Lamphere said the purpose of the reports was to determine: (1) Was Judith Coplon a Soviet espionage agent? (2) If she was, would she transmit the information in the reports to her Soviet superiors?

"Mr. Whearty's behind it all," Palmer suddenly interjected.

Whearty, who is prosecuting Miss Coplon now but at one time was her boss in the Department of Justice, waited as if he hadn't understood, his head flashing around toward the defense lawyer. Then he was on his feet in sharp objection.

"When Mr. Whearty takes the st all," Palmer roared back. witness stand I'll prove he's behind

"Your honor is still the judge," he added in the tumult," and Mr. Whearty as far as that goes will never be a judge."

Alongside such deep-going exhibitions of personal feeling, the hot word-tossing between G-man Lamphere on the witness stand and Attorney Palmer was merely the normal semantics of the trial.

For example, when Palmer shouted to Lamphere "don't lose your temper with me," the FBI agent shot back angrily: "Don't lose your temper with me."

And Humor Too

A couple of interjections of humor which brought smiles to the faces on both sides eased the tension briefly.

At one point it was brought out that G.-Man Lamphere had gone to school in Moscow, Idaho.

In the notes taken by FBI agents who surveilled Miss Coplon and the Russian Gubitchev in New York, the pair were sometimes referred to by the G-men as "Judy" and "Gubie."

"Kind of familiar," commented Palmer, and FBI Agent T. Scott Miller, who did some of the surveillance, smiled.

And yet again, when Palmer, a man whom any student of the possibilities of the American language should find fascinating to observe, spoke of one defense-prosecution impasse: "Then we came to a cul-de-sac which I consider to be tweedledum and tweedledee."

Now It's Defense's Turn

But these moments were but drops of passing balm in a churning sea of almost nonstop vituperation.

The boiling-point language that has become the trial's norm has served to blind the real issues.

And the hundreds of names and matters associated with these names as presented in the now-famous "34 documents"—the top-secret FBI reports—also have focused attention away from the tiny Barnard College honor graduate who is the defendant.

But now at any rate the prosecution has finished its case. The time is at hand when Miss Coplon's lawyer will launch her direct defense.

He will contend, he has said, that she was seeing Gubitchev as a sweetheart, not to give him the Nation's secrets. And that when she copied from secret Government documents it was to gather material for a novel on the Washington scene.

Defense Subpenas Dr. Condon, Wife

Subpenas were served last night on Dr. and Mrs. Edward U. Condon to appear at 10 a. m. Wednesday as defense witnesses in the Judith Coplon trial.

Other subpenas are out for Fredric March, Broadway and Hollywood actor, and his actress wife, Florence Eldridge, Defense Attorney Archibald Palmer said. These had not been served as of last night.

Condon is being subpenaed because of his connection with the atomic energy program, Palmer said. He said he wanted the National Bureau of Standards chief to show that "it's a bunch of nonsense about Russia stealing the atom bomb—just like these spy charges against Judith Coplon are a bunch of nonsense."

Mrs. Condon, he said, was being called to show "the dirty gossip in FBI reports." She was mentioned in one of them introduced at the trial.

Another report names March—according to an "informant"—as a Communist Party member in 1947. Palmer said he wanted to give March a chance to defend himself.

Nixon Charges Clark With Bad Judgment

Representative Richard M. Nixon (R., Calif.), charged Attorney General Tom C. Clark yesterday with using bad judgment in proceeding with the spy trial of Judith Coplon when it meant exposing secret Federal Bureau of Investigation reports.

Representative Nixon said he will ask the House Committee on Un-American Activities when it meets today to hold hearings to determine how basic FBI files and reports, such as those ordered produced in the Coplon trial over Government protests, can be guarded in the future.

Clark came to Washington Sunday after a brief appearance at the Democratic farm meeting in Des Moines. He explained to reporters in Des Moines that a telephone call to him, just before his departure, was an "important" one. He said it was in connection with one of the three "big trials now under way.

Bulgarian Denies He Is Soviet Agent

Lake Success, June 13 (AP).—Dr. George Sotirov, Bulgarian member of the United Nation Secretariat, said today any suspicion that he is a "Russian agent" is "completely unfounded."

Commenting in a statement on reports growing out of the trial of Judith Coplon in Washington, Dr. Sotirov said he hoped competent authorities will speed procedures to establish the truth.

He said he had seen Mrs. Emilie Condon, wife of Dr. Edward W. Condon, director of the National Bureau of Standards, one time and that they discussed only a new cheap process of printing books.

He said he had never seen Morton E. Kent, former government employe who killed himself recently. He said he had received a letter about the new process from a man signing himself Morton E. Kent, but that he never saw him or never received any other communication.

An FBI report read at the Coplon espionage trial said Kent tried last year to contact a Bulgarian suspected of being an agent for the Russian Intelligence Service. The report also said Mrs. Condon gave Kent the new address of the Bulgarian Sotirov was the Bulgarian named in the FBI report.

Wellesley's Head Scores 'Red-Baiters'

Wellesley, Mass., June 13 (AP).—Wellesley College's retiring president today denounced "Red-baiters and black-haters" and "the fear which permeates our modern age," as she disclosed the House Un-American Activities Committee had demanded copies of Wellesley's social science textbooks.

Mrs. Mildred McAfee Horton, who was wartime commander of the Navy's Waves with the rank of captain, told graduating students that she was concerned that the congressional committee members "fear that you have been exposed to dangerous ideas."

"And of course you have, in this free market place of ideas," added the educator, who has been president of Wellesley since 1936.

Quotes Eisenhower

In her valedictory address, Mrs. Horton quoted Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as saying, "Ignorance of communism, fascism or any other police state philosophy is far more dangerous than ignorance of the most virulent disease. Who can doubt the choice of future Americans, between statism and freedom, if the truth concerning each be held before their eyes."

"The very existence of this committee," Mrs. Horton said, "suggests a widespread fear."

The House committee wanted to know, she said, not only in textbooks but in supplementary literature what Wellesley girls have been studying in "American literature, geography, economics, government, philosophy, history, political science and any other of the social science group."

"Must Include the Bible"

"I suppose," Mrs. Horton went on, "this must include the Bible. But it may be unwise to let it be known that you have been allowed to read the injunction to 'love your enemy'."

She said she was distressed by the "fear which permeates our modern age, fear of the bomb, fear of Russians, fear of other groups to which you do not belong, fear of socialism, communism, capitalism—all kinds of isms."

"We are surrounded by red-baiters and black-haters," she said. "I don't pretend to prophesy the color with which tomorrow's victims will be tinctured, but it is not hard to be tinctured with suspicion at best of queerness, at worst of subversiveness."

Alexandria, Falls Church Voting Today

Election officials in Alexandria and Falls Church are expecting a record turnout for today's city elections.

In Alexandria, where seven City Council seats are being decided, voting today will be from 7:30 a. m. to 8:30 p. m. (DST) at nine polling places.

The three Falls Church voting places will be open from 6:30 a. m. to 7:30 p. m. (DST), City Attorney LaRue Van Meter said yesterday. Fourteen candidates are vying for nine council posts.

Town Elections, Too

In addition to these two elections, town council and mayoralty contests will be decided in the towns of Herndon in Fairfax County; Manassas, Quantico, and Occoquan in Prince William; Leesburg in Loudoun County, and Warrenton in Fauquier.

Alexandria Registrar Fred Pettit estimated that 4000 or more city voters would turn out today if the weather is good, a record for a general council election.

Last June only 626 votes were cast for four councilmen. Today's election is the first in which Democrats have had council opposition. Today, seven Democrats are opposed by two Republicans and three independents.

Alexandria Rules

Alexandrians may vote for any number of candidates up to seven, election officials said, but any ballot with more than seven names will be thrown out. There will be no balloting after 8:30, even if voters are still in line.

In Falls Church, Claude M. Wells, secretary of the City Electoral Board, estimated a 650-vote turnout. Last spring's total was about 450.

Falls Church voters will elect three councilmen from each of the three wards. First ward voters will ballot at the City Hall; second ward voters at the Madison School; and the third ward voters at the Broad Street Motors, 1001 W. Broad st.

"Write-in" Contender

In Falls Church's first ward, the three candidates yesterday faced a fourth "write-in" contender—Mrs. Eva Douglas, a Library of Congress employe of 115 W. Cameron rd. She is being backed by the North Greenway Downs Citizens Association.

Mrs. Douglas said she had been asked to run by City Attorney Van Meter, leader of a faction which objects to "interference" by Fairfax County in city affairs.

Voting places in Alexandria:

First Ward, Armory Hall, 200 block South Royal st., and City Hall, 100 block North Royal st. Second Ward, George Mason School, 2601 Cameron Mills rd. Third Ward, No. 5 Firehouse, 1210 Cameron st. Fourth Ward, Lee School, 1001 Prince st. Fifth Ward, Maury School, 600 block Russell rd., and George Washington High School, 800 block Mount Vernon ave. Sixth Ward, Mount Vernon School annex, 2500 block Mount Vernon ave., and No. 2 Engine House, 213 East Windsor ave.

Falls Church Children To Hold Own 'Election'

While their elders are electing a nine-member City Council today, Falls Church teen-agers will pick their own "mayor" and "council" in an election sponsored by the Junior Civic League.

League members will vote between 1 and 4 p.m. today at the Teen Canteen, Hillwood ave. and Douglas st. Results will be announced at 7:30 p.m. tonight at the canteen.

FBI Links Slav Ex-Diplomat to Secret Police

That a former member of the Yugoslav Embassy may have headed his country's secret police here is indirectly disclosed in the reports made public in the trial of Judith Coplon.

The diplomat is Pero Dragila.

A 1948 FBI report said: "Dragila is reported to be head of U.D.B. in the United States." The U.D.B., or U.D.Ba., is an abbreviation of the Serbo-Croat name of the Yugoslav security force, a secret police organization.

The name of Dr. Slavko Zore, counselor at the embassy, was also linked with U.D.B. activities here. Dragila was formerly second, and later first, secretary at the embassy.

Dragila lived at 9912 Edgehill ave., Silver Spring, Md., and subsequently at 3631 Everett st. nw. in Washington. He moved from the Everett street address, a furnished double house, in August 1948, and neighbors said they thought he had returned to Yugoslavia.

Annexation Plan Is Voted By Falls Church City Council

By Don Olesen
Post Reporter

The Falls Church City Council last night voted to seek annexation of more than 6 square miles of adjoining Fairfax County—a move that would more than triple the city's present area.

The council acted unanimously, after hearing a written report by two city planning experts urging the city "to proceed immediately" with annexation proceedings.

The step, the report said, would bring about 12,000 more people into Falls Church, creating a city of 17,000 population.

City planning expert Dr. Thomas H. Reed and the firm of Harland Bartholomew & Associates made the report to the council.

Fairfax County has indicated it will fight any possible annexation move by the city, when the proceedings come up in Fairfax Circuit Court.

Council action on the annexation came on the eve of today's city council election, in which the feasibility of land acquisition has been a major issue.

Councilmen directed City Attorney LaRue Van Meter to proceed at once to draw up annexation plans and to report back to the council at its July 11 meeting.

According to last night's recommendations, the proposed annexed area would include the following subdivisions:

Lee Boulevard Heights, Birch subdivision, Sleepy Hollow, Ravenwood, Malbrook, Jefferson Village, Park, Devonshire Gardens, South City Park, Tyler Park, Fenwick Greenway Downs and Tremond Gardens.

Also Embrace Subdivision

It also would embrace the proposed Willston subdivision at Seven Corners, which will eventually house more than 5000 persons, and the Falls Church Airport on Lee blvd.

The proposed area will have an assessed valuation of 12 million dollars in real property and three million dollars in personal property, it was said.

The experts recommended that the city spend 12 per cent of the area's assessed valuation, an estimated $925,000 for capital improvements within the area during the first year of annexation.

During the first year, according to annexation law, no higher tax rate may be levied by the city than the current Fairfax levy of $3.19 per $100 of assessed valuation. After the first year, however, the Falls Church tax levy may be applied to the annexed area.

According to the experts' calculations, the average Fairfax resident in the annexed area would save $21 yearly in water, sewer, trash and garbage payments compared with what he paid to Fairfax County.

Tito's Fall Plotted by Cominform

By Larry Allen

Warsaw, Poland, June 13 (AP).—The Cominform is winding up a secret meeting in Silesia where it is planning to smash Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia economically, it was reported authoritatively today.

New propaganda campaigns against the West and against the Marshall Plan also are being sharpened, it was reported.

Informed sources said the session of Communist leaders of Eastern Europe was certain to produce a hardened attitude toward Yugoslavia.

Next on the agenda, they added, is an intensification of "peace cinferences" supporting the international views of Russia against "American imperialism and warmongers."

The Communist-inspired World Peace Congress in Paris last April set up a permanent committee to wage a propaganda campaign with peace as the watchword and to hold more such conferences.

(The placing of Yugoslavia at the top of the program for discussion by the Communist International Information Bureau coincided with reports from Paris that the Western Powers were considering extending a helping hand to Tito.

(Cavendish Cannon, United States Ambassador to Yugoslavia, had an appointment with Secretary of State Acheson, and an American spokesman said they "are going to talk about ECA."

(The Yugoslav Ambassador to Paris, Marko Ristic, also saw British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin after the British Ambassador to Yugoslavia, Charles Peake, conferred with Bevin on Sunday. Britain and Yugoslavia have been trying to negotiate a five-year 800-million-dollar trade agreement.)

NAACP Spurns 'Rights' Unit as Ally

Richmond, Va., June 13 (AP).—Virginia's vice-chairman for the legal committee of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People said today that neither his law firm nor the NAACP would be associated with the Civil Rights Congress in the defense of seven Martinsville Negroes sentenced to death for rape of a white woman.

"Our firm and the NAACP cannot at this time be associated in any way with any organization which has been declared subversive by the United States Attorney General," said Martin A. Martin.

The Civil Rights Congress has been listed as a subversive, Communist front by Attorney General Tom Clark, the Department of Justice, and the House Un-American Activities Committee.

Maryland Lacking In Textbook Lists

Baltimore, June 13 (AP).—Maryland wasn't much help in the House Committee on Un-American Activities' spot check for Communist propaganda, a State education official said yesterday.

James E. Spitznas, director of instruction, said the committee had asked for a list of textbooks used in the State's public schools. He replied the State has no list.

The books are selected by committees of teachers and, under this system, books used for the same courses may vary from county to county. The selection of the teachers is subject to change by the State Superintendent of Public Schools, said Spitznas.

Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, State Superintendent of Schools, commented the House committee action "could lead to censorship."

Concerned About Suspicion

"I am especially concerned about the casting of suspicion on teachers as a group, whether consciously or otherwise. School people certainly are as patriotic as any group of people in our country and are much more competent to pass on textbooks than possibly even a Congressman," he said.

Johns Hopkins University and two State teacher colleges at Salisbury and Towson also were asked to supply lists of their approved text books. The Salisbury college has complied and that at Towson expects to do so next week.

P. Stewart Macaulay, provost at Hopkins, said a list of books ordered by the faculty for the 1949-50 school year had been sent to the House committee.

Committee Letter Quoted

[The House committee's letter to colleges and universities throughout the country read:

["The Committee on Un-American Activities is desirous of obtaining lists of textbooks and supplementary reading with the names of authors in use in our educational institution throughout the country in the fields of American literature, geography, economics, government, philosophy, history, political science and any other of the social science group.

["We have immediate need for the material and the committee would very much appreciate your cooperation in making the material available to us at the earliest possible date."

Educators Protest

[The Associated Press reported Sunday night that strong protests against the committee's inquiry have been made by educators.

[It quoted Edmund Ezra Day, president of Cornell University, as declaring "a witch hunt is developing in this country." Dr. George F. Zook, president of the American Council on Education, wrote the committee that the survey raises "very grave issues."—Eidtor's note.]

Rhode Island Man Elected Rotary Head

PERCY HODGSON
Heads World Rotarians

New York, June 13 (AP).—The leadership of Rotary International passed today from a retired Australian grain broker to a Rhode Island yarn manufacturer.

Percy Hodgson, 47, of Pawtuckett, R. I., was elected president by acclamation at the fortieth annual Rotary convention, the biggest in the service organization's history.

More than 15,000 delegates and relatives were registered by the second day and more were still coming.

Outgoing President Angus S. Mitchell of Melbourne, Australia, urged Rotarians to intensify their efforts to gain support for the United Nations.

"Peace, like war," he said, "is a state of mind. We must condition the mind of man so that he will work as diligently and as patiently for peace as he has always been willing to work toward victory in war."

Richard E. Vernor, who does fire prevention work in Chicago, was reelected treasurer. Other officers will be elected later in the week.

Israel Violation Cited In Neutral Zone Pact

Jerusalem, June 13 (AP).—A U. N. commission set up under the Israel-Trans-Jordan armistice agreement ruled today that Israel forces are violating the pact in the disputed Government House area of Jerusalem.

The commission ordered both sides to withdraw by noon Tuesday from what the U. N. has designated a "neutralized zone."

The Israel forces moved into the neutral area a week ago, claiming the Arabs previously had extended their control over a square mile of the strategic section. The Arabs have denied this charge.

Mrs. Chambers Changes Her Testimony

wedding anniversary party could not have taken place at Volta Pl. on that date in 1937, because the Hisses did not move there from 1245 30th St. n.w. until December 29, 1937.

Mrs. Chambers denied this. After testifying on Friday, she said, she and Chambers "talked it over" at their Westminister, Maryland farm, and he thought that the New Year's party took place at the 30th St. address.

Conflicting Testimony Heard

After much conflicting testimony on this pont, Mrs. Chambers decided the wedding anniversary party was in Baltimore, the New Year's party at 30th St. on Dec. 31, 1936, and that the event at the Volta pl. address was "probably a housewarming."

(Chambers said he later visited the Hiss home alone when the exchanges of the 1938 documents took place. Chambers says he broke with the Communist Party in April, 1938.)

Her testimony about the meetings with the Hisses occupied most of the day in which she concluded her courtroom appearance.

Despite her uncertainty about dates and addresses, which once brought a five-minute court recess to give her an opportunity to "recollect" she was more outspoken on the witness stand than she was on Friday.

Calls Stryker "Insulting"

Once, when Stryker demanded to know if the FBI had given her any "help" in "refreshing her recollection," she retorted sharply, "That insinuation isn't necessary." Later, in reply to a similar question, she told Stryker, "You're insulting, sir!"

Both responses drew rebukes from Judge Kaufman.

Tomorrow, Assistant United States Attorney Thomas F. Murphy, chief prosecutor in the case, said he would call to the stand Walter H. Anderson, of the State Department's records branch, an FBI technical expert.

Murphy said Anderson would identify documents which Chambers said were given to him by Hiss. The FBI agent is expected to testify that more than 60 of the typewritten documents were typed on the same kind of machine which the prosecution alleges was owned by Hiss, and that other papers are in Hiss' handwriting.

Handwriting Acknowledged

Hiss has previously conceded that at least three of the four handwritten memoranda are in his writing, although he flatly denies any knowledge of how any of the papers were obtained by Chambers, whom he says he knew only as a free-lance writer.

Stryker, in challenging the credibility of Mrs. Chambers, as he challenged her husband in his appearances on the stand, declared she was wrong in her description of the Hisses' 30th st. house.

She had described the exterior of the house as being painted white, as it was on a photograph he showed her, and he declared:

"If I prove to your satisfaction that when the Hisses formerly lived there the front of that house at 30th st. was not white but a glaring yellow, will you not admit to us now that you were mistaken?"

"We Would Flit In and Out"

"I may be mistaken about the color of the house from the exterior," countered Mrs. Chambers. "It is the interior that I remember . . . We would flit in and out"

Stryker also showed her a photograph of the Volta st. house—taken recently—and asked her if that represented her knowledge of the dwelling. She said she believed it did.

Defense attorneys said later that the photograph she identified contained a stone addition to the house which was not erected until 1942-43, while Mrs. Chambers has denied being in Washington after 1938.

Changed Name of Child

In a rapid-fire series of questions about her life with Chambers during the time he served the Communist underground, Mrs. Chambers said they changed the name of their oldest child—Ellen, now 15—to follow the various pseudonyms they employed.

This even included changing the first name of the child on one occasion at least, to "Ursula Breen" when the Chambers used that surname.

"Didn't that shock you as a mother?" Stryker pressed.

"No, as a Communist . . ."

"Did it?" he interruped.

"It did worry me as a mother," she replied, but "it did not bother my conscience . . ."

In October, 1937, when the Chambers attempted to get Ellen, then 4 years old, entered into Baltimore's private park school for a scholarship, "you were trying to get a scholarship for this child by means of deception" in withholding Chambers' Communist membership?" asked Stryker.

Mrs. Chambers sad this was true, but it was deception only in that they did not tell the "whole truth" in the application.

Q. "Well, then, we have it this way, that your husband, a Communist, and you, a warm sympathizer, were applying to a private school for a scholarship at the time he was an underground conspirator, a secret enemy of his country. Then fraud and misrepresentation . . ."

"Is part and parcel of the Communist . . ." cut in Mrs. Chambers.

"I move to strike that out," shouted Stryker. "I'm not interested in the theories of the Communist Party."

"You should be, sir," interposed Mrs. Chambers in a loud voice.

"It didn't seem to me to be so terribly important a misrepresentation," she said later, and Srtyker, with deep sarcasm, declared it was not the act of a "decent man."

"I resent that," Mrs. Chambers called out. "My husband is a decent man, a great man."

Q. "Was he a great and decent citizen in October, 1937?"

A. "Yes—and always."

Q. "And so that the jury will understand your conception: it is your idea that a man who was plotting and conspiring by any and all means to overthrow the government of his country, who had been sneaking around for 12 years under false names, that is your conception of the great, decent citizen. Is that right?"

Tensing herself on the stand, Mrs. Chambers replied with wifely pride:

"No, but if he then believed that was the right thing to do at the moment, I believe that is a great man who lives up to his beliefs. His beliefs may change, as they did."

Later, she said, "As a matter of fact, it was Mr. Hiss who suggested the park school." That remark was stricken from the record on Stryker's objection.

In Chambers' account of his close relations with Hiss was the statement that Hiss, in 1937, lent him $400 to buy a car, which was purchased by Mrs. Chambers. Stryker today made another unsuccessful attempt to gain an admission that his money actually came from Chambers' mother.

"Living on a Pittance"

From depositions in the Baltimore libel suit, he read a statement by Mrs. Chambers in which she said that the money may have come from her husband's mother. Today she said she did not know definitely where the money came from.

"You were living on a pittance from the Communist party?" asked Stryker.

A. "It was sufficient for persons of our simple means."

Q. "From the scale of living you had . . . wasn't the purchase of a car of enough significance to impress upon you the circumstances surrounding it? . . . wouldn't you say to him, 'Whittaker, where are we getting the money?'"

A. "No."

Q. "You wouldn't say that to him as his wife?"

A. "No, not as a Communist wife."

Doesn't Remember Names

Extensive earlier testimony in the trial has involved an apartment at 2831 28th st. nw., which Hiss subleased to the Chamberses for several weeks in 1935, and Stryker yesterday asked by what name the Chambers were known to a maid they employed during that period.

"I don't know what name was used to the maid," replied Mrs. Chambers, who previously stated that the Hisses knew the Chamberses only as "Carl" and "Liza."

"Julia (the maid) came to us with the apartment. . . . We inherited a name too. . . . Mrs. Hiss gave her a name for us."

All the visits between the Chamberses and the Hisses, Mrs. Chambers said, "were more or less furtive." She said, however, that the Chamberses and Hisses attended the theater in Baltimore—as Stryker histrionically put it—"without disguises of any kind."

Aura of Secrecy

This, she said with a smile, "was a great mistake from a conspiratorial point of view."

Mrs. Chambers said she never knew about Chambers' charges that he received secret documents from at least four other "sources" in addition to Hiss, until she read that in the newspapers. She indicated this was not unusual because of the aura of secrecy surrounding her husband's activities.

Hiss was introduced to her by Chambers in 1934, she said in the Baltimore deposition, after her husband described Hiss as "a very fine man who was a Harvard graduate and who was in the Department of Justice at that time. I'm not sure of that (the Justice Department designation)."

Today she said, "I think it was in the Nye (Senate Munitions Investigating) Committee," and denied Stryker's suggestion that she corrected this because she found out Hiss did not enter the Justice Department until later.

Marriage Followed Picketing

When Chambers, in 1939, obtained a job with Time magazine—reaching a $30,000-a-year post which he recently resigned—the Chamberses found a "sense of financial security" for the first time since their marriage in 1931, she said. (The marriage followed a picket-line meeting in Passaic, N. J., in which Mrs. Chambers said she was "hurt on the picket line.")

Almost all their resources, she said, are in their 300-acre fram at Westminster, where Chambers once concealed some of the alleged Hiss documents in a pumpkin. The farm, she said, is "in both our names."

"Haven't you and your husband discussed the fact that if Mr. Hiss was convicted that there would be less likelihood for Mr. Chambers to be indicted for the various perjuries he has committed here and in Washington (before the House Committee on Un-American Activities)?" Stryker demanded.

Judge Kaufman refused to allow the question as the trial session ended.

Gen. Vaughan Tops Guest List at VFW Convention

Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, military aide to President Truman, will head the guest list tonight at a general session of the annual convention of the District Department, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The meeting will be held at the Interior Department auditorium. Others on the list will be John S. Graham, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, and Emilio Abello, Minister of the Philippines. Members of the VFW Auxiliary will take part.

Sessions of the convention will continue through Friday with a dance scheduled Wednesday night at the Wardman Park Hotel and business meetings Thursday and Friday at the Mayflower Hotel.

Maryland Educators Comply With Oath Law

Baltimore, June 13 (AP).—While they evoked some protests, requests for loyalty oaths under the Ober law are being complied with today by Maryland educators.

The office of the State employment commissioner said 7000 of the 9000 public employes have signed loyalty oaths called for by the Ober law.

Truman Signs Repeal Of Enlisted Pilot Law

President Truman yesterday signed a bill repealing a wartime law that 20 per cent of pilots in the Air Force, Navy and Marine Corps must be enlisted men.

Ober Law Before Sherbow

Baltimore, June 13 (AP).—Maryland's law against subversive people probably is unique in the United States, a deputy State's Attorney said today.

A contest over legality of the so-called Ober law started before Judge Joseph Sherbow. The chief judge of the Baltimore Supreme Bench is hearing arguments on demurrers by the city and State.

The demurrers seek to prevent two groups from proceeding with their suits attacking the legality of the law. The suits were filed by the Communist Party of Maryland and 10 individuals, including seven college professors.

"Has any other State legislature ever passed a law similar to this?" Judge Sherbow asked.

"I don't know of any that are exactly similar," replied Deputy State's Attorney J. Edgar Harvey. "I know of none that would entirely square with it."

Judge Sherbow also brought out the unusual procedure by which the law became effective immediately upon passage. The recent General Assembly first passed the bill to be effective June 1. Then it repassed it in a so-called short form, making it an emergency measure and effective immediately.

The judge said he knew of no other law being passed in the same manner. Harvey admitted it was unfamiliar to him, too.

Another question raised by the judge was whether the law "hasn't created a new kind of Attorney General," by providing that it shall be enforced by a special assistant attorney general.

Harvey defended validity of the law on the ground "that the State has the right of self-preservation." Maurice Braverman, attorney for the Communist Party, contended that the bill is in essence "a legislative declaration of guilt based on a concept of guilt by association."

Real Estate Case Dismissal Refused

The United States Court of Appeals yesterday refused to dismiss civil charges of antitrust law violation brought by the Government against the Washington Real Estate Board, the National Association of Real Estate Boards, and 16 individuals.

In an opinion written by Circuit Judge Henry W. Edgerton the court held that only the Supreme Court had jurisdiction.

It cited the Expediting Act, passed for the purpose of speeding such cases, as providing that in a suit in equity brought by the United States under the Sherman Act, "an appeal from the final decree of the district court will lie only in the Supreme Court."

Circuit Judges James M. Proctor and H. Church Ford, a visiting district judge, concurred in the opinion.

The real estate boards and the individuals had moved for summary judgment to throw the case out of court on the grounds that a criminal case based on the same charges against them had been dismissed by District Judge Edward M. Curran last year.

The accusations against the appellants revolved around alleged rigging of brokers' fees in the District.

Changes in Army Promised to Curb Unfair Reports

NYHT News Service

Further organizational changes in the Department of the Army were promised yesterday by Secretary Gordon Gray to prevent a recurrence of incidents such as that which branded Gordon Clapp, chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, as "unemployable."

Secretary Gray revealed the impending "changes" after calling at the White House to give President Truman the full report which he had ordered on the case. Gray said that the entire matter will be aired publicly this morning at a hearing before a subcommittee of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Witnesses will include the officer who sent to military government in Germany the confidential cable which stated that Mr. Clapp was unemployable for a special advisory job. Gray refused to divulge his name.

Oppenheimer Says AEC Is Capable, Loyal

criticized. But it is far better than I thought it would be."

After hearing Oppenheimer, the Committee held a two-hour closed door meeting in which it decided to consider on Wednesday charges of alleged mismanagement in the construction of a special facility at the Hanford (Wash.) atomic materials plant.

Both the Commission and Senator Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), the Commission's leading critic, agreed the matter could be explored without violating security.

The cost of the new facility is now estimated at $24,950,000 compared with an original estimate of $6,255,000.

There will be no hearing or session of the committee Tuesday.

The committee also voted yesterday to ask the opinion of Defense Secretary Louis Johnson as to whether publication in the Commission's Fifth Annual report and in Fortune Magazine of certain atomic photographs violated security.

Issue Raised by Tydings

The issue was raised in committee earlier by Senator Tydings (D., Md.) and others. They contended that their publication was a breach of national security regulations.

Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.), wartime Marine air combat intelligence officer, said the photographs would be an excellent guide to enemy bombers seeking out this country's atomic plants. The commission contended they had previously been published by the Army.

Hickenlooper won a 7-to-6 victory when the committee rejected a motion made by Representative Jackson (D., Wash.) to require Hickenlooper to give Chairman David Lilienthal of the commission a 24-hour advance notice on matters he intends to bring before the committee.

Documents to Be Provided

McMahon also announced that nearly every one of the documents requested by Hickenlooper to further his inquiry into the commission procedures either have been provided or will be provided in the near future.

Oppenheimer told the committee that no one could say isotops were not used for atomic energy.

"You can use a shovel for atomic energy; in fact, you do. You can use a bottle of beer for atomic energy. In fact, you do, but to get some perspective, the fact is that during the war and after the war these materials have played no significant part, and in my own knowledge, no part at all.

Holds Hearing Spotlight

"That is not true of all isotopes. Plutonium is a good one; that played a big part. It is true of the group of isotopes falling under the Commission's export policy."

Even if these exportable isotopes had been shipped directly to Russia, Oppenheimer said, he knew of no way in which Russia could have employed them "substantially" to further its military science.

Oppenheimer said the isotopes were intended to be shipped abroad for basic research.

"No one," he said, "can tell whether from basic research something of military value will emerge, but this country is an awfully good country to take advantage of these things."

Senator Millikin (R., Colo.) suggested that since basic research does not operate in complete isolation anything turned up of value to military research would eventually be used for that purpose.

Oppenheimer said it was a long chain.

"There is a long chain between the chicken salad and the gleam in the eye of the rooster," Millikin returned, "but they all have relation with each other."

By the definition under the present Atomic Energy law, Oppenheimer said, coal, oil and even people are atomic energy. He said that in fact nearly everything could be so construed except tidal power.

This country, Oppenheimer said, because of its technological ability, makes better use of scientific ideas than other countries.

"History again and again shows that we have no monopoly on ideas, but we do better with them than most countries," Oppenheimer said.

Discusses Russia

Of Russia he remarked, "My understanding of the situation in Russia is that even when the basic facts are known, they have, and I think we have cause to be grateful, some difficulty in making practical application of them."

Under questioning from Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), Oppenheimer said the General Advisory Committee paid little or no attention to the Commission's policy on personnel security.

"We talk about declassification policy; we talk about those things touching security, but personnel security, guarding, these are matters which we have either not touched at all or very, very little."

Oppenheimer testified to the excellent relations of the General Advisory Committee—which is independent of the commission—with the AEC. Its recommendations, he said, were followed by the commission.

Senator Knowland (R., Calif.) asked Oppenheimer if the committee had ever considered a change in the set-up of the commission where the general manager would be appointed by the commission and responsible to that rather than, as now, being appointed directly by the President.

Oppenheimer said the matter had not come up as a committee question but that individual members have very different views on how the Atomic Energy Act should have been written.

The statement of the nine members of the General Advisory Committee, watchdog group of top scientists created by Congress to follow the work of the AEC for more than two years, follows:

"The General Advisory Committee, in accordance with its statutory obligations, has followed the scientific and technical activities of the Atomic Energy Commission with consderable care since January 1947. We have seen at first hand the grave difficulties which the commission faced in assuming responsibility for an extremely complex enterprise which had been disrupted by the ending of the war and by a year of uncertainty pending the establishment of the Atomic Energy Commission.

"When the commission took over, the future of the whole enterprise was uncertain, the continuity of production of fissionable materials was far from assured, the design and development of improved weapons was nearly stagnant. In each of these respects, the picture has radically changed. Better weapons have been developed and tested, and production of materials has been substantially increased and assured, and a sound and forward-looking program has been established.

"There have been occasions on which the advisory committee has criticized the commission and offered suggestions for the improvement of its program, which suggestions have largely been followed. In all of our examinations of the commission's activities we have seen a frank recognition of the problems of management inherent in any new undertaking and a steady progress in their solution. The improvement which has been achieved during the commission's administration appears to us to offer clear proof of competence and devotion to duty by the commission."

Coal Stoppage Is Completed By United Mine Workers Men

Philadelphia, June 13 (AP). — A weeklong holiday today began for the Nation's 480,000 coal miners and John L. Lewis, their bushy-browed boss, spent the day telling coal operators what he wants in a new contract.

The walkout of United Mine Workers members was ordered by Lewis. He called the stoppage a "stabilization holiday."

Lewis' contract with the soft-coal operators doesn't expire until June 30. If no new pact is signed by then and the union's traditional policy is carried out, a drawn-out coal strike likely will result.

The miners are scheduled to go back to work next Monday. But they'll quit again June 25 for their annual 10-day paid holiday.

That means very little coal will be mined for some time to come.

Contract talks at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel here were between Lewis and Harry Moses, president of the H. C. Frick Coke Co., coal-producing subsidiary of U. S. Steel Corp.

"Big Steel" employs only 20,000 miners in its "captive" pits, but any agreement between Lewis and U. S. Steel probably will set the pattern for the industry. It has done so in the past.

Moses issued this brief statement at the end of the meeting:

"We have spent these sessions today talking about necessary preliminaries for negotiation of a new contract.

"We have decided to recess until Thursday, June 23, at which time we will start talks for signing of a new contract."

Lewis didn't give a hint of what he was asking.

And Moses and his associates made it plain they had nothing to offer Lewis. "John asked us to meet with him," one U. S. Steel spokesman said. "And that's the only reason we're here."

There was little by way of comment from miners in the field. As usual, all UMW dues payers followed Lewis' orders and quit work.

About 12,000 Virginia miners—members of the United Mine Workers—began the one-week holiday.

They were joined in idleness by 1100 railroad workers employed by the Norfolk and Western Railway, which does its chief business in the coal fields.

Scattered dumping of coal produced by independent miners was reported in West Virginia. Officials said there were brief skirmishes but no injuries.

Bands of roving pickets forced some West Virginia strip miners to dump their trucks on the highways and caused at least one company to shut down.

Lewis is slated to go to Bluefield, W. Va., tomorrow to resume contract talks with Southern operators. Those meetings were under way before the walkout started.

Thirty thousand workers for Eastern railroads were laid off largely because of the walkout, although rail officials blamed a general traffic decline also.

U. S.-Soviet Group's Conviction Upheld

Free Speech Not Absolute

JOHN HOWARD LAWSON

A contempt of Congress conviction against Richard Morford, of New York, director of the National Council for American-Soviet Friendship, Inc., was upheld yesterday by the United States Court of Appeals.

Morford is under sentence of three months in jail and a $250 fine for refusing to produce records of his organization subpenaed in 1946 by the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Judge Wilbur K. Miller, who wrote the opinion ,said that "The National Council's unstinted praise of the communistic regime in Russia and its comparison of Soviet official behavior with that of the United States, to the disparagement of the latter, led logically to the Committee's conclusion that here was such strong indication of an attack on the principle of our form of government as to justify an inquiry."

This was a reply to Morford's contention the House Committee had no legal justification for its inquiry.

"The National Council of American-Soviet Friendship," Justice Miller wrote, "stated one of his objectives as being 'to take specific action against anti-Soviet propaganda aimed at dividing the United Nations.' That purpose may have been innocent enough in itself; but it was implemented by a flood of propaganda pro-Soviet in character, consistently critical of the foreign policy of the United States.

"Of course, the National Council was not so crass as to say 'We hereby attack the principle of the form of government guaranteed by our Constitution.' Subversive propaganda is more subtle than that. But sometimes, as here, it is so bold that he who runs may read."

The House Committee sought the Council's records to determine who were the backers and contributors to its activities. David Rein, of Washington, one of the attorneys for Morford, said yesterday the case will be carried to the Supreme Court.

have been Communists, are not pertinent questions . . ."

To the allegation that Lawson and Trumbo were protected by the Bill of Rights from being compelled to disclose their private beliefs and associations, the court held:

"It is fully established by reiterated holdings of the Supreme Court that the right of free speech is not absolute but must yield to national interests justifiably thought to be of larger importance. The same is true of the right to remain silent.

"When legislating what it believes to be a threat of substantive evil of national welfare, Congress may abridge either freedom . . ."

The court did not rule specifically on the "self-incrimination" provision of the Fifth Amendment but its language was so broad that that phase appeared to be covered by implication.

Contempt cases of eight other Hollywood figures growing out of the Communist membership question have been held in abeyance pending final disposition of the Lawson-Trumbo matter.

Others Listed

The others are: Ring Lardner, jr., Albert Maltz, Alvan Bessie, Samuel Ornitz, Herbert Biberman, Edward Dmytryk, Robert Adrian Scott and Lester Cole.

Under a stipulation between Government and defense counsel, the eight will waive a jury trial in the event that the Supreme Court upholds the Appellate Court. This would be virtually tantamount to pleading guilty in the light of the record.

Finnish Refugees Arrive in U.S. After 10-Month Voyage

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

SCAN MIAMI SKYLINE—Eight Finns, who said they were refugees from Russian persecution, were anchored off Miami, Fla., yesterday after a perilous 10-month crossing of the Atlantic. They made the trip in a 70-foot vessel. A baby in the party, Jon Mannynuali, is listed as an American, since he was born in the Virgin Islands last April 7 out on bond furnished by Americans whose forebears came from their homelands. Thirty-seven others who arrived last January still are at Ellis Island.

Finn Refugees Reach Miami

Immigration authorities here withheld the names of nine persons who arrived Sunday night in Miami, pending a security check of their identities.

However, an unofficial report received by authorities here described them as "nice cleancut young couples," "intelligent" and with an "upbringing well above average." The skipper of the Vuppa—head of one of the families—was termed a "very able sailor" who kept good discipline and his little vessel in good condition.

According to the log of the Vuppa and other data in the hands of immigration authorities, the group left Finland last August on a "dark night during a storm." One couple had a year-old daughter. They stopped in Denmark, Sweden, England and Belgium before starting across the Atlantic.

The little band put into the Portuguese Madeira Islands and then were 43 days at sea before arriving at St. Thomas, Virgin Islands. One of the wives was pregnant and officials admitted her to the Municipal Hospital, because of complications. Hence, her 10-week-old son can claim to be a native born American citizen. Then the Vuppa put to sea again, ostensibly headed for the Dominican Republic, but landed at Miami instead.

Officials say the aliens who cross in "leaky, old boats" without visas present an unusual problem. Stowaways on liners or tramp steamers are the responsibility of the shipowners and must be returned to the port where they boarded. The "pilgrims," however, are not told to clear out in their dangerous craft, but held for deportation, if the quotas of their homelands are filled—as is usually the case.

In all prior cases, however, some members of Congress has stepped in and introduced a private bill authorizing their admittance despite the quotas. This stays action in their case until the bill is disposed of under Immigration Service procedure. After screening, they are eligible for release from Ellis Island on bond.

Officials say there has been no action on any of the bills and as they have been reintroduced in subsequent Congresses the stay is still in effect.

Reich Deadlock Parley Breaks Up

Berlin, June 13 (AP).—Germany's East-West economic deadlock was handed back to the Foreign Ministers Council today after week-end talks here failed to produce a draft for a four-power trade and transport pact.

Economic experts of the four occupying powers broke up and sent separate reports of the talks to their diplomatic chiefs in Paris.

"There was neither success nor lack of success," one said.

A Russian source said the experts made considerable progress toward agreement, but a Western expert told newsmen the reports to Paris would show about 90 per cent agreement on small matters and 100 per cent disagreement on the big ones.

The main points of difference include Russia's insistence on keeping control of transport to Berlin and on recognition of the Eastmark as the equal of the Westmark.

The currency difference is responsible partly for the Berlin rail strike that further confounded the experts while they were in session.

Anti-Communist railmen demanding full pay in Westmarks and other concessions for going back to work on the Soviet-run rail system will vote Tuesday on a four-power plan that would give most of their pay in Westmarks.

This American-inspired plan was approved by the union executive board as soon as Russia agreed to it Saturday, but was rejected Sunday by the full union leadership.

The leaders agreed to put it to the 14,000 workers involved and they are expected by senior delegates of the union to go back to work in midweek under the four-power plan.

Belgians Seize Plant Defended by Germans

Dusseldorf, Germany, June 13 (AP).—Belgian armored cars and machine-gunners battered down a workmen's barricade today and 700 soldiers seized a synthetic oil plant the Germans were defending against Allied demolition. There were no casualties.

The plant, at Bergkamen, is one of 11 marked to be torn down in the program to destroy war potentials in the Ruhr.

By nightfall dismantling was proceeding in four of the doomed plants. Work is to start in the other seven later.

German plant workers last week massed in a human wall to fend off efforts of German dismantling crews to enter the Bergkamen works on orders from the British.

The British threatened to use force if necessary and set today as the deadline for the start of the wrecking program. They called on Belgian troops who are charged with occupation tasks in the Bergkamen area of the Ruhr Valley.

Peaceful approach to the Bergkamen plant was blocked today by the German workers, who converted Ruhr coal into oil products. Dismantlers were stopped by a blockade of German vehicles. About 100 resistors stood by armed with clubs and heaps of throwing-size coal.

The dismantlers withdrew and the Belgians came up four hours later with four armored cars and about 700 soldiers armed with machine guns and rifles. The cars rammed a path through the motor barricades.

There was no resistance to the armed entry.

U. S. Army Expels 2 Soldiers

Frankfurt, Germany, June 13 (AP).—Two United States soldiers back from six months imprisonment in Czechoslovakia as "sipes" have been sentenced to six months in jail and given bad conduct discharges, the Army announced today.

Recruits George Jones of Owensboro, Ky., and Clarence R. Hill of Pampa, Tex., were tried by an Army court martial on charges of absence without leave and breaking arrest.

The two men strayed across the border six months ago and were picked up by Czech authorities, who accused them of spying. For a long time they were held incommunicado by Czech authorities, despite protests of the United States Embassy. The two had been sentenced by the Czechs to 12 years imprisonment but were pardoned by President Klement Gottwald last month.

Election Day Holiday Bill Pigeon-Holed

The Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday pigeon-holed a bill to make national election days legal holidays.

The committee felt, a member of the staff told reporters, that probably fewer people, rather than more, would go to the polls if election days were made holidays.

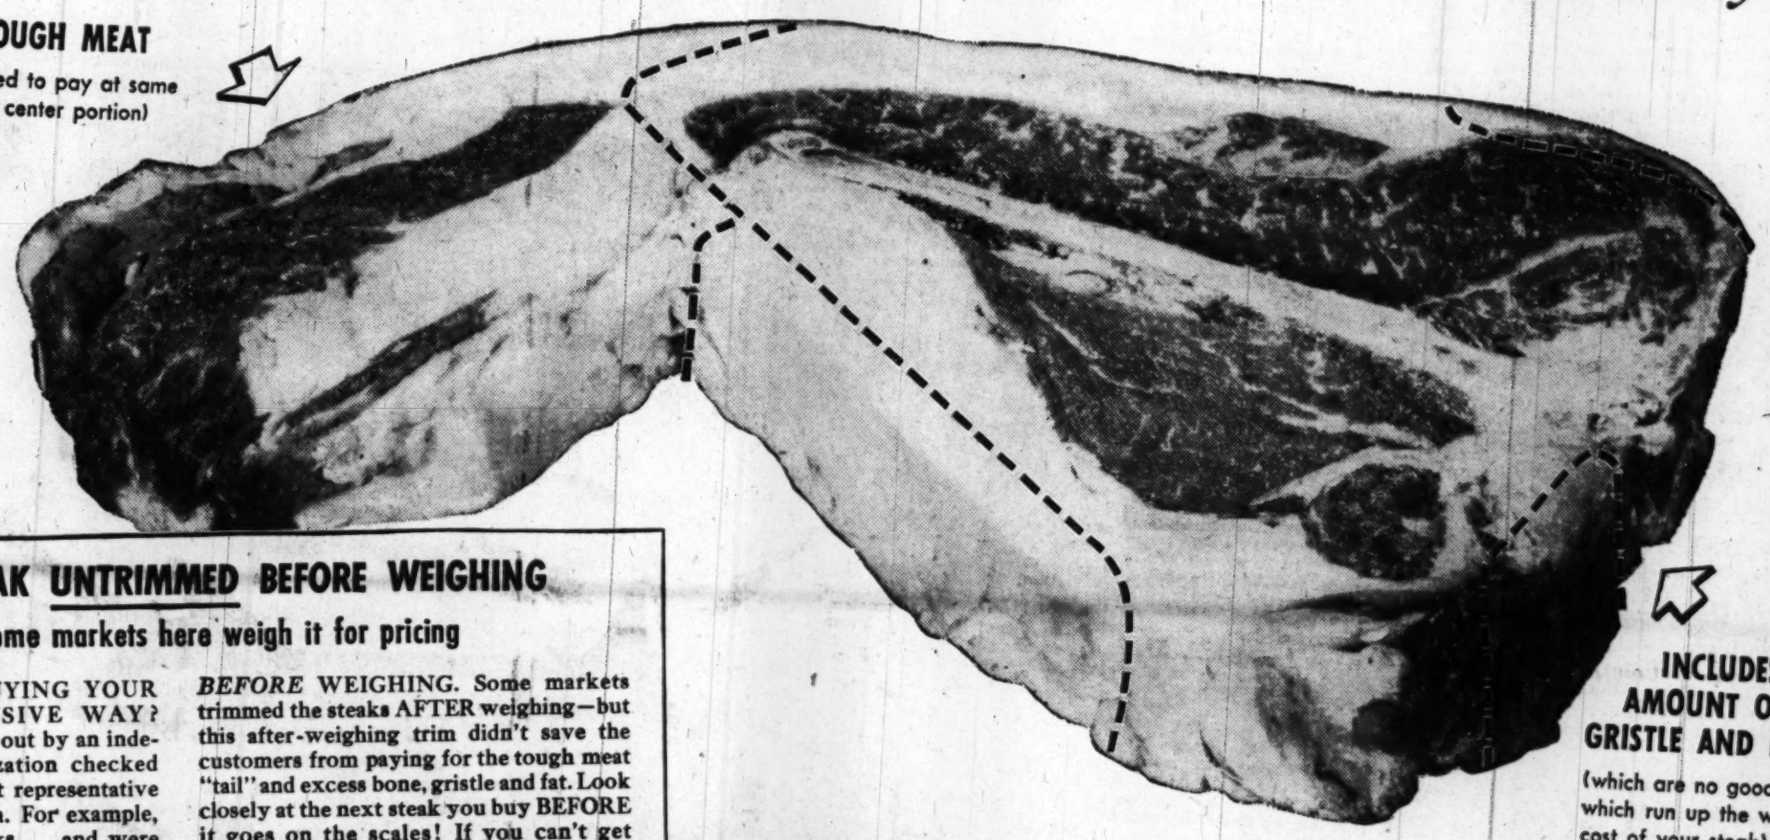
Look Carefully At These Steak Photos

They May Save You An Important Part Of Your Meat Bill. Steaks Like Each Of These Were Bought At The Same Price Per Pound In Recent Test-Purchase Survey

INCLUDES "TAIL" OF TOUGH MEAT
(for which the customer is asked to pay at same price per pound as for tender center portion)



INCLUDES EXCESSIVE AMOUNT OF BONE, GRISTLE AND FAT
(which are no good for eating, yet which run up the weight and cost of your steak)

T-BONE STEAK UNTRIMMED BEFORE WEIGHING
... as some markets here weigh it for pricing

HAVE YOU BEEN BUYING YOUR MEAT THIS EXPENSIVE WAY? Women investigators sent out by an independent research organization checked meat-trimming methods at representative markets all over this area. For example, they bought T-bone steaks . . . and were AMAZED by this discovery: 97% of markets visited (other than Safeway) DID NOT TRIM THEIR T-BONE STEAKS BEFORE WEIGHING. Some markets trimmed the steaks AFTER weighing—but this after-weighing trim didn't save the customers from paying for the tough meat "tail" and excess bone, gristle and fat. Look closely at the next steak you buy BEFORE it goes on the scales! If you can't get your market to trim BEFORE weighing, come to Safeway and get the money-savings modern meat-trimming offers you!

TOUGH MEAT "TAIL" REMOVED BEFORE WEIGHING

EXCESS BONE, GRISTLE AND FAT REMOVED BEFORE WEIGHING
(so you don't have to pay at steak prices for these waste parts)

SAFEWAY TRIMMED-BEFORE-WEIGHING T-BONE STEAK
... trimmed so you pay for only tender center portion

MONEY-SAVINGS OF 28¢ to $1.04 per typical 2-pound T-bone steak are secured by many housewives who purchase trimmed-before-weighing meats, the test-purchase survey reveals! In just a few weeks of meat-buying such savings can go a long way to cut down the high cost of living for your family. You are rightfully entitled to GET THESE SAVINGS . . . because every market should trim meats BEFORE WEIGHING. No longer do you need to buy T-bone steaks, for example, on somebody else's say-so. The steak photos printed here show you exactly what kind of trimming to look for. Take these photos to your market. Use them to check the next T-bone steak you buy BEFORE it is put on the scales!

Safeway believes all markets should retail meat this common-sense way—with excess bone, fat and waste-parts trimmed off before the meat is weighed. More and more good markets are doing it. Why don't you ask your market man to trim your next steak before he weighs it?

THE SAFEWAY trimmed-before-weighing beef T-bone steak has in it the kind of meat people want in steaks. NOT the tough meat "tail"—which isn't rightly part of a steak people expect to eat and enjoy! NOT the excess bone and gristle — which should be cut off and thrown away.

Most every good cook and good market man knows that steaks should be trimmed as Safeway does it...before weighing.

The savings cited here on T-bones are typical of savings you make on every cut and kind of meat that's trimmed as Safeway does it—before weighing. You save on rib roasts and chops, on leg of lamb and other cuts—when each cut is trimmed before weighing according to its special requirements. Wherever you buy, insist on pocketing for yourself the money-savings this better trimming method brings.

Safeway buys nothing less than the top government grades of beef . . . nothing less than the top grades of lamb, pork and veal. All Safeway meats are properly aged — brought to you at peak perfection.

Come try trimmed-before-weighing meats at Safeway. Note our special Two-Steak Offer printed at the right.

SAFEWAY'S OFFER: We will give you 2 T-bone steaks at no cost if ever you get from us a T-bone steak NOT trimmed before weighing! Just show the meat to the manager of the Safeway store where you bought it. We won't quibble or argue. We want you to have extra T-bones without cost if we fail to trim as we say!

Only HALF Interested?

You need both eyes wide open when you buy the home of your dreams . . . and financing the purchase is an important part of the dream. For 88 years we have assisted many families to own a debt free home. We shall be glad to assist you.

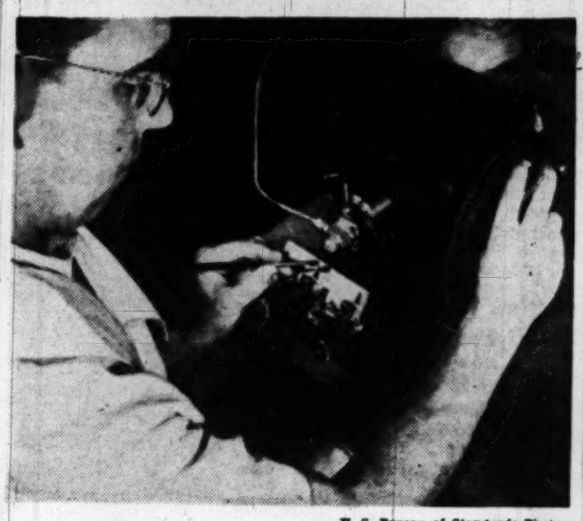
New Superfine Research Tool Cuts World's Thinnest Slices



U. S. Bureau of Standards Photo
STRICTLY SCIENTIFIC—Dr. Borysko, National Bureau of Standards biophysicist, operates a new slicing machine which can shave a frog's eye into 10,000 slices. Artist's brush is for removing ultra-thin slice, which in turn is removed from brush by the needle instrument in the scientist's other hand. Protruding from brass nut can be seen the tissue specimen in its plastic capsule. The machine is not available to restaurants

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

A new research tool which cuts things so fine it can slice a frog's eye into some 10,000 sections was shown here yesterday.

Developed by biophysicists at the Bureau of Standards, it will for the first time permit routine preparation of tissue specimens thin enough for detailed study under the electron microscope.

Terming development of the machine "truly exciting," Dr. Edward U. Condon, bureau director, said it promises to be an important aid to research in many fields, and notably in the field of cancer research.

Potentialities Long Known

Potentialities of the electron microscope in tissue biopsy have been known since it was first developed in 1932, but such research has been largely impeded because the thinnest sectioning possible (about one micron thick) was too thick for detailed electron microscopic study.

With the new method, announced yesterday, tissue can now be sectioned to about one-tenth of a micron, providing bioligical specimens within the slight penetrating range of electron microscopy. An average human hair runs about 75 microns in thickness. Some 25,400 microns comprise one inch.

The new slicing technique, demonstrated yesterday by its developers, S. B. Newman, E. Borysko and Max Swerdlwo, is relatively simple. Basically, it merely improves on the present laboratory slicing machine, the microtone, which can shave off slices down to the one-micron thickness.

Heat Expansion Principle

What the biophysicists did, it was explained, was to disengage the advancing mechanism of the microtome, and use in its stead the principle of heat expansion of metal. They found that normal room temperatures at work on an artificially chilled brass mounting would expand that mounting sufficiently to advance the specimen to the cutting blade by fractions of a micron.

Already, the bureau scientists said, they have had a peek at the inside structure of the red blood cell, which they said was accidentally exposed in study of an ultrathin slice of mouse brain. Other red cells have undoubtedly been cut in half before, they said, but could not be seen in microscopic study because of "thickness interference" of the specimen under study.

Senate Approves Gordon Gray as Army Secretary

The Senate yesterday approved the appointment of Gordon Gray as Secretary of the Army. The action was by unanimous consent.

Gray, Winston-Salem, N. C., publisher, has been Undersecretary of the Army.

The Senate also confirmed without objection:

John J. McCloy of New York as High Commissioner for Germany and chief of the United States mission there.

William C. Foster of New York as Deputy Administrator for Economic Cooperation.

Russia Rejects Balkan Probe

Russia has rejected a United States proposal for a Big Three meeting to determine whether Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania have violated their peace treaties, the State Department disclosed last night.

In a note delivered to the Department Saturday, Russia said she agrees with the three Soviet satellite states that there have been no violations. It accused the Western Powers of trying to interfere in the internal affairs of the three Balkan states.

The United States has accused Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania of failing to grant the human rights and freedom guaranteed in the treaties.

A department spokesman said this Government regarded the Soviet note as a rejection of its May 31 proposal for a Big Three meeting to decide the issue.

Pleads Not Guilty to Setting Fire at Bolling Chapel

Air Force Pfc. George F. Falterman, accused of setting fire to the Bolling Air Base chapel February 24, pleaded not guilty before a general court-martial yesterday, despite an earlier confession reported by base authorities.

The seven-officer board, trying Falterman on a charge of statutory arson, agreed to admit the purported confession after a day-long hearing in which the defense tried unsuccessfully to establish that the fire might have resulted from an "act of God."

Counsel for the 19-year-old defendant, whose home is New York City, contended the confession should be excluded unless it could be proved the blaze was deliberate.

The court-martial will be resumed today at 9:30 a. m. at Bolling Air Base headquarters.

According to investigating officers, the youth in the "confession," admitted starting the fire, which caused $75,000 damage to the chapel, because "they wouldn't let me teach Sunday School."

Klansmen's Trial Is Postponed

Soperton, Ga., June 13 (U.P.)—Three men whose Ku Klux Klan hoods were snatched away by the Mayor of Soperton were tried here today on loitering charges, but the judge postponed a verdict.

Mayor Pro-Tem James T. Waller, a turpentine and cotton warehouse operator, was called to the bench when Mayor James Peterson agreed to disqualify himself from acting as recorder.

Waller heard testimony only from one of the accused men and from the police chief and a woman who said she was frightened when she saw five Klansmen on the streets the night of May 21.

Peterson did not testify. He had ordered the three men arrested after snatching off thier hoods.

Joe Greene, 38, a farmer, said he was just standing on the corner, directing traffic to a new Klan meeting place, when Peterson came up.

Czech Court Sentences 3 To Die as Spies

Prague, Czechoslovakia, June 13 (U.P.)—Three persons, including Dr. Dusan Slavik, son of the former Czech Ambassador to the United States, have been sentenced to death by the Bratislava court for espionage and high treason, a Communist newspaper reported today.

Slavik's father, Juraj, resigned as ambassador after the Communist coup of February, 1948, and was granted asylum in the United States.

The Bratislava Communist newspaper Pravda said the two others sentenced to death were Zivodar Tvarozek, former owner of a large cafe, and Margit Bohacova, not identified.

The younger Slavik was a member of the Czechoslovak Parliament before the Communist coup.

His father has been a member of the Council of Free Czechoslovakia, formed in Washington several months ago to combat communism. He heads the council's welfare committee for refugees.

Return to Italy Voted by Trieste

Trieste, (Tuesday) June 14 (AP).—Parties favoring the return of Trieste to Italy swept the free city's first municipal election Sunday.

Official returns early today gave the pro-Italian candidates 40 of the 60 city council seats.

The six pro-Italian parties received a total of 106,973 votes, to 61,136 for parties wanting to keep Trieste independent or place it under Yugoslavia.

The election held yesterday to pick a 60-man city council was the first free balloting here in 27 years.

House Passes Bill to Increase District Pay

employes covered by the teachers' salary law.

At the request of Rep. Davis (D., Ga.) the House approved two amendments sponsored by District officials. One authorizes the commissioners to extend the benefits of the $330 retroactive pay to per diem employes. The second permits payment of a pro-rated share of the $330 to city employes who retired between last July and the time the bill takes effect. It also makes clear that the $330 will not be made the basis for recomputing payments since July, 1948, for overtime, night and holiday work.

For police and firemen, however, the bill does add to the $330 an 8 per cent allowance in lieu of overtime and night differential pay.

Increases for Judges

2. The court pay bill would raise the chief judges of the Municipal Court and the Municipal Court of Appeals from $10,000 to $13,000 a year. Associate judges of Municipal Court would get increases from $9975 to $12,500. Associate Judges of the Municipal Court of Appeals would go up from $10,000 to $12,500. Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West said the bill would not affect the salary of a Juvenile Court judge, now $10,000.

3. For widows of police and firemen, the monthly pension would be raised from the present $60 to $125, and for each dependent child, the monthly payment would go up from $10 to $25. Children's payments now end when they are 16; under the bill the payments would continue until the children are 18.

The bill also increases the retirement and relief deductions paid by police and firemen from the present 3½ per cent to 5 per cent.

4. A separate bill revising the Teachers' Salary Act of 1947 would raise the salaries of veteran school teachers with a master degree to a top of $3500 effective as of July 1, 1947. The measure is designed to place these veteran school teachers, 140 in all, on a salary par with experienced teachers with masters' degrees who have been newly hired by the District schools.

The sick leave bill would permit District teachers to have one day of sick leave a month, cumulative at the rate of 10 days a year to a maximum of 60 days. When teachers take such leave, the District, not the sick teacher, would pay for the services of a substitute.

House approval of the following bills calling for changes in the District code sent the measure to the White House. They would:

1. Let legal notice be served by publication in annulment actions.
2. Provide for enforcement of court orders for payment of temporary and permanent maintenance.
3. Permit personal service of legal notice in uncontested will cases upon persons outside the District.
4. Label divorce suits "complaints" instead of "petitions."
5. Permit settlement of estates six months after the personal representative of the deceased person is qualified by the court.
6. Limit to one year the time for filing a caveat to a will.
7. Call for court appointment of an attorney to defend uncontested annulment cases.
8. Provide a simplified procedure and a family allowance in settlement of small estates.

We cheer for champion teams at sport,
Plane and tank-building teams in war;
Let's look at a team that fills the Home Plate—

He raises cattle, lambs and hogs—
Farmer to Packer to Store.

But pigs is pigs and steers are steers
Till they reach the Packer's door;
He changes them into "eating" meat—
Farmer to Packer to Store.

Last man, but not least, on the meat parade,
(You see him each week, once or more)

AMERICA'S MEAT SUPPLY TEAM CAN TAKE PRIDE IN THESE FACTS

The vigor, productivity and healthy outlook of Americans come from a diet built around meat.

The soil, America's most precious physical asset, is conserved and rebuilt by new emphasis on livestock farming.

ON THE TEAM

Not only the people pictured above, but many others are important members of the Meat Team—the transportation people who keep meat animals rolling into the market places and meat rolling out to the far corners of the country . . . the stockyards people, in public markets, who keep "open house" for the farmer's animals, and the commission man who sells them promptly and to the highest bidder . . . the wholesalers, sausage makers, meat canners, salesmen and others who make it possible for your store to have a wide variety of meat any time you shop.

Wheat Agreement Ratified in Senate

By The Associated Press

The Senate yesterday ratified an international wheat agreement which sponsors said would provide an export market for 168 million bushels of American wheat a year for four years.

The Senate acted by voice vote, after several members, including Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), had expressed misgivings about the pact. Vandenberg called it "the partial equivalent of state trading on an international scale."

A similar agreement last year died because the United States failed to ratify it.

Forty-one nations worked out the agreement last March—the United States and four other exporters of wheat, and 36 wheat-importing nations. Russia and Argentina, both big exporters, are not in the pact.

Under the agreement, the five exporting nations are to ship 456 million bushels annually to the 36 importers. The maximum price would be $1.80 a bushel; the minimum would scale down from $1.50 this year to $1.20 in 1952-53.

Senator Elbert Thomas (D., Utah), leading the drive for ratification, told the Senate that in order to offer wheat this year at a $1.80 top, the United States will have to pay out about 84 million dollars in subsidies. He predicted, however, that the need for a subsidy will "decline or disappear" during the remaining three years the agreement runs.

In expressing misgivings about the treaty, Vandenberg said:

"Even this much state trading may call forth the demand for an expansion of the system to other commodities."

Senator Lodge (R., Mass.) announced he was voting for the pact, but at the same time speculated whether it might not be better to keep surplus wheat in this country and build up what he called the "ice box supply" of milk, chickens, eggs and other farm products.

Slash Voted In All Items

it would take a two-third vote of both Houses to override him.

The resolution carefully confined the cuts to the Executive branch. That means Congress itself and the Judiciary would be exempt.

The two dissenting votes were cast by Senators Russell B. Long (D., La.) and Glen Taylor (D., Idaho).

The names of these 19 sponsors appear on the measure: McClellan, Tydings, Wherry, Reed (R., Kans.), Bridges, Eastland (D., Mo.), Ferguson (R., Mich.), Ives (R., N. Y.), McCarthy (R., Wis.), Mundt (R., S. Dak.), O'Conor (D., Md.), Schoeppel (R., Kans.), Mrs. Smith (R., Me.), Byrd, Russell (D., Ga.), Fulbright (D., Ark.), Douglas (D., Ill.), Wiley (R., Wis.) and Hoey (D., N. C.).

McCarran's proposal to trim 740 million dollars from Marshall Plan outlays, a cut of about 18 per cent in the $4,198,200,000 ECA budget, was broken down this way:

Food and other consumers goods, 183 million dollars.

Cotton and wool fibers, 134 million dollars.

Capital equipment and industrial materials, 423 million dollars.

McCarran insisted the cuts were neither "drastic nor arbitrary." He said Hoffman "would be justified in going along with them." Hoffman, however, has made clear he regards four billion dollars as the minimum needed to do the job. The proposed cut would trim the program to $3,358,200,000.

A detailed report to the Appropriations Committee by McCarran's Watchdog Committee staff argued that contrary to ECA estimates, Britain, France, Ireland and Norway do not need to import more food and other consumer goods than they did in 1948-49.

It cited an ECA "overestimate" for natural fibers, in view of "the general filling up of markets" and the "unlikelihood" participating countries will export an increased volume of textiles to each other.

McCarran proposed to "hold back" 50 per cent of ECA dollars for capital equipment because "ECA does not yet itself know what to do about plant construction" in major industries in Europe.

U. S. Anxious About Market For Crops, FAO Report Says

Paris, June 13 (NYHT).—The 18-nation council of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization, opening a two-week conference here today, heard a warning that the United States, the greatest of the food exporters, was becoming "increasingly anxious about securing markets."

Sir Herbert Broadley, the FAO's deputy general director, told the council that improved European harvests and the international effort to reduce dollar imports were responsible for Americans fearing they might lose overseas customers. But the threat of reduced production in the United States and Canada must be forestalled, he said.

The North American surplus still was an urgent requirement in underfed areas, Sir Herbert said. To keep American farmers from planting less, he said the FAO would have to adopt some scheme at its autumn meeting at Havana.

Norris E. Dodd, director general of the organization, reported on the largest of the regions where near-starvation diets are commonplace. The former U. S. Undersecretary of Agriculture had just made a three-month tour of the Far East. "Relative abundance" could be achieved there with the introduction of more modern methods, he said.

Mail Fraud Indictment Is Dismissed

Judge Richmond B. Keech of District Court yesterday dismissed an indictment charging Mr. and Mrs. Bryson de Haas McCloskey, 1316 L st. nw., with mail fraud in advertising for bids for exclusive franchises in the sale of a new-type automobile.

The indictment was dismissed after Assistant United States Attorney Cecil R. Heflin declared that the true bill did not charge the offense, if any, that the McCloskeys committed. Heflin said he was studying the matter to determine whether a reindictment should be attempted.

According to Defense Attorney Wesley E. McDonald, the McCloskey couple was forced to spend more than two weeks in jail when they could not make bail which was set at $2000 each and later reduced to $1500.

McDonald said that the defendants advertised widely that they would grant for $500 exclusive territorial franchises for the sale of a three-wheel, lightweight automobile called "Mimi," to be produced by the Publix Motor Car Co.

Brannan Plan Delay Sought

a big corn crop, 2½ billion bushels. People talked about the curse of abundance. Last year we produced well over 3½ billion bushels. Must our abundance again become a curse? Must we sit by idly, and let it happen again? Must we fail? I say the answer is no."

For the first time Brannan tore into the present Hope-Aiken farm bill. He declared that:

"First it was not studied by the Agriculture Committee of the House before it was passed. The record shows it was reported out of conference committee after repeated deadlocks and was passed with the reservation that it would be studied later and revised if necessary.

"Second, it was passed in a great hurry in the dark hours of a Sunday morning when the Eightieth Congress was trying to wind up its chores so that the Republican members could go to their party convention.

"Third, although it was hailed as a great new long-range program, it was in reality a series of amendments to the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938—a minimum gesture toward modernizing the Democratic program of the '30's when we were still struggling to gain back the prosperity that was lost in the depression.

"It was a me too program with variations."

Brannan's comments were echoed by Vice President Barkley at the afternoon session before 2500 farmers — many Production and Marketing Administration officials.

Barkley declared that the Republicans had "tried their hand at an agricultural policy. They not only tried their hand," he declared, "but they also tried the patience of the American farmer." The result, he said, was the revolt of the Midwest Republican farmer against the party last fall.

Democrats Predict Defeat of 20 in House

Des Moines, Iowa, June 13.—Midwest Democratic leaders today predicted that next year they would defeat at least 20 Republican Representatives in their States.

Jake More, Iowa State chairman, said his State will defeat Representative Cunningham of Des Moines, and perhaps one more. Other chairmen said the following will be beaten in 1950:

Minnesota, Andresen.
Wisconsin, Lawrence H. Smith, Glenn R. Davis and O'Konski.
Illinois, Simpson, Vursell and Bishop.
Michigan, Blackney and Bennett.
Indiana, Mrs. Harden and Earl Wilson.
Ohio, Frederick C. Smith and Clevenger.
Kansas, Scrivner, Meyer and Wint Smith.
Nebraska, Curtis.
South Dakota, Lovre.
Montana, D'Ewart.
Wyoming, Barrett.

False Propaganda Charged By Aiken

Senator Aiken (R., Vt.), yesterday accused the Agriculture Department of peddling "propaganda" and of making "false" statements to promote the Administration's new farm program.

Aiken told the Senate a 10-page document which he said the department has given wide distribution "is purely and simply propaganda designed to promote a political plan of prosperity for farmers."

The farm program to which Aiken referred was drafted by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan. It has been submitted to Congress in legislative form.

Aiken said he knows of "no provision of law which authorizes the distribution of this document, nor do I know what appropriation by the Congress could ethically be used to finance its preparation and distribution."

Plane Crash Kills 3 Persons in Wichita

Wichita, Kans., June 13 (U.P.).—Three persons were killed here today when their plane crashed in squally weather.

The victims were Russ Prater, 40, millionaire housing contractor; Austin M. Cowan, 63, a former Kansas Supreme Court justice, and his wife, Mrs. Edwina Cowan, 63, a nationally known child psychiatrist.

Time Is Of The Essence

Only extraordinarily good management will prevent the District home-rule bill from being caught in the kind of log jam that killed it a year ago. The pressure on Congress for national legislation becomes more severe each week. It must be obvious to everyone that each day of delay jeopardizes the chance of the bill being enacted at the present session. That would mean not only absentee rule in the Nation's Capital for another year, it would also impose upon Congress another year's crop of petty bills for the District of Columbia.

Chairman McMillan of the House District Committee has expressed hope that hearings of the home-rule bill can be held this week. Civic organizations can cooperate by impressing upon the committee the urgency of the matter and by keeping their testimony brief when the hearings get under way. The issue has been thoroughly threshed out. The District's disfranchised people are now interested in action rather than words. The cause can best be promoted, in our opinion, by carrying before the House committee a united community-wide demand that the bill be sent to the floor where the outlook for its enactment seems to be very favorable.

No Place To Bargain

The Civil Service Commission is reconsidering Congressman Rhodes' bill that would require the heads of government agencies to confer with employe organizations on working conditions, safety, granting of leave, promotions, rates of pay and reduction of force. Recently the bill was cleared by both the Budget Bureau and the CSC. Then suddenly both agencies appeared to see its implications and withdrew their approval. Certainly it requires more than routine scrutiny before any further action is taken.

While the bill does not say that agency heads must enter into collective bargaining with employe organizations, it seems to us to carry that implication. There can be no quarrel with the principle that organizations of Federal employes shall be free to present their grievances without interference or coercion. But the bill goes on to provide for punishment of any official who might interfere with the exercise of that right. This seems to us an utterly unnecessary and possibly dangerous club to hang over the heads of administrators. More serious is the implication that agency heads can bargain on rates of pay, promotions and so forth. With salary scales in the Government necessarily governed by Congress, and working conditions largely prescribed through the Civil Service system, enactment of such a bill might result in much waste of time in "negotiations" that could lead nowhere.

While that door ought to be left wide open to useful discussion of working conditions, it would be a mistake, in our opinion, to take this step toward collective bargaining in the classified civil service, as we have long argued.

Protest To Britain

The State Department has asked the British government to reconsider the five-year trade pact just concluded with Argentina which commits both countries to deliver certain specified commodities in such quantities and on such terms as to equalize overall purchases from and sales to each other. Officials of the State Department protest that this kind of bilateral agreement discriminates against American trade with Argentina and conflicts with the objectives of the ITO charter, signed but not yet ratified by Great Britain and the United States.

Unquestionably the pact puts obstacles in the way of a return to the kind of multilateral nondiscriminatory system of world trade that is the goal of American policy and the professed aim of the British. However, the present acute shortage of dollars has compelled the British to resort to all sorts of expedients to finance imports and expand exports, notably bilateral agreements of a restrictive nature calling for an exchange of goods against goods. American officials no doubt appreciate the need for some temporary arrangement with Argentina that will enable the British to obtain meat and other essential supplies from that country. The chief ground for complaint is that the agreement covers too long a period. In five years the British will, we hope, be able to expand their exports sufficiently to cover their trade deficits, dispense with American dollar aid, and restore the convertibility of their currency. Then they will be in a position to buy and sell in free markets on a multilateral basis.

Meantime opportunity should be given to review the situation and gradually slough off restrictions as recovery progresses. A five-year agreement would delay, perhaps unnecessarily, a return to unfettered trading, strengthening Britain's favored position in Argentina at the expense of American exporters. For that reason, the State Department is justified in urging modification of the five-year pact.

Gossip And The FBI

Dr. Edward U. Condon's assertion that "any American can be slandered, his name ruined, his career blasted by any other person who chooses to relay malicious gossip to the FBI" is a charge of the gravest sort. If true, it means that we have traveled a long way toward the loss of cherished liberties. If not true, then Dr. Condon himself is throwing mud in much the same fashion that the Committee on Un-American Activities threw mud at him.

It is an unquestioned fact that the FBI assembles a great deal of gossip and unsubstantiated evidence. When this is dragged out into the light of day, the reputations of innocent persons may be gravely damaged. Dr. Condon has good reason to be sensitive over the malicious use of such information. But misuse of unsubstantiated evidence does not alter the fact that every investigator must take advantage of hearsay and gossip in trying to track down the facts. An FBI agent who did not record clues, tips and suggestive facts bearing upon an important case would not be worth his salt.

It is well to remember that the FBI does not investigate every complaint made to it. If a complaint appears to be merely malicious, no investigation whatever is made. As we understand the operations of the FBI, the first question asked when a complaint comes in is whether, if the report should prove true, the conduct complained of would constitute an offense over which the FBI would have jurisdiction. If so, an investigation is made. The agents who conduct these investigations are sometimes indiscreet in the type of questions they ask, and it seems to us that they should exclude a vast number of trivialities that have no bearing on the case at hand. But it is a fact that the hearsay and evidence they collect are overwhelmingly favorable to the average individual investigated. The favorable and unfavorable facts go into the file together.

More important is the fact that the FBI's files have heretofore been kept strictly confidential. A number of criminal charges related to security have been dropped because of fear that the court would order secret data spread upon the record. In Chicago an FBI agent has been cited for contempt for refusing to yield a confidential file. And it is fresh in the public memory that the Department of Justice resisted the opening of FBI files in the Coplon case. If Dr. Condon feels that an apology is due his wife in the light of these facts, he should obviously seek it from Judge Reeves instead of FBI Director Hoover.

The secret FBI report incidentally "indicated that Emily Condon and Morton Kent have met concerning Sotiroff at which time Kent was furnished with Sotiroff's address in New York." Sotiroff, suspected of being a Russian agent, is the subject of the report. The report itself suggests that Mr. Kent may have been attempting to use Sotiroff as a sales entry to the United Nations. In the light of this and Dr. Condon's explanation, it may be assumed that nothing more than a prospective business transaction was involved. But any investigative agency under obligation to cope with the widespread Soviet espionage in this country would be naive to close its eyes to facts of this sort. Certainly every conceivable safeguard ought to be taken to prevent the disclosure of such undigested bits of information that may reflect upon the reputations of innocent citizens. Nevertheless the FBI could not ignore such data without failing in its duty in connection with our national security. In this instance it looks as if the previous injustice to Dr. Condon has led him into making excited charges that only confuse a very grave problem.

Pacific Rule

President Truman recently ordered full speed ahead in turning the islands of Guam and American Samoa over to civilian administration. "Full speed," of course, is not very fast in matters of this sort. Guam and Samoa have been under Navy control since they were acquired by the United States about 50 years ago, and pressure to give them civilian rule has made small progress until recently.

Actually, the President cannot alter the situation by himself. The decision is in the hands of Congress whether and when these Territories shall be given organic acts allowing them self-governing status somewhat similar to that of Puerto Rico. An Administration bill for this purpose was introduced early this month and a hearing was almost immediately held by the subcommittee on Territorial and Insular Affairs. Secretary Krug suggested that a visit to the islands would provide the Congressmen with conclusive evidence in favor of the bill, while also intimating that sufficient evidence is already at hand.

A trip to the Pacific islands as the guests of the taxpayers is always attractive and first-hand inquiry is better than conclusions reached at a distance. But we doubt that a congressional survey is necessary in this instance. The time has come when civilian rule for these islands ought not to be further postponed for the sake of squeezing in another junket.

The President has rightly instructed the Interior and Navy Departments to proceed with plans and a timetable for the transfer of authority "regardless of the status of pending legislation." "It is the announced purpose of this Government," he said, "to accord civil government and a full measure of civil rights to the inhabitants of its Pacific territories." We cannot forever put off making good on this promise without losing our reputation for good faith. The United States kept its promise to the Philippines. We should be just as careful in our relations with the other island peoples.

Air Rights

It is difficult to avoid the conclusion that the United States gave up more than it won in the new air agreement with Canada. This is not, however, a reason to regard the accord as unfair. For the United States was in a position where it owed some concessions to Canada as a token of the smoothness with which the American and the Canadian strategy has been dovetailed. Moreover, negotiations were imperative because the recent incorporation of Newfoundland into the Canadian Dominion canceled the previous agreement with Great Britain for traffic rights at Gander.

The principal Canadian gain is the right to fly between New York and Montreal. Since 1926 this route has been a monopoly of Colonial Airlines. Colonial is, of course, opposed to the agreement, because it is concerned with its economic future and the New York-Montreal run is its only profitable route. But it is not permissible to acknowledge that the right to connect the two major cities of the United States and Canada should be restricted to one American company. Adjustment here was long overdue. Indeed, competition may put Colonial on its toes. And Colonial's argument that it now may require an additional million dollars in subsidy is countered by the fact that American carriers have been taking more than a million dollars in traffic out of Gander which might have been lost without the agreement.

Other new Canadian routes—to the Caribbean via Tampa and to Australasia via Honolulu—are more impressive on paper than as actual traffic diverters. While the chief new American route—nonstop from New York to Toronto—may be overrated, the United States gained in other particulars. It induced Canada, for example, to adhere to the principle of bilateral agreements established at Bermuda in 1946—a principle which the Dominion had heretofore opposed.

Some objection has arisen over the secrecy of the negotiations. In one instance the Civil Aeronautics Board seemingly was less than frank in discussing the matter, though this may have been due to misunderstanding. The airlines concerned, however, did have an opportunity to present their case and discuss probable concessions, and a genuine effort was made to keep them informed up to the point of agreement. Moreover, it is impossible to negotiate in a goldfish bowl, and more publicity might have had the result of pressuring the United States into making more concessions. Nor is the idea of an executive agreement, instead of a treaty, a new one. It is the procedure the United States has followed in 36 instances since the Bermuda conference.

In essence the controversy boils down to one main question: Can the United States expect to maintain international friendships and maximize air travel if it insists on protecting its own air carriers to the exclusion of the legitimate interests of the Nation at large and other nations?

A measure of order now has returned to Bolivia after the gruesome wave of murder and violence that started with a strike in the tin mines. The government has arbitrated the strike, and the miners have returned to their jobs—incidentally, with wages that are relatively good by local living standards. But the factors underlying the fracas that brought Bolivia to the verge of civil war have not been removed. Authoritative reports indicate that the real instigators of the violence were members of the fanatical MNR, or National Revolutionary Movement, which held Bolivia as a Fascist dictatorship under the bloody Gualberto Villaroel during the war.

Despite the fact that the post-Villaroel government in Bolivia has been of the social-democratic type and has advanced the cause of labor, MNR zealots sought subtly to fan the grievances of the miners with the hope of turning the strike into a revolution. Happily, they were thwarted in this instance, but the MNR remains a formidable foe, as do similar groups in other Latin countries. The task of diplomacy is to recognize that the threat to democratic institutions comes from the right as well as the left—and that in their hatred of constitutional government, not to say Uncle Sam, the Communists and the extreme rightists form a single team.

"Hoover, J. Q. Adams"

In my article published June 2 I said "one former President and so far as I know only one has shown how unreasonable and unnecessary it is to discard our high officials," and I cited John Quincy Adams as the only former President who had sought election to Congress.

I have received a number of letters from correspondents pointing out that Andrew Johnson tried to be elected to Congress in 1872, after he had ceased to be President, but was defeated, but that in 1874 he was elected United States Senator and took his seat on March, 1875. He served only one session because he died on July 31, 1875.

Education And The Army

From a letter in your column on June 7, signed by "Taxpayer," I quote: "And why should the young second lieutenant make more than $300 per month? His civilian counterpart, the young college graduate, starts in industry at less than that."

What about the college graduates, most of whom have from one to five years practical experience, who were drafted under the Selective Service Act of 1948? These men start at $75 a month and under the present inflexible system of advancement adhered to in the Army, the most they can expect to get before their 21 months term is up is a raise to $100.

The Army advertises loudly about how it needs skilled men in this new postwar Army. True, it takes a doctor or a dentist just out of school, presents him with a first lieutenant's commission. Any other college graduate, even with as much as five years of invaluable practical experience, is condolingly given a monthly pay of $75 and told if he is lucky, in 18 months he may get up to $100 a month.

Vivisection Hearings

The June 4 article of Marquis Child's is unworthy of Mr. Childs' well established reputation for accuracy and veracity. I quote from Mr. Childs' article, to which I have referred: "A Senate subcommittee has been plagued with the problem of the District dog pound. Fanatical anti-vivisectionists are pushing a bill that would deprive medical schools in Washington of animals essential for research. So for several days Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine holds hearings in whether the pound is clean and whether the dogs are happy there or whether they should be sacrificed to science."

The bill on which hearings were held for parts of two days was a bill in which a group of doctors undertook to slip over a proposal for taking peoples' personal property, putting the dogs or cats in the pound and after 48 hours sending them off to the torture chambers of various medical schools in this city. The question of the conduct of the pound came in only incidentally through the offer of one of the humane societies to take over the operation of the pound and the only question as to the condition in the pound was the testimony of a veterinarian, who was himself attacked in the record as being notorious for his cruelty to animals. It was a question of the anti-vivsectionists resisting this cruel law rather than the anti-vivisectionists trying to force over some measure which would take away from the doctors some right that they now possess.

It was pointed out to the subcommittee that the doctors' bill authorized the confiscation of private property without due process of law. I did not participate myself in the hearings, but if I had I would have stated flatly that if any dog of mine was taken under such a statute I would law them to the highest court in the land.

"52-20 Club"

Recently the Young Progressives of America picketed the White House, clamoring for a continuation of the "52-20 Club," the weekly unemployment payments provided by Congress as a temporary aid to jobless veterans returning from the service.

Demonstrators carried a coffin to symbolize the forgotten veteran, and displayed apples as they would when the relief provisions expired.

The whole thing reminded the observer of the movie cartoon grasshopper who chirped, "The world owes me a living." Not limited to former servicemen, the philosophy increasingly prevails that Government benefits cost nothing, that each individual group of citizens is entitled to such doles at the expense of the taxpayer, who is someone else.

Most veterans who joined the "club" honestly needed the respite it gave them while they found work. Some, unfortunately, seem to prefer $20 weekly as the wages of idleness to the higher prevailing salaries in almost every field of labor.

Forrestal Memorial

Immediately after Secretary Forrestal's death, two memorials were proposed in his honor. One was to rename the Pentagon and the other somehow to label the impending bureaucratic reorganization in his name. I would suggest that a far nobler memorial could better associated with the name of Forrestal. Such a memorial would be a Forrestal health foundation dedicated to the better cure of our mentally ill and to a better insight into an illness certainly as important and as serious as cancer, heart disease or tuberculosis.

It would remind all men that even the strongest and ablest can crack under sufficient strain and by so doing would remove the attitude of secrecy and shame which still undeservedly continues to enshroud the problem of mental illness. And simply because sick people are unable to fight for freedom—or indeed to appreciate its virtues—such a foundation would be one dedicated to what he died for—national defense.

K. H.

With regard to giving the structure which houses our highest offices of defense the name of "The Forrestal Building," I would gladly go along with the many members of Congress and others who are in favor of it. But even such a memorial would be meaningless if we did not back up our gestures with deeds.

We are involved in a struggle with stupifying and soul-destroying forces of militant communism. Our task is now to join forces with all freedom-loving people, holding fast to the belief that we shall win world-wide peace at last without the fearful holocaust of another great war. Such a victory would be the most fitting memorial to all our honored dead, not the least of whom is our great first Secretary of Defense.

Secrecy On The B-36

It might be well for the Joint Chiefs of Staff to sit down and educate us common people as to the proper definition of "security," the smoke screen through which they blushingly thrust forth their decision against the Navy Banshee—Air Force B-36 test.

Frankly, I am most confused. Some time ago, a group of Air Force officers acquainted with strategic planning turned over to a magazine writer a list of selected bombing targets should war break out with Russia. This was not considered as disclosure of information detrimental to the national welfare, since it all appeared with the blessing of the Air Force in minute detail on the pages of a national periodical.

But when Congress reared up on its haunches to ask who the brash brass had been, the reply from the Secretary of the Air Force stated their names could not be divulged because of—you guessed it—"security reasons."

Similarly, when time came around for the passing out of congressional appropriations, capabilities of the B-36 to fly at 40,000 feet at 400 miles an hour—together with countless other operational details that must have given writer's cramp to half the Reds in this country—were not withheld for reasons of security. For this well-timed gem of strategy, the Air Force received a billion-dollar chunk for buying more of its pet planes.

Now, however, when there are allegations as to the worth of the emphasis on long-range bombers at the expense of tactical support for our troops and the fighter defense of this country, the flow of information is suddenly cut off. Security of the Nation steps in.

Was the Air Force falsely convinced by its own fighters that the B-36 was invulnerable? Its best operational interceptor reaches 40,000 feet in 23 minutes—far too slow in approach and maneuverability to damage the B-36. This is hardly an assurance that other countries have been equally remiss in developing fighter planes.

If the Navy Banshee can climb to 40,000 feet in 6 or 7 minutes, why hasn't the Air Force an equally good plane?

By their denial of the Navy request to pit the Banshee against the B-36, the Joint Chiefs of Staff presumably realized the fighter would puncture the carefully laid myth of the big bomber. If this is so, they are committing a disservice to the public confidence in our war capabilities.

The "security" reason is at best a shallow excuse. Security is the safeguarding of national secrets of value to a potential enemy. Security is not and never should be interpreted as the right to cover up the red faces of governmental officials, civilian or military.

Hold the tests in secrecy, if need be, but let an honest evaluation be made and an honest answer be given to the taxpayers as to whether the B-36 is a costly figment of wishful thinking or a formidable weapon for the Nation.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

School Book Probe

PRODDED recently for inactivity, the House Un-American Activities Committee seems to have decided to start on a new trail. That is as good an explanation as any for the remarkable step just taken by the committee.

A letter has gone out signed by the Chairman, Representative John S. Wood of Georgia, to nearly every college and university in the country and to every public school system. It requests lists of textbooks now being used, along with the authors of the texts.

This first came to light when the heads of several institutions telephoned to Washington to try to find out what was behind the demand. The letters went to large privately endowed institutions, such as Harvard, Wellesley and Vassar, as well as to State tax-suported schools.

THE SMALLER institutions and the high school and grade school systems were asked for lists of all the texts used. To the larger institutions the request was somewhat narrowed down, as the letter indicates:

"The Committee on Un-American Activities is desirous of obtaining lists of textbooks and supplementary reading — with names of authors—in use in our educational institutions throughout the country in the fields of American literature, geography, economics, government, philosophy, history, political science and any other of the social science group. Since we have immediate need for this material, the committee will very much appreciate your cooperation in making this material available to us at the earliest possible date."

What led up to this request is revealing of the fear and suspicion that today border on hysteria. It is the climax of what seems to me to be a concerted drive to put curbs on the right of free inquiry.

For some years the Un-American Activities Committee has been under pressure to investigate American education to determine whether "subversive" doctrines are being taught in the Nation's schools. For the most part, the pressure has come from those who tend to regard as "subversive" anything that deviates slightly from the propaganda of the National Association of Manufacturers.

In some instances they are super-heated patriots of advanced years who looked on the whole Roosevelt New Deal as part of a Communist plot. Others are cynical opportunists deliberately whipping up fears about education in order to serve their own political ends, which in some cases are just as subversive as communism.

Under the Republicans for the two years of the Eightieth Congress, the committee resisted this pressure. Smarter members, such as Representative Richard M. Nixon of California, realized that such a line of inquiry might stir a hornet's nest of resentment. And, furthermore, they were aware that a large and carefully trained staff would be necessary for such an investigation if it was to be anything more than a sort of junior edition of the Hitler book-burning in the heyday of the Nazis.

IF ALL the schools respond to the Un-American request, the volume of material coming in to the committee is likely to be large. That the present staff could analyze it intelligently is very doubtful. In about 30 States a board approves the textbooks for all public schools, but in the other States the choice is made by counties or local school boards.

What immediately precipitated the committee's letter was a petition from the National Council of the Sons of the American Revolution. The demand for an investigation of the Nation's textbooks was approved by the Sons at their last national convention. The Sons, even more nervous in their reaction to anything faintly "subversive" than the Daughters of the American Revolution, have about 20,000 members.

Chairman Wood plays down the letter. He says it is merely a staff request, and the committee will decide what to do about the Nation's textbooks when they see what the staff turns up in this preliminary inquiry.

In my opinion, it is an ominous move. Even if the committee decides not to determine what is American and what is un-American in the school books, it will further increase the fear and doubt that have a baleful effect on the morale of the American people.

If I were a member of Congress, I would hesitate a long time before I voted for Federal aid for education. Even though I believe such assistance necessary, I would be fearful of the long arm of the Federal Government thrust out to police all teaching. The strange thing is that those who oppose aid to education are also those who want Uncle Sam to become snooper and policeman on the thought-control beat.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

End This Disorderly Conduct

IT IS about time to consider whether, as the showy investigations are now conducted, we are combating Communist propaganda or providing it with superb material to frighten our friends and cheer up our opponents.

LIPPMANN

By various proceedings, all of them under official auspices of one kind or another, the world is now being told that (1) our principal military weapon, the atomic bomb, has been under incredible mismanagement, that (2) the principal means of delivering the bomb in case of war may have been selected by a combination of bad judgment and political corruption, and that (3) the Government of the United States is permeated with spies.

IT WOULD BE misleading, I agree, to test the effect of all this by what we would think and say if the impossible happened—if in Moscow investigating committees appeared which began to announce that the Red Army was incredibly mismanaged, that its tanks, artillery, or jet fighters were wrongly designed and mixed up with financing the party, that the Politburo and the bureaus of the government were full of fascist spies and capitalist fellow travellers. We should say hurrah, the monster is sick, victory is just around the corner, only fools will fear him, only fools will rely on him.

We should have some ground for our jubilation because such an assault on the prestige of the Soviet government could not happen unless the police state was in fact cracking up. In a free society like our own, when the prestige of the government is assaulted, it does not mean that the American system is cracking up. It means only that a fair number of crackpots have gotten further in our public life than they or the country deserve.

IT IS, however, not misleading to ask ourselves what we should think and do if, let us say, comparable charges were being made in the House of Commons. Suppose that in rapid succession we began to see parliament setting up elaborate and spectacular investigations which impugned the competence, or the honesty, or the loyalty of the department charged with the inner and vital defenses of Britain.

How would we feel about the value of an alliance with a Britain which the British parliament felt it must deal with in that fashion? And how ready would Senator Hickenlooper and the other guardians of our national virtue be to put their trust in the British partnership? Would they not be issuing mimeographed statements and shouting over the microphones to beware, beware, beware?

AFTER EVERYTHING has been said about the good work that good investigations have done, and how much better it is to publish everything rather than to suppress anything, the fact remains that these investigations are running hog wild. They are injuring not only individuals but the name and honor of the United States, and the very principles of free government.

For if the principles of freedom do not mean loyalty to truth and justice, responsibility to the public interest, a decent respect for one's neighbors, and some charity, then freedom will perish in its own home, having become nothing more than the license to subvert the moral foundations of freedom.

THIS GOVERNMENT, in view of the historic responsibility and the gigantic burden it bears, cannot be conducted in the kind of uproar which now prevails. Men cannot make the grave decisions of policy and administration which have to be made if at any hour of the day or night they have to stop thinking, stop planning, stop working in order to deny some new allegation, or to interrupt the public business to collect documents, memoranda, briefs, in order to prove their innocence to some Senator who has already convicted them.

Nor can the American people hope to understand their own interest and purpose, or measure their duty, or hold accountable their servants for wise laws and good government, if all the great questions are drowned in this sticky stew of rumor, innuendo and suspicion. The American people deserve something a great deal better than that from men who have sought their votes, and profess to represent them and to serve them.

And some fine day they will become sick and tired of the little ranting strutting men. Then they will insist that this disorderly conduct come to an end, and that the great decent majority in Congress reassert their rights and their dignity and their authority.

Taft Urges Action On Housing Bill

By Robert S. Allen

Senator Robert Taft yesterday squared off forcefully against the Republican leadership of the House on the public housing bill.

The head of the Senate GOP Policy Committee demanded prompt enactment of the long-stymied measure. Taft declared the legislation is urgently needed both for humanitarian and economic reasons.

Largely under the Ohioan's determined leadership, the Senate has twice passed a multi-billion dollar housing bill within the last year. The first measure was strangled in committee by the Republican leaders then in control of the House. Their continued opposition is chiefly responsible for the protracted deadlock on the issue in the House Rules Committee of this Congress.

Taft Mentions No Names

On a showdown vote last week, the four Republican members of the committee voted as a bloc against permitting the House to vote on a public housing bill.

Taft mentioned no names in his demand for enactment of a housing bill. He confined his remarks wholly to the pressing need for such legislation. But, inferentially, his statement was a sharp condemnation of the obstructionism of the Republican House leaders. His views directly countered every major argument voiced by these leaders against a public housing program.

"There is still a great need for low-cost housing," Taft said. "This need is not being met and it is up to Congress to do something about it without further delay. It takes time to get a great housing program under way, and the sooner we get at it the better it will be for the people who need such housing and the Nation's economy.

Says Construction Is Falling Off

"The economic situation is an added urgent reason why a big housing program should be launched without delay. Private housing on construction is falling off because builders are reaching the end of the market in high-priced homes. Public housing is the answer to stabilization of the construction industry. That is a key factor in maintaining prosperity and preventing a depression. A big public housing program would have a healthy psychological effect on the whole national economy."

Taft also advocated large-scale spending for public works as a means to avoid depressions. He pointed out that $3,261,000,000 is being appropriated for this purpose. This includes construction programs for the armed services.

"The only trouble with that sort of thing is," he said, "that it's hard to stop public works after conditions have become stable and pump-priming is no longer required."

Census Data Challenge Is Denied

President Truman's Council of Economic Advisors said yesterday its members and staff are agreed "to a remarkable degree" as to the economic situation and ways to deal with it.

In a formal statement, the council warned against "unauthorized rumors and speculations" pending its midyear report expected within the next month.

The statement was prompted in part by a published report saying its own staff of experts had challenged Census Bureau unemployment figures as too low.

The story, by Robert S. Allen, said the staff estimated the jobless at around 4,800,000 as compared to 3,289,000 reported by the bureau for the week ended May 14.

"Neither the council nor its staff," the statement said, "has challenged either the accuracy or the adequacy of the unemployment figures of the Bureau of the Census. We do not have independent sources for such data, but in all cases secure our statistics from other agencies of Government."

The President's Calling List

By The Associated Press

10 a. m.—Senator Maybank (D., S. C.).

11:30—Leland Olds, Federal Power Commission.

11:45—Robert L. Johnson, chairman, Citizens Committee for Reorganization of Executive Branch of the Government.

12 noon— Col. Carroll Cone of Arkansas, a friend.

12:30—James E. Webb, Acting Secretary of State.

3:30—Army Secretary Gordon Gray.

First Home Completed In Lidice

Lidice, Czechoslovakia, June 13 (U.P.).—A sturdy new brick house stood today on a hill above the rubble of this village the Nazis couldn't destroy.

The first house to rise here since the Germans laid waste to Lidice seven years ago, it was unveiled yesterday in ceremonies punctuated by speeches attacking "Anglo - American imperialism" and "warmongering."

The key to the house was handed to the Lord Mayor of Prague as 140 widows and 16 orphans sat huddled in a cold, drenching rain.

The Lord Mayor will keep the key until the rest of a string of half-finished brick homes are ready for the return of the survivors of the village who were driven away by the Nazis in 1942 after all males 15 and older were massacred.

U. S., Norway Sign Pacts

The United States and Norway signed two treaties today designed to avoid double taxation on incomes and to prevent evasion of estate and inheritance taxes.

Citizens Group Urges Action On 'Hoover' Reorganization

A citizens committee yesterday picked up the gantlet of the now lapsed Hoover Commission and called on Congress for a little action on Government reorganization.

Following a conference with President Truman, Dr. Robert L. Johnson, president of Temple University and chairman of the Citizens "Hoover Report Committee":

1. Wrote a letter to Speaker Sam Rayburn saying there was "no reason" for delayed House action on the Senate-passed Tydings bill tightening up unification of the armed forces. The bill, tied up in the House Armed Services Committee, can save the Government a billion dollars a year, Johnson wrote.

Conference Deadlock

2. Told reporters Mr. Truman was "awfully concerned" about the fate of a bill giving him key authority to reorganize the Government. After passing both houses in different form, the bill is now deadlocked in conference. Dr. Johnson said Mr. Truman was anxious that no agencies be exempt and that his recommendations become law in 60 days unless both houses disapprove. The House bill virtually exempts a lot of agencies and the Senate bill provides only a one-house veto.

Even as Johnson received the press, the reorganization row broke anew at the Capitol. Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.), one of the Senate reorganization conferees, said the merger bill is "stalemated" and no further conferences are planned.

McCarthy blamed House conferees, led by Representative John W. McCormack (D., Mass.), and renewed his charge of a House "sitdown strike." The same charge last week by McCarthy drew from McCormack the reply that House conferees had gone "at least 80 per cent of the way in trying to bring about a compromise." McCormack blamed friends of the Army Engineer Corps, seeking to exclude that agency from reorganization, for much of the trouble.

Introduces 8 Bills

In the Senate, McCarthy introduced eight bills to carry out major recommendations of the Hoover Commission. He said the bills, including one setting up a new Department of Welfare, were designed to start the reorganization "ball rolling."

Senator Majority Leader Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.) told McCarthy he hoped House-Senate conferees will resume their talks because the President has "half a dozen" reorganization plans he wants to send to Congress. These can't become law until 60 days after they are submitted, and not then if Congress says "No."

Johnson, accompanied to the White House by Charles B. Coates, vice chairman of the citizens' committee, told newsmen the President was afraid of time running out on the bill. Johnson and Coates said they thought letters and telegrams sent by employes and friends of the Army Engineers, which build most of the congressional "pet projects," was at least a factor in the reorganization "battle."

Johnson said the citizens committee would continue to fight for approval of all of the Hoover recommendations, if it takes two or three years.

The citizens committee's letter to Rayburn on the Senate-passed Tydings armed services unification bill urged "earnestly that Chairman Vinson of the House Armed Services Committee move immediately to hold hearings looking toward a prompt and favorable vote."

"We feel sure that a vast majority of House members are eager to vote for its enactment," Johnson wrote.

Vinson Opposed Bill

Vinson has opposed the new service unification bill on grounds that it would be expensive and concentrate too much power "at the top."

Vinson said in a statement that the present unification law carries "ample authority" to make all of the savings claimed for the new one.

"The fact is that if such legislation is enacted it will unquestionably increase, not decrease, the cost of the National Military Establishment," said Vinson. "And it will, moreover, substantially remove the Congress and the American people from the basic problems of National defense, despite the Constitution-imposed mandate that the Congress be charged with such matters."

Railmen Bar British Plan To End Strikes

London, June 13 (U.P.).—Striking British railwaymen today rejected "with disgust" an offer of the nationalized Railways Administration to settel their "Sunday-only" strike.

At an open-air meeting, delegates representing 50,000 members of the National Union of Railwaymen passed a resolution condemning the "procrastination and delay" of the railways in dealing with their claims for higher wages and better working conditions.

The railwaymen asked a $2-a-week increase. It was met by a Government offer of a raise of 10 to 50 cents.

The resolution laid down a virtual ultimatum to the Labor Government and threatened if their demands were not met by July 4, "we shall call upon all London to 'work to rule' and strictly adhere to the 44-hour week."

Liverpool dockers returned to their jobs today, ending a 17-day strike that held up unloading of many food ships. The 8500 strikers voted to go back at a mass meeting last night.

In the north Glamorgan coal mines, 2000 men returned to work after striking for a week because of disagreement over working conditions.

Senate Group Clears Lodge's Electoral Bill

A proposed constitutional amendment that would divide each State's electoral vote for President in proportion to the popular vote was approved yesterday by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The amendment, sponsored by Senator Lodge (R., Mass.), was recommended to the Senate by a vote of 6 to 2. How individual Senators voted was not disclosed.

At present a presidential candidate usually receives the entire electoral vote of a State if he gets a plurality of the popular votes.

A rival candidate who got 40 per cent of the popular votes would get 40 per cent of the electoral vote.

As approved by the committee, the proposed amendment says the division of the electoral vote shall be carried to the third decimal point.

Under the proposed constitutional change the Electoral College would be abolished.

A similar proposed constitutional amendment has been approved by the House Judiciary Committee. To be written into the Constitution, the amendment must be approved by a two-thirds vote of both the House and the Senate and ratified by three fourths of the States.

Roosevelt to Take 'Hill' Oath Today

New York, June 13 (U.P.).—Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., will take the oath of office as a new Democratic Congressman in Washington Tuesday, he disclosed today.

The first of the late President's five children to seek public office, Roosevelt was elected to fill the seat in the House of Representatives left vacant by the death last March of veteran New Dealer Sol Bloom.

Nelson Foster Elected N.S.&T Vice President

By S. Oliver Goodman

Election of Nelson J. Foster to vice president of the National Savings & Trust Co. was announced yesterday by President Bruce Baird.

Foster

Foster has specialized in investment analysis and review and heads the trust company's investment research department. He became associated with N. S. & T. in May, 1932, was elected assistant secretary in January, 1941, and secretary in December, 1941.

Born in Lincolnia, Va., in 1904, Foster attended Episcopal High School in Alexandria, Va., and the American Institute of Banking. He is active in the work of the Fiduciaries Section of the District Bankers Association.

PLANS CAPITAL BOOST: A special meeting of stockholders of the Industrial Bank of Washington has been set for July 7 to vote on a proposal to increase capital stock to $150,000 from $100,000, President Jesse H. Mitchell announced yesterday.

MORE ON TRANSIT DEAL: Louis E. Wolfson, 37-year-old industrialist, plans to acquire 50,458 shares of Capital Transit Co. common stock. His three brothers, Sam W., Saul and Cecil, each will buy 12,500 shares. Other purchasers, all allied with the Wolfsons, are: J. A. B. Broadwater, Doran S. Weinstein and Jack Surasky, 5000 shares each; E. B. Gerbert, 4500 shares, and A. J. Rosenthal, 2000 shares. The total of 109,458 shares, or 45.61 per cent Capital Transit's outstanding stock will be sold by North American Co. at $20 a share, as reported Saturday. The financing of the Wolfsons' purchase is still subject to Securities and Exchange Commission's approval, and the latter agency is expected to call a hearing on this note aspect soon.

OUTING: Those red faces you'll notice today at the desks of savings and loan associations aren't from embarrassment. They're the result of exposure to sun at the annual outing yesterday of 225 members and guests of the District of Columbia Building and Loan League at the Prince Georges Country Club. A golfing contest for a cup awarded by the District Title Insurance Co. was the highlight, with a dinner and numerous door prizes following in the evening.

ODD LOTS: The Nation's oil industry has earmarked more than 2.1 billion dollars for its expansion and modernization program this year, the American Petroleum Institute estimates . . . Starting July 1, Southern Dairies, Inc., will distribute the Seabrook Farms brand of quick-frozen vegetables and fruits . . . Universal Pictures Co. reports a net loss of $465,242 for 26 weeks ended April 30, against net profit of $232,866 in the like 1948 period . . . Distillers Corp.-Seagrams Ltd. reported net of $29,615,570 or $3.38 a share for nine months ended April 30, against $46,289,211 or $5.28 in same period a year ago . . . Joseph E. Seagram & Sons, Inc., has filed with the SEC a proposed issue of 50 million dollars in 25-year debentures. Harriman Ripley & Co., Inc., is named to head the underwriting group.

Nats Trade Masterson to Bosox for Harris, Mele

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

WALTER MASTERSON has been looking through rose-tinted glasses since 1940, when an oculist discovered his need for spectacles and prescribed colored lenses. But not until yesterday when he found himself traded to the Red Sox did Masterson's world begin to assume truly roseate hues.

He couldn't win for the Nats with any consistency, as his mere 40 victories in eight seasons sorrowfully testify, but with the Red Sox Masterson will find happier circumstances, including more runs to work with. Pitching for a club with such as Ted Williams, Vern Stephens, Bobby Doerr, Johnny Pesky and Don DiMaggio to knock the runs in is more conducive to that tag-line—winning pitcher.

POVICH

Masterson has verged on greatness, even with the Nats, but achieved it only sporadically, like the time he came out of the Navy and 24 hours later beat Bob Feller, 1-0. Like other Washington pitchers, he has been the victim, until this year, of a lack of runs in his support.

The Red Sox apparently made full allowances for Masterson's meager number of wins, and the fact also that they personally licked him 10 times against five defeats in his major league career.

MASTERSON always was rated a better pitcher than his record shows. The Yankees started bidding for him four years ago, and never relaxed their ambition to get him, and the Red Sox have wanted him equally as long. They were promptly impressed, on occasion, with his ability to beat them both and envisioned him as a big winner on a better club.

In Masterson, the Red Sox are getting one of the better fastballers in the league, a smart pick-off man, and a fierce competitor. But as the Nats have learned to their anguish, he can be wild. There is no question, though, of his stomach for the battle. Too many times he has nursed slender leads all the way to get them home, and rarely did he miss a turn against the tough clubs, New York, Boston and Cleveland.

Pitching for the Boston club is more pleasant, but it is not without one important drawback, to be balanced against the greater run production of the Red Sox. In Fenway Park, Masterson will have to be pitching against two factors, the man at the plate and that short left field fence that invites home runs. There will be times when he'll wish he was working in the lengthier confines of Griffith Stadium.

CLARK GRIFFITH vows that no cash accrued to the Nats in the deal that brought Pitcher Mickey Harris and Outfielder Sam Mele in the Masterson swap, despite the desperation of the Red Sox to add pitching strength. He declares that he tried to get Mele from the Red Sox for two years but they always rejected a Masterson-Mele trade.

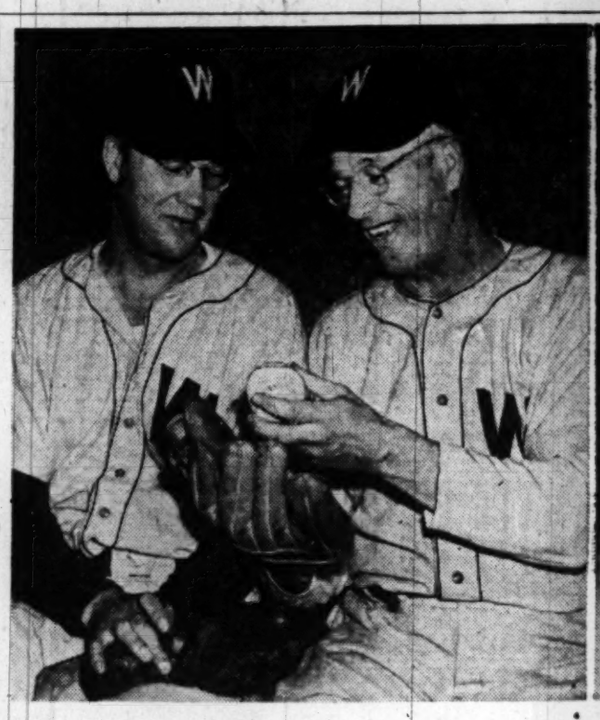
Mele, more than Harris, was the chief consideration for the Nats in the deal. Griffith has long had a passion for right-handed hitting outfielders and he views Mele as the type to do his club some good. The Red Sox, under Manager Joe McCarthy, showed no great fondness for Mele, however. After his excellent 1947 record, when he hit .302 under Manager Joe Cronin, McCarthy found little place for him in the Boston outfield and he hit .233 last season. This year he has seen virtually no action.

In fact, despite the availability of Mele, the Red Sox paid the Browns $100,000 and Stan Spence for Outfielder Al Zarilla. Even in a park made for right-handed hitters like Mele, the Red Sox preferred a left-handed batter like Zarilla. However, they have made mistakes before on ball players. They gave up Spence in 1942, and rued it for the next six years when he starred for the Nats.

IF MELE'S hitting is a bit suspect, he is a better than good ball player on other counts. He is an agile ball-hawk and brings to the Washington outfield its best throwing arm. The Nats have been at the mercy of left-handed pitching and Mele will offer a better balance.

The deal was another example of Griffith's custom of getting two-for-one. He expressed a new interest in Pitcher Mickey Harris as of two weeks ago when that left-hander beat the Indians, 5-2, on nine hits. Harris underwent an operation on his arm two years ago, and hasn't been a consistent winner since. The Nats routed him early in his last start here. But Griffith, who fancies himself as a savant of pitching, says "I like him."

Masterson, conceivably, could be a big winner in Boston. And then the complaints will be heard that Griffith out-foxed himself. But he sets up a reasonable defense in advance when he says, "We gave him a nine-year trial and his winning percentage with us was .377."



Outfielder Expected to Give Club Added Punch

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Cooperstown, N. Y., June 13.—Here in the birthplace of baseball, the Nats today hatched a trade with the Boston Red Sox which sent Pitcher Walter Masterson to the McCarthy men in exchange for Left-handed Pitcher Mickey Harris and Outfielder Sam Mele.

The deal, a straight player swap with no cash involved, was announced here by Vice President Calvin Griffith of the Nats.

Mele, whom the Nats hope will be the answer to their long search for a heavy hitting right-handed batting outfielder, and Harris will be in uniform for tomorrow night's game between the Nats and Browns at Griffith Stadium.

Griffith at the same time said that the Nats are dickering with Portland of the Pacific Coast League for an infielder and also hope to acquire a right-handed pitcher from Havana before the June 15 trading deadline expires. He declined to name either prospective Nat.

Nats' Roster Up to 24

The Masterson for Mele and and Harris trade has been in the works for about a week, young Griffith added, but wasn't consumated until this morning when President Clark Griffith gave the OK to Son-in-Law Joe Cronin, general manager of the Red Sox.

The acquisition of Harris and Mele brings the Nats up to 24 players, one under the league limit, but they hope to be able to add an infielder to the roster within the next two or three days.

With Eddie Yost incapacitated for at least two more weeks with an ankle injury, the Nats have been forced to alternate Coach Mark Christman and Infielder-outfielder Sherry Robertson at third, leaving the team with no spare infielder.

On paper it appears the Nats got the best of the deal, with the acquisition of Mele making it that way. The 26-year-old, 185-pound New Yorker batted .302 in his rookie year, 1947, with the Red Sox in 123 games as an outfielder-first baseman. He lashed out 12 home runs and drove in 73 tallies during his freshman season, and it was believed that the Red Sox had come up with a real find in the former NYU basketball star.

Last year, however, Mele reportedly incurred the disfavor of Manager Joe McCarthy, and slumped to .233 in 66 games. This season, Mele has seen practically no action.

Harris Has 2 Wins

The 31-year-old Harris, also a native New Yorker, has won two games and lost three for the Bosox this season. The 6-foot, 180-pound lefthander came up to the Sox in 1940 and experienced his biggest year with Boston in 1946, hurling 17 victories during Boston's pennant 1-1 winning season. He lost 9 that year.

The following season, however, trouble set in for Harris in the form of a sore arm and he hasn't completely recovered yet.

Manager Joe Kuhel, elated over Mele part of the trade, said he plans to use Harris as a starter. He becomes the third left-hander on the Nats staff, joining Mickey Haefner and Lloyd Hittle, newcomer from the Pacific Coast League.

Masterson, 29, was perennially on the verge of being a truly great pitcher, but never blossomed out. He joined the Nats from a Philadelphia sandlot team in 1939.

From a won and lost standpoint, his best season with the Nats was in 1941, when he won four and lost three. In 1947, the big fast-balling guy with the baffling change of pace hurled 34 consecutive scoreless innings, starting with a 16-inning job against the White Sox.

He had an 8-15 mark, beating the Yankees four times, in 1948, and he joins Boston with a 3-2 record

He Must Be Slipping . . .

Grove 'Lasts' Just 2 Innings but Wins, 7-1

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

The press could make only one claim to fame last night after dropping a 7-1 decision to a team of former major league stars in something resembling a baseball game at Griffith Stadium.

"We knocked Lefty Grove out of the box, didn't we?" one member of the losing team said with a sports writer's customary finality.

This, in the interest of accurate reporting, was not exactly true. The great southpaw of another day went to the showers of his own free will and with a 7-1 lead. At the time the conglomeration of sports writers, radio announcers and telecasters wasn't even threatening. As a matter of fact, Grove left after retiring the side in order in the second inning.

The press team just had a bad inning—the first. At the end of the 3½-inning affair, the first half of an Optimist Club-sponsored doubleheader for the benefit of the Boys Clubs of Washington, the press was wearing down its highly-publicized opponent. A good indication of this was that the press went out in the top half of the fourth, 1-2-3.

Del Webb, coowner of the New York Yankees, and Jack Bentley took a turn at flinging, but neither showed much. All they could do was keep the press scoring down—to nothing.

In the boys' club all-star game which followed, Washington defeated Baltimore, 2-1.

Oldtimers And Kids Have A Lot of Fun

By Tom Kelley—The Washington Post

Everybody had fun at Griffith Stadium last night as the Oldtimers defeated members of the press, radio and television, 7-1, in a four-inning benfit game for the Washington Boys Club. Nats Whip Pirates, 8-7, at Cooperstown Cooperstown, N. Y., June 13.—On Abner Doubleday Field, where baseball was first played 110 years ago, the Nats today showed the Pittsburgh Pirates how the game is supposed to be played, trimming the National Leaguers, 8 to 7.

Backed up by a 15-hit attack, which included a home run by Clyde Vollmer, rookie Dick Welk went all the way for the Griffs, turning a nine-hit job.

Despite homers by Wally Westlake, Eddie Bockman and Dixie Walker, the Nats wrapped up the exhibition with a three-run counterattack in their half of the fifth after the Pirates had scored four runs in their half of the inning to take a brief lead.

Vollmer's two-run homer featured the four-run Nat first inning at the expense of Southpaw Cliff Chambers while singles by Ralph Weigel, Gil Coan, Sherry Robertson and Ed Stewart, his third hit, produced the three big Nats runs in the fifth.

Bockman's three-run homer over the short fence in right highlighted the Pittsburgh four run fifth inning which sent the Bucs in front, 6-5.

IN SHORT—In pregame ceremonies, held in the baseball museum, plaques were unveiled to the latest members of the game's "Hall of Fame," Charles Gehringer, of Detroit; Jimmy (Kid) Nichols, of Boston Braves; Pie Traynor, of Pittsburgh; the late Herb Pennock, of the Yankees; and the late Mordecai Brown, of the Chicago Cubs . . . Earl Harrigan, of the American League Service Bureau, and Ford Frick, president of the National League, represented their respective leagues . . . Mickey Haefner will do the pitching for the Nats tomorrow night when they open a long home stand against the Browns . . .

Friend Tells Him

Masterson One of Last to Hear of Deal

Almost everybody knew that Walter Masterson had been traded to the Boston Red Sox before Walter heard about it.

Masterson returned to Washington last night from Detroit where the Nats played a doubleheader Sunday.

"I don't have a phone out in a new development where I live, and I didn't know about the deal until a friend came by as Mrs. Masterson and I were going for a ride. He told me about it," Walter said.

Mrs. Masterson expects her second child in September and she will remain in Washington.

"They say everything happens for the best," Walter replied when asked what he thought of the deal. "If we get into the World Series, that would sort of compensate for Mrs. Masterson not being able to go along to Boston."

Walter thinks it will be nice to pitch for a club that has as much batting power as the Red Sox, "but I'm not forgetting about that short leftfield fence up there," he said.

He will pay his parting respects to Clark Griffith today, pack his gear and join Boston Wednesday.

Bulldogs Get Bobby Layne

New York, June 13 (AP).—The professional football "war" sizzled like the weather today with the announcement that the Chicago Bears were sending Bobby Layne, T-formation quarterback, to their National League brothers, the New York Bulldogs, for a bundle of cash and two players.

His transfer to the Bulldogs means that Collins has landed the outstanding passer he has been seeking with which to battle the combined Brooklyn-New York club of the All-America Conference for the favor of local fans next autumn. The two teams from the rival leagues will be in direct and bitter competition for patronage on several Sundays.

During his desperate quest for a passing star, Collins also made overtures for Harry Gilmer, the Washington Redskins' prize rookie from Alabama who sat out his first pro season with injuries, and the Los Angeles Rams' veteran, Bob Waterfield.

Halas did not entirely strip himself of T-formation quarterbacks, as he still will have the once-matchless Sid Luckman,

Helen Dettweiler And Miss Hanson In Car Accident

Women golfers Helen Dettweiler, 5517 Grove st., Chevy Chase, and her guest, Beverly Hanson, of North Dakota, narrowly escaped serious injury in an auto accident yesterday near Wytheville, Va.

The two young stars recently competed in the National Celebrities tournament here and were driving to Oklahoma City for the Women's Western Open championship. Their car overturned on wet pavement near Wytheville and was badly damaged.

Miss Dettweiler was bruised and her shoulder and leg slightly injured.

Hippenstiel Bows At Montgomery

Montgomery, Ala., June 13 (AP).—Top-seeded Buddy Behrens of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., fought his way into the finals today of the Blue-Gray Tennis tournament.

Behrens defeated the Air Force champion, Col. Robin Hippinstiel of Washington, D. C., in the semi-finals, 5—7, 8—6, 6—1.

Giants Trade Cooper to Reds For Mueller

New York, June 13 (AP).—The New York Giants today traded catchers with Cincinnati, sending Walker Cooper to the Reds in exchange for Ray Mueller. The Giants said it was an even trade with no cash involved in the deal.

Cooper's trading came as no surprise. The 34-year-old receiver reportedly has been in Manager Leo Durocher's doghouse for some time.

He was bought from the St. Louis Carlinals on January 5, 1946, for $175,000 in one of the biggest money deals in baseball history. The deal with the Cards was made while Cooper was still in the Navy. He was discharged April 3, 1946, and joined the Giants at their training camp.

The Giants also announced that George Hausmann, 32-year-old second baseman who jumped to the Mexican League in 1946, will join the club tomorrow in Cincinnati.

American Lou, Rosecroft Win

'Rockpile' Yields Rockfish

Two Boats Get Equal Catch in Same Spot

By Ralph Murdock

RECENT REPORTS of excellent rockfish catches brought five bankers, one dairyman, a bricklayer and the writer to Solomon's Island. Two boats were hired to insure ample room for the fish and passengers. The two captains went into a huddle and the "Rockpile" near Point Patience was deemed the ideal spot for the haul.

Murdock

Within a half hour we were on the fishing grounds. The two boats were anchored alongside and a chum line was started with the ebb tide Four of the financiers occupied one boat—Stewart Bolton, Johnny Willson, Preston Ray and Tommy Thomas. The line-up on the second boat was: Ferdie Walter, Raymond Cox, Vernon Palmer and your scribe.

Johnny Willson hooked the first one. It only weighed ¾ of a found. Four gallons of grass shrimp at $4 a gallon was trickled overboard by the captains to get the big stripers in the mood, but the big rock would not be enticed.

AFTER 3½ HOURS the anchors were dragged in and the boats headed out into the bay ror hardheads and trout. Three croakers and one trout were taken outside. A southeaster came up and everyone headed for port. A fish inventory taken by the bank examiners on the way in showed 55 pan rock for both boats. Dividens were then declared for all but the writer because, as Ferdie Walter said, "You like to write about fish but we like to eat them."

THE CHESAPEAKE BAY Fishing Fair which runs from dawn September 16 to 10 p m Saturday, September 17 is now making preparations for the big affair It is often called a "Country Fair on Water." Everything on shore and afloat will be decorated Even the anglers are selecting loud colored shirts and colored hats Singing is one of the pastimes—organize yourself a barber shop quartet and you might win the famous Joe Rose Trophy for the best singing group

Rufus A. Horn, Vernon Taylor and Paul Miller of the Federal Trade Commission and Bud Cheney at the House Office Building caught 39 hardheads off Franklin Manor by drifting in 2½ hours. Rufus said, "We didn't run out of hardheads. We just ran out of bait." The champ scaled 3½ pounds. These fish were caught on the end of a flood tide. Shrimp was the lure.

Fishermen have a mania for making quick decisions. That's how fishing parties are organized. Here is a quickie concerning a couple of brother-in-laws. Bill Cochrane, local angler, and Ernest Robinson of Camp Springs, Md., and their better halves were celebrating a birthday party Sunday evening. Ernest's birthday was the reason for the get-together.

While opening his gifts he spied a shiny new fishing rod and reel, just what he wanted. Ernest admiringly assembled the tackle and took a quick look at the clock on the radio. The timepiece flashed 10:30 p. m. Let's go fishing and give it a workout," he suggested. Assuming that their wives might cast bad luck on their adventure they decided to go unattached. Without further adieu they were headed for Sand Gates

THE RECIPIENT of the tackle started off with a bang. The first strike produced a double-header of hardheads that totaled 7½ pounds. "What a start," he gloated, but it was almost the finish because he only captured one more croaker.

Bill, his cohort who was conned into the hasty trip, had miserable luck. His first nibble was a big eel. His second bite was an even larger eel. The third hit exhibited the grandaddy of all eels and a tangled fishing line that resembled a fishing net. The latter eel also had a reputation for making quick decisions because the brother-in-laws called it a night.

The fresh water fishermen who made the trip to Eastern Shore to fish for bass at Lake Garland near Denton found several youngsters wading and bathing in the lake, practically killing the sport for the weekend. A few small bass and crappie were taken nevertheless.

Jim Allen of Mitchelville, Md., has located a plug for blue gills and crappies that he claims is the "berries." It is a South Bend Fly-orens. Jim has a pond of his own but he says you would have to go a long way to beat the crappie fishing on the Patuxent River

Those Wondrous Nats

THEY HAVEN'T been calling Griff "The Old Fox" for nothing all these years.

Yesterday, he pulled off one of those clever trades he's noted for, and it could very well be the turning point in our drive for the pennant.

The way I look at it, we traded Walter Masterson to the Red Sox for Mickey Harris in an even trade. We got Sam Mele, as a bonus.

He gives us a sharp one-two righthanded hitting punch in the outfield along with Clyde Vollmer.

Oh, I know that he hit only .232 last year, and not much more this year. But I contend that he's a fine young ballplayer, who has proved he can hit big league pitching, but who has been mishandled for two seasons.

The guy came up to the Red Sox in 1947, and in 123 games, against all kinds of pitching, he hit .302. Batting in the No. 2 slot in the lineup, he knocked in 73 runs.

Then in 1948, Manager Joe McCarthy took to yanking Mele when righthanded pitchers were facing the Red Sox. Since there are more righthanded pitchers in the league than lefties, Mele sat out more than half the games, and got rusty.

Masterson and Harris are much the same type of pitcher, both with a lot of stuff and unfulfilled promise. Harris has won as many as 17 games in one season. The most Masterson won was 12.

Speaker Wins Charles Town's Retreat Purse by 3 Lengths

Bill Bennings . . .

AT CHARLES TOWN

Dear Folks:

When the National Press Club holds its annual frolic here on June 25, several races will be staged. The jockeys have suggested that the race writers ride in one event and let the jockeys write the stories. No dice. Three jockeys went into the Monday program tied for the riding lead with 17 winners each. They were Freddie Kratz, Ray Arduini and Buddy Root. Johnny Regalbuto is the top apprentice with 15 winners. Favorites have been doing okay here with 81 winners in 192 races. William W. Smith of Middleburg, Va., is leading the local trainers with nine winners. Among others he handles the formidable stables of Wayne Kendrick and Virginia McKinney, both Washingtonians. Only nine horses have been claimed at this meeting, involving some $12,000. See you on the rail. BILL.

Chilibones Upset By $11.60 Shot

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., June 13. C. B. Carter's Speaker, a daughter of Battleship, fired a speed salvo at six rivals today and ran off with the Retreat Purse, featuring the Monday program.

Under a strong finish, sparked by Jockey J. R. Hill, Speaker, a 3-year-old, left in her wake Richard Pending's Chilibones, winner of three straight races here. The chestnut filly got home three lengths in front of the son of Mr. Bones. Two and a half lengths farther back came Miss Virginia McKinney's Ariel Gift and Justin Funkhouser's Super Flight, locked in a deadheat for the show money.

Speaker, which bounced off the maiden ranks in her most recent outing, had been defeated by Chilibones when last they met. With Chilibones an odds-on choice, Speaker returned an $11.60 mutuel. She was clocked in 1:57 3/5 for the mile and an eighth. This was the first test at the distance for both Speaker and Chilibones.

Favorite players had their innings in the second race. Mrs. H. R. Miller's Golden Scotch was an easy winner and returned a mere $3.40. Those who played the 4-and-6 combination in the daily double received $62.40 for the usual deuce investment.

Bob Feerick Has Operation On His Knee

Bob Feerick, captain and a candidate for the Caps' coaching post, yesterday was operated on for removal of cartilages in his left knee.

Dr. Milton C. Cobey, who performed the operation at Georgetown Hospital, told Federick that the operation was a complete success, and predicted that Bob would return to top form next season.

Feerick will continue his nightly sports program over WQQW from his hospital bed. His program is on the air at 5:55 p. m. each day.

Feerick originally injured his knee as a schoolboy. He rehurt it in a late season game against Minneapolis last season. He suffered a reoccurance a few weeks ago while playing golf.

Junior Tennis Matches Close

Yesterday's first round matches in the District of Columbia Junior Tennis Championships at Congressional were marked by long hard-fought battles which saw all the favorites come through.

John Beyen and John Harris, 13 years old, played a three-hour match which was always close with almost every game going to deuce. Beyn finally won, 6—4, 7—9, 6—3.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS: JUNIOR DIVISION—Bill Morris beat Roy Gunderson, 6—1, 6—2. Bill Owen beat Allan Peyser, 6—3, 9—7. Jack Clifford beat Bob Hubbard, 6—1, 6—1. Becraft Sparkles in Relief Role Sunnybrook took the second half lead in The Washington Post's Industrial Baseball League yesterday when it defeated Thrifty, 4 - 2, on the Ellipse. Sunnybrook has won two and lost none.

Bones Becraft, who replaced Tom Stewart, Sunnybrook starter, with the bases loaded in the second inning, held Thrifty scoreless for the remainder of the game while his mates were getting to Thrifty hurler, Tommy Thompson, for the victory.

Area Netmen Win At Montclair

Montclair, N. J., June 13.—Hal Burrows of the University of Virginia, seeded fifth, led the ranked stars into the third round of the Eastern Intercollegiate championships today by eliminating Joab Blockman, Miami U., 6—1, 6—1, after drawing a bye in the first round.

Carl Williams of Howard University also entered the third round defeating Art Preman, Williams College, 4—6, 6—2, 6—0, in the first round and J. E. Owens, Amherst, 7—5, 6—2, in the second.

Jack McCarthy, Georgetown, ousted Clyde Freeman, Howard, 6—3, 6—4, in a first round match, and eleventh-seeded Frank Cantwell, also of Georgetown, was eliminated by Marvin Mantin, Kalamazoo, 6—3, 6—0, in the second round.

Commodore Gill Very Busy But He Sails in Every Race

By Happy Walker

When a high level Government economist has a hankering for open blue water, he just naturally turns to sailing in a big way.

Walker

Such a man is Wirt A. Gill, commodore of the Potomac River Sailing Associati o n. For the past 15 years this group has sponsored a well rounded series of spring and fall sail races on the Potomac, off Hains Point with evident success.

A rabid sailing enthusiast and former Shipkeeper's Trophy winner, Commodore Gill skippers his Penguin Pert in every race as well as carrying on his arduous duties as commodore of the group. He is a member of the Columbia Yacht Club and the executive committee, National Penguin Association.

The commodore opines that, "While we are somewhat handicapped by the lack of a municipal sailing marina, and we do not have too much water, we do have one of the finest supported sailing associates in the East. Particularly since the war years we have noticed an increasing active interest in our sponsored sailing events."

Membership in the Potomac River Sailing Association is made up of sailing devotees from all boating clubs in Greate Washington Gill an economist with the Economic Bureau of Employment, lives at 312 Indian Spring dr, Silver Spring, Md

A REMINDER to all District boat owner. The harbor regula- practical and sensible regulation on the books which should have the full cooperation of every boat owner. The Harbor regulations require that each owner, keeping a boat in D. C. must register his boat annually, not later than June 30 and must also notify Harbor Precinct any change of address.

Harbor Precinct men are constantly patrolling our waterfront and anchorage areas. In case of fire, low water, sinking or possible damage to a boat—and it does happen—they must know where to contact the owner and advise him.

There is no cost for this safeguard. The Harbor Precinct on Maine ave. and M st. nw., is open 24 hours a day. May we suggest that you register your boat today—certainly not later than June 30.

THE POTOMAC River Sailing Association wound up its spring sail race series in a blaze of glory, off Hains Point, staging two full races in one day, long before usual finishing time. Perfect wind conditions contributed to the most successful event this spring which turned out well over 60 avid sail fans determined to take advantage of the final running.

George Washington Tempest results were not available due to constant change in boat skippers. However, points will be worked out and as soon as Race Chairman Frank Marquardt compiles total point standings, results will be carried in a future column.

Builders' Move

Employers Will Discuss Strike Today

Washington's three strikes continued yesterday without visible signs of settlement.

In the carpenters' and laborers' wage dispute with contractors and builders, everyone marked time pending a meeting of 200 building employers set for 2 p. m. today at the United States Chamber of Commerce.

The carpenters are asking a 10-cent-an-hour raise over their $2.40 rate, while the laborers seek 15 cents more than the current $1.35.

The two AFL groups have 8000 workers out between them, and projects involving an estimated 100 million dollars have been stopped or delayed. Some 5000 carpenters struck on June 1, followed by about 3000 laborers the next day.

In the other two local wage disputes, involving pie bakery drivers and produce market drivers, Federal conciliators tried unsuccessfully yesterday to arrange negotiation sessions.

About 100 salesmen-drivers, members of Bakery Salesmen's Local 33 (AFL), have tied up the four major pie baking concerns in a strike which began June 3 for a $4 a week increase. About 200 bakers are out of work as a result.

Since Friday, drivers and helpers employed by eight unionized produce concerns at the Terminal Market, 5th st. and Florida ave. ne., have been on strike in a demand for a 48-hour week for the same pay they now receive for 54 hours. Warehousemen are supporting the strike and some 125 workers are involved.

District Assessor Edward A. Dent yesterday published a list of 107 locations at which applications for certificates of registration for sales and use tax licenses may be secured by local merchants.

The licenses are for use under the new sales tax, which goes into effect August 1. Dent said that applications are to be mailed into the Office of the Assessor, Sales and Use Tax Division, District Building, 14th and Pennsylvania ave. nw. Certificates will be mailed to each applicant during the latter part of July, he said.

Dent pointed out that a $100 fine may be levied against any one who fails to obtain a registration certificate.

Applications may be obtained from Room 9, District Building, or these police precinct stations:

Boy Scouts Honor Seven For Service

Seven Washington area men were honored for "outstanding service to boyhood" at the annual meeting of the National Capital Area Council of the Boy Scouts of America held last night in the Commerce Department Auditorium.

The seven men received the Silver Beaver Award, emblem of service to boyhood.

Oldest and friskiest among them was Joseph C. "Pop" Gleason, 80-year-old retired Naval Gun Factory engineer, who is looking forward to his thirty-second year of Boy Scout camping this summer.

Pop employs his vast engineering experience to get the machines humming in the area camps each year, then spends the summer in one of them. He sleeps on the ground, does his own cooking and says he's feeling no strain. He lives at 14 Nicholson st., Takoma Park, Md.

The other Silver Beaver recipients were Freedom R. Leaman, 229 Willow ave., Takoma Park, Md.; Ernest D. McIver, 2329 S. Joyce st., Arlington; Delmar C. Ports, 2701 N. Beechwood pl., Arlington; Charles B. Upp, 2315 32d st. se.; Henry A. Saur, 317 Channing st. ne., and Frank I. Louckes, jr., 4920 N. Washington blvd., Arlington.

Richard E. Shands, Washington attorney who lives in McLean, Va., was reelected president of the council. Dr. Leonard M. Elstad, president of Gallaudet College, was elected scout commissioner.

Ever have a "ring and run" telephone caller? Yesterday afternoon, I was out in the kitchen making up some cookies to send to my nephew Tom (Tom is a corporal now at Camp Lee). Just when I was up to my elbows in cookie dough, the telephone began to ring.

I washed my hands as quick as I could and hurried in to answer it. But whoever it was that called only waited a few rings and then hung up. By the time I got there, there was no one on the line. I do wish people would give a body a minute to answer the telephone!

I suppose things like that work both ways, however. Perhaps I haven't been so patient, either, when calling other folks. From now on, I'm going to wait at least ten rings before I hang up.

Douglas Criticizes Majority On Standard Oil Dealer Case

There is less and less place for the independent.

"The full force of our anti-trust laws has not been felt on our economy. It has been deflected. Niggardly interpretations have robbed those laws of much of their efficacy."

Douglas granted "there are exceptions" to the latter statement but he said "the teeth have largely been drawn" from the antitrust laws "when it comes to monopolies built in gentlemanly ways—by mergers, purchases of assets or control and the like."

"Under the guide of increased efficiency," he said, "big business has received approval for easy growth."

Douglas criticized a court decision permitting United States Steel to buy the Columbia Steel Co. on the West Coast as one in which "the giant of the industry" was "allowed to fasten its tentacles tighter on the economy."

"Monopoly Competition"

Douglas said "a new age has been introduced," the "age of 'monopoly competition.'"

"The lessons Brandeis taught on the curse of bigness have largely been forgotten in high places," the justice said, referring to the last Justice Louis D. Brandeis. He did not identify the "high places."

Douglas said all these problems have a real connection with the Standard Oil case because the majority decision will eliminate independent gas station owners and set the stage for "service-station empires." He called the opinion "advisory" and said it stated "to the oil companies how they can with impunity build their empires."

Other Court Actions

In other actions yesterday, the court:

1. Ruled, 5-to-4, that the British writer P. G. Wodehouse must pay $13,661 in income taxes on $127,000 he received from American publishers in 1938-41. He had contended he was selling personal property in selling the Saturday Evening Post and others rights to his stories. The Post bought three at $40,000 each.

2. Agreed to review next fall the legality of an anti-Communist program of Los Angeles County to determine county workers' loyalty.

3. Agreed to review, also next fall, an Arkansas law under which picketing can be held a criminal offense if violence occurs. The CIO asked for the review.

4. Refused to reconsider decisions in the Louisiana tidelands oil case and the Terminiello free speech case.

The Federal Diary

Jam-Up on Budget Is Worst in History Of Government

BUDGET BLUES: The legislative jam-up on budgets is the worst ever. Here it is about two weeks from the June 30 deadline and Congress hasn't approved one single budget for the 1950 fiscal year which begins July 1.

As a result, Government today is at a standstill in many respects. Vacant jobs aren't being filled. Plans for new and expanded operations are being shelved.

In contrast, nearly every agency is looking for spots to cut both personnel and work. The jobs of between 100,000 and 150,000 Federal workers are at stake in the showdown battle of the budget. No agency can be certain today whether it will have more or fewer employes during the fast-approaching 1950 fiscal year.

The resolution reported out of the Senate Expenditures Committee yesterday could easily wipe out 100,000 Federal jobs if it's enacted into law. It would direct the President to cut the budgets of Federal agencies from 5 to 10 per cent under the amounts approved by Congress. No agency could be slashed more than 20 per cent.

Meanwhile, the economy drive is reported to be gaining momentum in the House. House conferees on several major money bills are said to be insisting that they be reduced under the amounts previously approved by both the Senate and the House.

Another complication is the deficiency bills. It now appears that Federal workers will be lucky if there isn't an unparalleled wave of payless paydays in another week unless the deadlock on the second deficiency bill is broken.

The bill carries a provision which allows funds in the bill to be used back to March 1. The House has approved a resolution which would allow the agencies to spend the money carried in the bill. But the Senate Appropriations Committee is sitting on the measure. Several of its key members say they oppose the measure in principle.

It's anyone's guess at this time what will happen eventually to the budgets.

ARCHIVES: About 60 of its 300 employes stand to be either fired or demoted because of the House cut of $98,000 in its budget. Archives has asked the Senate to restore the slash.

Thirty of its employes have been given provisional layoff notices; 10 were demoted, and 16 others so far have been either reassigned or transferred.

Lower-grade employes are protesting. They charge that all of the pink slips were given to employes in the P-2 and lower equivalent grades. Only a few employes in the higher grades, they say, have been demoted.

GUN FACTORY: Employes at this big Naval operation here are being told how lay-offs will be made. The information bulletin explains that there has been no decision as to the number of employes who will be fired; that the number will depend on "contingencies yet unknown."

The best guess is that 25 per cent of the factory's 10,500 workers will be laid off before early fall. The Navy bulletin slaps down—and hard—gossip that the layoff will reach 50 per cent, and that the factory will be closed and its land used as a public park. It reminds its employes and they will be kept fully informed through official sources of any discharges that must be made.

Factory employes were told that all reductions will be based on these four factors: length of service, efficiency ratings, status, and veterans' preference. The bulletin gives details on how employes will be rated by the four factors and placed on retention lists.

VETERANS: The House Civil Service Committee will meet tomorrow on the veterans' credit bill. It couldn't raise a quorum yesterday. Representative Rees (R., Kans.) has an amendment to apply the bill to veterans in all agencies instead of limiting it to the postal service. Under it, veterans who entered Governm nt after the war would be given credit toward automatic promotions for time spent in the armed forces.

NFFE: The National Federation of Federal Employes is staging a membership campaign here this month in honor of Ulrey J. Biller, a pioneer NFFE member and an authority on the Civil Service retirement system. In charge of the campaign is a committee composed of Joe Webb, Viola Schantz and Henry Nolda.

House Backs New Judge On Juvenile Bench Here

Minnesotan Objects After Its Passage; Voice Vote Sends Bill to President

The House yesterday approved and sent to the White House a bill authorizing appointment of a new judge for Juvenile Court here.

The bill passed by a voice vote. After it passed, Representative Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.) protested, but offered no formal opposition.

The new judge will take the place of Judge Fay L. Bentley, a voluntary patient at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, who is not expected to return to the bench. The bill would permit Miss Bentley to draw her full $10,000-a-year salary until August, 1952, and then would abolish her judgeship.

"Obviously Bad Situation"

Representative O'Hara said his main objection to the bill was its failure "to meet the obviously bad situation, so far as the retirement of juvenile judges is concerned."

O'Hara said that if Judge Bentley did return, the District in effect would have two Juvenile Courts.

Representative Oren Harris (D., Ark.), in charge of the bill, said the measure was designed to take care of an emergency situation. He said that for all practical purposes the bill provides only one working Juvenile Court judge, since Miss Bentley is expected not to return to work "unless a miracle happens."

Peggy's Father Can Cook and Design Dresses

Ten-year-old Peggy Yeatts of 3033 16th st. nw., thinks her father ought to win The Washington Post's Ideal Father contest hands down because—

"He has been taking care of me and my little brother Jimmie for three years now. He cooks all our dinners and keeps our four-room apartment and washes and irons.

"Jimmie and I haven't missed any school and believe me, father's a wonderful cook. Besides he sells shoes at Woodward & Lothrop every day, too, and designs most all my dresses . . . so, now, don't you think we have an ideal father? His name is Mead R. Yeatts."

The winner of the contest and his appreciative family will be treated to a Father's Day dinner at the Statler Hotel next Sunday and to a theater afterward. Entries will be accepted at The Washington Post until the close of business Thursday.

Rescued Lad Smiles His Thanks

The Washington Post

IN RESCUER'S ARMS—James T. Walters, 30, of 2147 O st. nw., former Miami Beach, Fla., lifeguard, gets a grateful grin from 7-year-old Robert Ward of 1500 21st st. nw., whom he saved from drowning in Rock Creek yesterday afternoon

Boy, 7, Pulled From Creek By Sunbather

A 7-year-old boy was pulled to safety from Rock Creek yesterday afternoon by a sunbather who was summoned by the cries of the lad's brother.

The rescue occurred about 3:30 p. m. when Robert Ward, who was wading with his brother, Edward, 9, beneath the P st. bridge, suddenly stepped in a hole and disappeared.

Robert's cries for help brought James T. Walters, 30, a typewriter mechanic student who was reclining in the sun nearby.

Walters said he jumped in the creek with his clothes on and pulled the youngster to the bank.

"His eyes were rolling," Walters said, "so I hit him on the back two or three times and he caught his breath."

Walters said he then ran to the road and hailed a passing motorcycle policeman who called for an ambulance.

A scout car responded first, and Pvts. Walter K. Valentine and Joseph O'Connell gave artificial respiration until the arrival of the rescue squad which gave shock treatment.

His mother, Mrs. Bertha Ward, a waitress, said the boys had stopped to wade in the creek on their way from the John Quincy Adams Elementary School to their home at 1500 21st st. nw.

Two Drivers, Unhurt, Die In Smashups

Two persons died in automobile crashes here last night and early today, both presumably of heart attacks.

Miss Helen L. Hector, 38, of 1618 21st st. nw., was pronounced dead on arrival at Casualty Hospital after her auto crashed into a parked car on Rhode Island ave. near 2nd st. ne. about 9 p.m.

A Census Bureau employe, she was riding alone. Witnesses said the vehicle suddenly veered, crossing the street before striking a parked car which was moved 30 feet by the impact.

About four hours later Walter Bady, 30, of 2015 15th st. nw., was involved in a similar accident three blocks away at 5t st. and Rhode Island ave. ne. He was pronounced dead at 1:20 a.m. at Freedmen's Hospital.

Police said Bady lost control of his car and it struck a construction barricade. Two passengers, Bady's wife, Marcleta, 25, and Miss Geraldine Edley, 25, of the 1800 block of Kalorama rd. nw., were uninjured.

Bady was employed at the Veterand Administration, police said.

Police said that Miss Hector and Bady apparently died following heart attacks as neither body bore any marks of injuries. Autopsies will be performed in each case.

U. S. Ruled Not Bound By Rent Law

Increases Likely For Many Units In War-Built Housing Projects

The Federal Government is not bound by the District's rent-control law, the Supreme Court yesterday ruled unanimously.

As a result, rent increases are likely for occupants of many of the more than 8000 war-built housing units controlled by the National Capital Housing Authority.

The case involved Reginald P. Wittew, who occupies an NCHA home at 5 Quadrant Green sw. He went to court when NCHA attempted to raise his rent from $38.20 to $43 a month. The Court of Appeals agreed with Wittek the Government had to obey rent-control laws like other landlords.

John Ihlder, executive officer of NCHA, said yesterday he could make no blanket statement at this time on the effects of the decision on rents. He promised an announcement in a week or so after his office has studied the opinion, written for the Court by Justice Harold H. Burton.

But since the NCHA argument in the case was that rents were raised as costs went up, an increase appears likely for many, if not all, the Government's tenants.

Affected by the case are 3259 low-rent permanent dwellings and 4887 war-housing units, of which all except 600 are of temporary construction.

Burton said, in his 22-page decision, "it is practically inconceivable that Congress would have subjected its Government-owned, low-rent housing program" here to the additional control of the local rent law.

He added, "it seems obvious that the need for District rent control was not in the operation of Government-owner housing where the Federal Government already had complete control over rentals, but was in the operation of privately owned housing . . ."

Burton noted that the local rent administrator had never attempted to set rents on the public projects.

At one point, Burton referred to the local "substandard housing" and "the narrow row alleys in the interior of 200 or more of the large downtown city blocks" which, "although unfitted for habitation, have been notoriously congested with a large population for which adequate housing never has existed."

Budget of 114 Million For Next Fiscal Year Indicated for District

Senate, House Group Disagree On White House, Sesqui Funds

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

Senate and House conferees were in deadlock again over funds for White House renovations and the Sesquicentennial celebration, it was reported last night.

The Senate has twice voted a $5,400,000 item to remodel the sagging Executive Mansion, preserving its outer shell. The House, led by Chairman Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.) of its Appropriations Committee has urged that the present structure be razed and a completely new White House started at about the same cost.

The Sesqui celebration hinges on a Senate-approved $2,000,000 item. The House has denied the funds. Both items are in the second deficiency supply bill.

Cannon told reporters following a conference committee meeting on the bill that the group disagreed on both issues. The items will be put to the full membership of the House and Senate for further consideration.

The White House remodeling request was withdrawn from the first deficiency bill last month when a similar deadlock developed.

Money to cover depleted payrolls of several District and Federal Government agencies was agreed on, Cannon said.

Senators Approve 4-Million Dollar Increase Asked By Commissioners

Capitol actions yesterday pointed to a District budget close to 114 million dollars for the year starting July 1.

The Senate Appropriations Subcommitte in charge of the District budget decided in an afternoon meeting to approve most of the Commissioners' four million dollars in proposed additions to the House-approved figure of about 99 million dollars, according to Chairman Lister Hill (D., Ala.).

In the House, approval of District pay increases and other bills pointed to eventual additions to the budget of another 11 million dollars.

Details Not Announced

Detailed decisions on specific budget items were withheld until they are given to the full Senate Appropriations Committee later this week.

It was indicated, however, the subcommittee would recommend making funds available to start the long-delayed Spingarn High School project. The House decided to withdraw from the proposed project $1,187,399 previously appropriated and turn the money over to general District funds.

Other additions to the House-approved budget total asked by District officials would boost it to about 103 million dollars, close to the original figure they submitted.

Sick Leave Approved

The 103-million-dollar figure later would be swelled by appropriations needed for the $330 retroactive city employe pay boosts and by other measures the House approved yesterday.

The pay legislation, when applied to all District employes and when the appropriations for it are made, would boost the city budget close to 114 million dollars.

Sick leave for teachers, approved yesterday by the House, would cost about $150,000. An equal amount would be required for the District's share of the House-approved increase in pensions for widows and children of police and firemen.

In Court

Man Steals Dinner, Gets Just Dessert

The smoke eaters at No. 2 Truck Company were hot under the collar because their weekend chicken dinner vanished, but all they got out of Judge Frank H. Myers yesterday was sympathy.

The way the smoke eaters explained it, they were just sitting down to eat their dinner Saturday evening at the firehouse, New Hampshire ave. and M st. nw., when the alarm sounded. Duty, naturally, had first call and the fire laddies left three fried chickens they so carefully prepared and rushed away.

They took little notice of the appearance at that moment of Philip H. Johnson, 40, no known address. They never dreamt that he would touch their repast. But when they returned an hour later—horrors.

All that was left of their dinner was a pile of bones and Johnson was weaving his way down the block. So, the firemen turned policemen and made an investigation.

They found the telltale evidence in the form of chicken grease on Johnson's face and hands. Johnson was too drunk to explain.

Charged with drunkenness yesterday, Johnson pleaded guilty but said he could remember none of the chicken eating. Judge Myers gave him a suspended sentence of $25 or 30 days and said sadly:

"I don't suppose there is anything I can do about the chicken."

Playground Segregation Vote Today

As the time nears for the long-awaited District Recreation Board ballot on the question of segregation in local public recreation, at least one delegate doesn't know how he will vote.

He is Walter L. Fowler, District budget officer, and official representative of the District Commissioners. Fowler said yesterday he had not received instructions on whether to vote for or against an end to the segregation policy now in force at local playgrounds.

He added that he felt certain he would receive instructions before the board meeting, scheduled for 2:30 p. m. today at board headquarters, 3149 16th st. nw.

Fowler said that if for any reason he is unable to attend, his alternate, Geoffrey M. Thornett, secretary to the Board of Commissioners, will appear.

Members of the Recreation Board today will be asked to vote on a proposal to be advanced by Irving C. Root, representing the Interior Department on the board. Root's proposal is that segregation be abolished in all play areas run by the board, and in all other board activities. The proposal is in the form of an amendment to the by-laws. Its rejection is expected.

If the amendment should fail, a compromise proposal, pledging an ultimate end to segregation on playgrounds, but no specific date, is expected to be approved.

Dr. Ruhland Challenged by Poundmaster

Frank B. Marks, District poundmaster, yesterday replied to charges that the pound uses inhumane methods in destroying dogs, by declaring he has been using the same methods which the Health Department employed when that agency controlled the pound.

"I haven't changed the system one iota from the way it was when Dr. Ruhland had the pound," Marks declared.

Dr. George C. Ruhland, District Health Officer, has said he will appear before the Commissioners to report that methods of destroying unclaimed animals are open to question as to their humaneness.

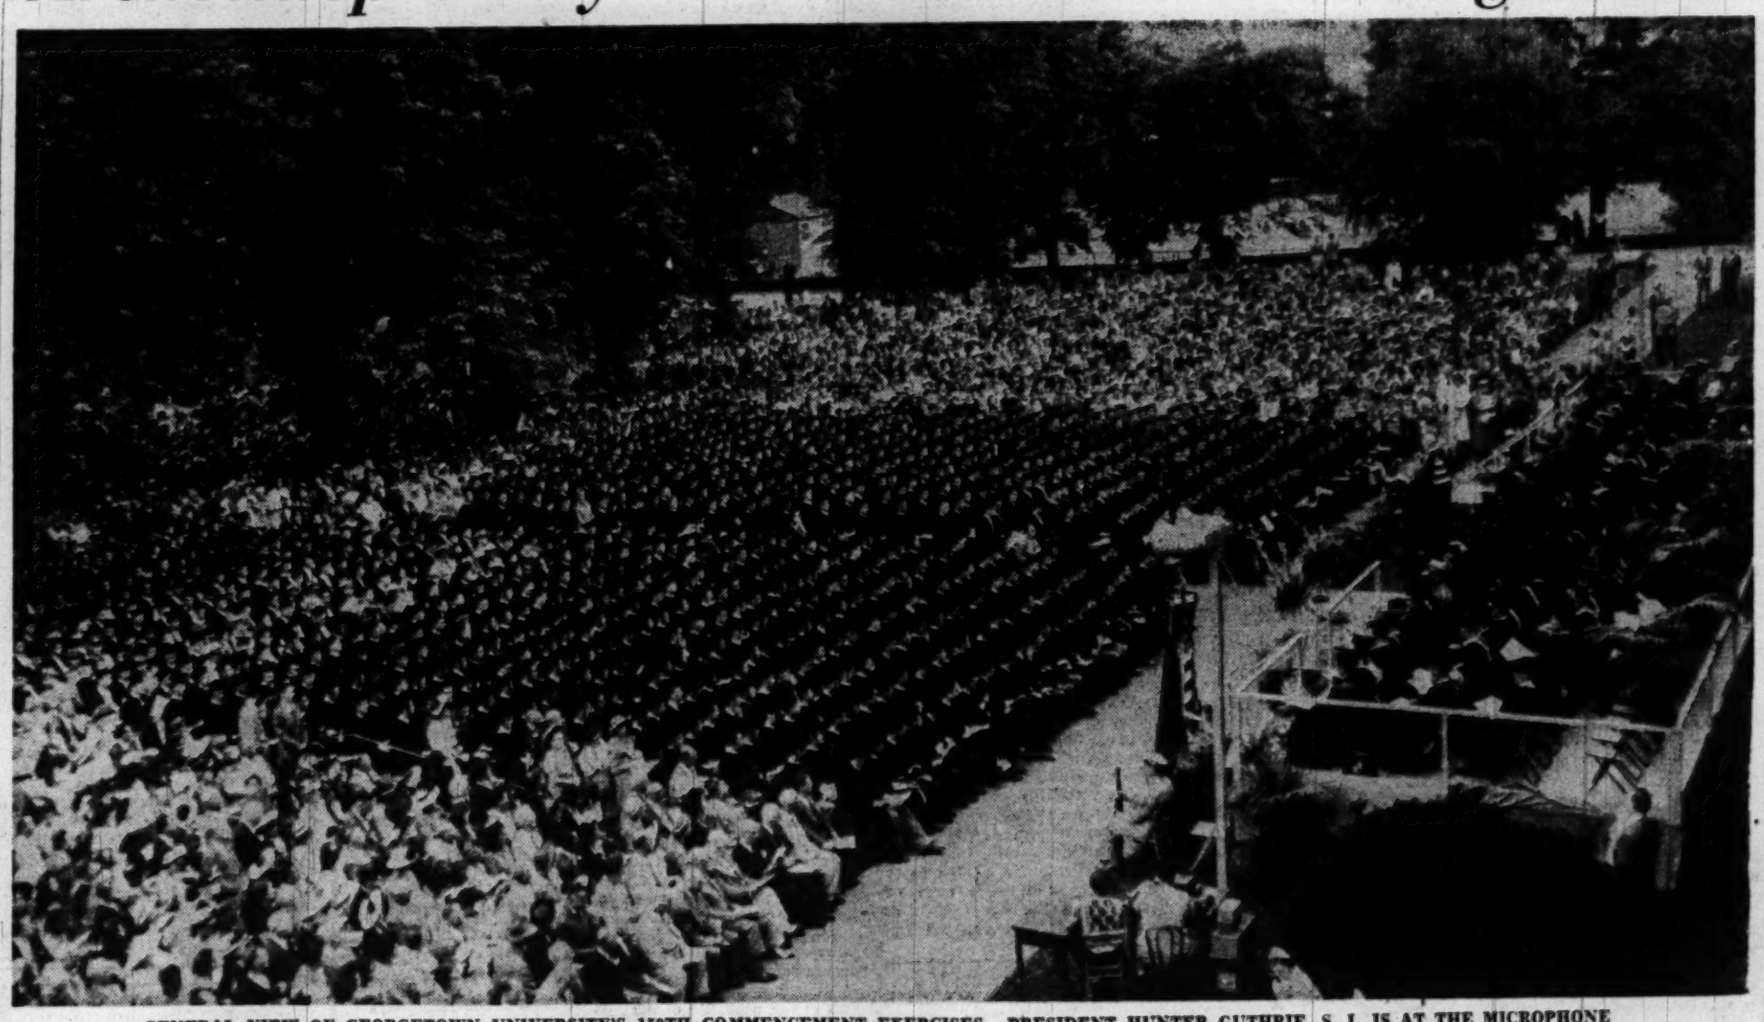
Dr. Ruhland said he will present photographic and documentary evidence on the manner of dog destruction. Earlier he had stated he would recommend appointment of a veterinarian as poundmaster to assure humane practices.

Marks said yesterday that Dr. Ruhland "doesnt' need" to take any evidence before the Commissioners.

"There's no change in the method from the time it was under the Health Department," he said. Marks has been poundmaster for 13 years. Dr. Ruhland has been health officer for 14 years.

"The only thing I've done is build a brick box (death chamber). They were using a rickety old wooden box with charcoal. We use monoxide gas now with the brick box," stated Marks.

Archbishop O'Boyle Asks 'Honest Men' to Fight Reds



GENERAL VIEW OF GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY'S 150TH COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES. PRESIDENT HUNTER GUTHRIE, S. J., IS AT THE MICROPHONE

Georgetown University's largest graduating class in its 150-year history last night heard Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle call on "honest men" who understand justice and freedom to fight the "creeping and insidious paralysis" of communism.

Standing on a rostrum outside the university's gray stone Healy Building, the red-robed Roman Catholic Archbishop of Washington, described communism as a "devilfish octopus" that has spread its tentacles of disaster into Poland, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Rumania, Albania, Austria, Hungary, and now Czechoslovakia.

"It may well be," he said, "that the scene will shift to in all its dastardly ugliness . . . to the United States unless you and others like you remember that the creeping and insidious paralysis of totalitarianism needs to be opposed by the religious and American ideal which recognizes the innate dignity of a man because he has been fashioned by the hand of God."

The archbishop described the recent order by the Czecholovak Ministry of Education placing political instructors in Roman Catholic theological seminaries as "a despicable distortion of justice, an abandonment of even the pretense of freedom, and a woeful, outrageous ignorance of the outstanding contribution made by the Catholic Church over the centuries to the social progress of mankind."

Outdoor Ceremony

The 1159 graduates, forming an academic procession, took more than half an hour to file into seats reserved for them at the outdoor ceremonies. Spectators filled the entire front section of the university yard facing the great chiming clock tower.

The Very Rev. Hunter Guthrie, S. J., president of the university, presented seven honorary degrees.

A master of science in the social sciences was awarded to Miss Mary Virginia Merrick, 84-year-old founder of the Christ Child Society. The diploma was accepted on behalf of the invalided woman by her nephew, George E. Hamilton, jr.

Honorary degrees of doctor of laws were given to the Rev. Francis E. Lucey, S. J., regent of the university law school; Justice Delfin Jaranilla of the Philippine Supreme Court; Dr. Leonard A. Scheele, United States Surgeon General; Thomas J. Ross, sr., public relations counsel; Willard L. Beaulac, United States Ambassador to Colombia, and the Rev. John La Farge, S. J., associate editor of America, the Jesuit publication.

Twelve graduates of the University 50 years ago received "golden jubilee certificates." Among them was James W. Murphy, official reporter of the Senate. Others were J. V. Kelly, Baltimore, Md.; Dr. Leonardo Sorzano-Jorrin, Cuba; Rutherford B. H. Lyon, James Kuhn, jr., Julian I. Peyser, W. Gwynn Gardiner, James A. O'Shea and Alexander P. Heron, all of the District, and Leslie C. Garnett, Chevy Chase; Milton Dammann, New York City and Judge P. Sarsfield Cunniff, Watertown, Mass.

The first degree of doctor of medicine ever granted by the university to a woman was conferred on Dr. Sarah E. Stewart, 106 Kingsley ave., Bethesda. She was one of 73 students graduated in medicine.

Two hundred and thirty-seven students received degrees in law and 420 in foreign service. Eighty-four graduate degrees were conferred.

Eyebrows Raised At Hair Specialists

This was indicated yesterday by Dr. George C. Ruhland, District Health Officer.

After a meeting with Dr. Hobart M. Corning, District school superintendent, and District Attorney George Morris Fay—both members of the Healing Arts Commission on Licensure to Practice—Dr. Ruhland said the commission had taken under study the claims of trichologists—or hair and scalp specialists—that they can grow a head of hair where no hair existed.

Dr. Ruhland said he had no idea how many such specialists are now practicing in Washington.

Chorus Gives Recital of Rare Beauty

By Paul Hume

Great singing was heard around Washington last night.

The Washington Community Chorus gave its annual program in Metropolitan A.M.E. Church, with June McMechen, soprano, as guest soloist. Warner Lawson conducts this chorus and is responsible for the excellence of its style and the brilliance of its singing.

There is a unique and thrilling quality in the sound of this ensemble. Their full tone is massive without being heavy. Their soft singing carries easily throughout the hall. Avoiding any lengthy works last night, they presented a broad variety of music, delivering it all with the same authority. Alma Montgomery Blackmon was their artistic accompanist, and their various soloists added richness.

Miss McMechen is one of the most artistic young singers in years. Her lyric soprano is perfectly produced and she uses it in songs of rare beauty. Her tracing of Szulc's Clair de lune, Debussy's Air de Lia, and Winter Watts' Stressa can be cited as examples of the highest vocal art. We would like to hear her in a long, long recital. She is worthy of any stage and deserves every opportunity.

Equally artsitic singing was going on at the Phillips Gallery where David Baker gave his first Washington recital.

Baker's voice is a light baritone, handled with utmost sensitivity. He keeps it within comfortabe bounds in both range and power, but what delicate and moving work he elicits in his chosen framework.

Unfamiliar songs of Grieg and Reynaldo Hahn made his program unusual and attractive. His conception and execution of Schubert's To Music, and Night and Dreams, is of the highest order. How assuring it is to hear an artist singing such music, and what a shame that our best paid singers so generally neglect these treasures.

Baker possesses remarkably clear and informed enunciation. His French was that of a native, his German equally smooth. With his gifts for singing songs, we hope it will not be long before David Baker's next recital. Esther Howe gave him strong support though she never covered his voice. Her musicianship was apparent at all times. It was quite an evening for singing.

Ivy City Civic Unit Asks Added School Space

The Ivy City Civic Association last night adopted a resolution asking the Board of Education to provide additional accommodations for Negro school children for next year pending construction of the new Spingarn and Armstrong High Schools.

Pleads Guilty To Assault

William Wallace Poague, 19, of 1432 B st. se., a maintenance man, pleaded guilty yesterday to assaulting a 31-year-old housewife, Mrs. Evelyn Thompson, 3500 A st. se., by kissing her. Sentence was deferred in Municipal Court until June 27. Bond was set at $500. According to police, Poague telephoned Mrs. Thompson several times. Police were present by prearrangement when Poague arrived at her home and embraced Mrs. Thompson, they said.

Theft Laid to 'Hot-Rods'

Theft of automobile parts valued at $750 from the J. & J. Speed Shop, 5200 Baltimore blvd., Hyattsville, was blamed yesterday on "hot-rods" by Hyattsville police.

Jimmy Quisenberry, operator of the shop and co-editor of Speed Age, a magazine devoted to automobile racing, said the materials taken were those used to step up the speed of "hot-rod" types of autos.

Jailed on Sex Charge

Herbert Thompson, sr., 59, whose address was given by police as 1026 21st st. nw., was sentenced yesterday to 90 days in jail for indecent exposure. Sentence was pronounced by Judge Thomas D. Quinn who found Thompson guilty of exposing himself May 16 before three small girls in the alley at the rear of the 3600 block of 12th st. ne.

Witness Ordered Brought Bodily Into D. C. Court

Ware Cattel, 6132 Broad Branch rd. nw., yesterday was ordered brought bodily to District Court by Judge Richmond B. Keech.

The judge acted on petition of John Lane, Assistant United States District attorney, who said Cattell is wanted to estify before the District Grand Jury.

He appeared outside the Grand Jury room May 31, Lane said, but asked immunity from any parking tickets which he might incur. When Lane said he could not grant such immunity, Cattell left, the prosecutor said.

Bids Open July 7 For $2 Million Gallinger Project

Bids for construction of a combined pediatric-crippled children's building at Gallinger Hospital will be open at 2 p. m., July 7, in the District Building.

The project will consist of two separate contracts—one for constructing the building and the second for installing electric elevators and dumbwaiter.

The structure is expected to cost $2,050,000 and the Commissioners this week authorized alternative bids for 43 bed spaces, in addition to the 119 originally planned.

Bids were opened in the District Building last week for building a reinforced concrete bridge deck, consisting of roadway and sidewalk slabs, for the superstructure of the East Highway Bridge. Low bidder was the Zerkel Construction Co., Inc., of 1011 20th st. nw., with a bid of $186,731.

Polio Kills 8th In Area

San Angelo, Tex., June 13 (AP).—Polio killed its eighth child of the year from this west Texas area today. Cases under treatment in hospitals here rose to a new high of 65. Since January 1 there have been 147 cases in hospitals.

85-Foot Fall From Scaffold Kills Painter

A painter fell 85 feet to his death yesterday from a scaffold outside the eighth floor of the Cavalier Apartments, 14th and Oak sts. nw.

William J. Quirk, 40, of 431 11th st. ne., lost his balance as he was adjusting the bumper which holds the scaffold or "staging" from the building. His partner on the staging, Charles E. Bell, 25, of 536 18th st. S., Arlington, Va., who was holding a life line at the time of the accident, was unhurt.

Both men were in a crew of 20 painters from the Minte Paint Co., 1213 12th st. nw., working on the Cavalier job.

In his death fall, Quirk hit the roof over a drugstore on the Oak st. side and bounced from there to the sidewalk gutter. A can of brown paint, which fell with Quirk, coated the shrubbery and sidewalk beneath the staging.

He was pronounced dead at 1:05 p. m. by Dr. Beth Glover of Emergency Hospital. His body was taken to the morgue.

Fellow painters said Quirk kneeled to adjust the bumper, instead of traddling the staging. The bumper dropped clear swinging Quirk's end of the staging toward the building and throwing the painter to his death. The bumper was found a few feet from the body.

Police said Quirk was married but divorced, and is survived by a 16-year-old daughter, Joyce.

The painters quit work for the day after Quirk's death. The accident was just after the men had finished lunch.

U. S. Drops Case Against Simon Best

The Government dropped its case against an indicted gamb'er in District Court yesterday, because the man was convicted of the same offense in Virginia one week ago.

Simon Best, 1444 W st. nw., had been accused by the special gambling grand jury of promoting a numbers lottery in the Pentagon building. Last Monday in Alexandria he pleaded guilty to similar charges in Federal Court and was sentenced to 30 days in jail, fined $100 and put on probation for three years. The jail sentence was suspended.

The special gambling grand jury charged that Best was a numbers runner for Walter "Sonny" Mason of 1917 17th st. nw., who was also indicted. Mason shot himself to death May 19.

Meanwhile, 11 affidavits were filed in District Court yesterday by the government to support removal of four telephones at 6711 New Hampshire ave., Takoma Park, Md., allegedly used for gambling. United States Attorney George Morris Fay is seeking to remove 324 telephones in an effort to curtail gambling in the District.

The telephones involved in yesterday's affidavits were leased by Larry Day, trading as Randall and Crane.

The affidavits allege outgoing telephone calls were made to known gamblers and to a "ticker drop" which dispensed last minute racing information. One affidavit was signed by Anna Kelleher, wife of "Black Jack" Kelleher, once convicted gambler.

Judge Holtzoff will hear the Day case, Friday.

Mall Parking Provided for More Visitors

Additional parking space for sightseeing buses and out-of-town cars, is to be provided in the Mall area to accommodate summer visitors, Captain Mark Raspberry of the Park Police revealed yesterday.

Signs limiting parking to two-hour periods are being installed on most of the drives between 7th and 12th sts. nw. The restrictions will remain in effect until about October 1, when tourist travel slackens.

"After all," said Captain Raspberry "this is the Nation's Capital, and we should provide for the many visitors we get every summer.

"Actually all we are doing is enlarging the present bus stands," he explained. "The area extends only about a half square on either side."

Streets affected are: Two sections of the south curb of Adams dr. halfway between 9th and 10th sts.; the north curb of Washington dr. for about the same distance; the north curb of Madison dr.; both curbs of Jefferson dr., 7th to 12th sts., and 9th st. between Washington dr. and Constitution ave.

Similar parking designations will be established at the Monument Grounds.

Still available for all-day parking will be the south curb of ams dr. and the north curb of Washington dr., between 7th and 9th sts. nw.

Businessman Seeks Post on School Board

Arthur E. Morrissette, Southeast businessman and father of three school-age children, yesterday said he was a candidate for the Board of Education post now held by Adelbert W. Lee.

Morrissette

The 35-year-old president of Summit Park Citizens Association and of the Hilltop Recreation Council, said he had agreed to have his name submitted for consideration by District Court judges who appoint school board members.

Paul Hawkins, attorney, said Morrisette had the support of Southeast residents who "object to the way Lee handles things." In particular, he singled out "wild statements" made by Lee about student drinkmg at athletic games and "communistic" textbooks.

Morrisette said that if appointed he would support the recommendations made in the Strayer report and would favor a bond issue for new school construction. He opposes home rule for the District and an elected school board and favors the segregated shool system.

Morrissette, a native of Washington, is a member of the Washington Board of Trade, the Southeast Businessmen's Association and Capitol Hill Lions Club.

His civic welfare activities this year won him the Junior Board of Commerce's Distinguished Service Award.

Two Women Are Robbed by Car Thieves

Two men, who apparently stole a 1949 Buick car for a quick cleanup, robbed two women yesterday afternoon and then abandoned the automobile all in less than four hours.

First victim was Mrs. Ada M. Dabney, 63, 6 Woodhaven blvd., Bethesda. She was standing at a bus stop at 23d st. and Bancroft pl. nw. shortly after noon when the large, shiny, black sedan drove up.

One man stepped out, snatched her purse, jumped in the car again with the driver, and fled. Her loss was $3 cash and a $10 check. Mrs. Dabney is an aunt of Virginius Dabney, editor of the Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch.

Before 2 p. m., Mrs. Vera Clark, 4628 Windom pl. nw., was walking in front of 2031 Q st. nw., when the same car pulled up near her. Again the robber leaped out and snatched her purse. She struggled and was thrown to the ground. Her loss, she told police, was $30. She was treated at Emergency Hospital for bruises.

Police cars, armed with the sedan's license number, were searching the neighborhood for the auto and the men, identified by the victims as Negroes. In a few moments they found the car, abandoned in an alley near 17th and P sts. nw. It was stolen, shortly before 11 a. m., from John P. Thomas, 2301 Georgia ave. nw., near his home.

Walton Death Justifiable Jury Rules

A verdict of justifiable homicide was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury at an inquest into the death of Floyd Walton, 44, of 1624 Church st. nw. He died Sunday of a bullet fired by his neighbor, Lonnie Watkins, 36, 1628 Church st.

Detective Sergt. Walter Cook of the homicide squad testified he found Walton had been a carpenter's helper at Rosecroft race track idled by a strike. Walton had been drinking heavily and waving a gun for several days, Sergeant Cook said.

Watkins testified that Walton came to his home Sunday, "staggering drunk," came into Watkins' bedroom waving the gun and fell over Watkins as the latter lay in bed.

"He said he was going to kill me then," Watkins testified, "but I talked him out of it. After he left, I got my own gun. I figured I better have it ready. It was him or me."

Later, the two met in an alley adjoining Watkins' home. Watkins said Walton drew his gun again, following which Watkins drew his and fired. Walton was dead when police arrived.

"There wasn't no bad blood between us," Watkins testified. "He was a pretty good fellow when he was sober."

Watkins said he is an employe of the Government Printing Office.

In another inquest, Ester Freeman, 23, 427 L st. nw., was ordered held for action of the grand jury in the death of William J. Smith, 25, of 1875 Savannah st. se. Testimony showed that early on June 5, both men were attending a party near Freeman's home when an argument ensued. About a half dozen arguers were ejected. The controversy continued outside. Freeman returned home, testimony showed, got a gun, and wounded Smith in the neck. He died at Bethesda Naval Hospital on June 10. Freeman already has been held by Municipal Court for grand jury action and bond set at $10,000.

Flag Day Exercises Scheduled Here Today

Flag Day exercises will be held at 7:30 p. m. today on the East Capitol steps, with Col. Lawrence R. Dewey of the National War College faculty as the chief speaker.

The program is sponsored by the Department of the Potomac, Women's Relief Corps of the Grand Army of the Republic. Military, patriotic and civic organizations will participate in the exercises.

More County Funds Asked For Nurses

Higher public nurse and welfare patient appropriations were asked last night at a public hearing on the proposed Montgomery County budget.

At the hearing held in Rockville by the county council, one citizen, Leslie Abbe, a Montgomery County Civic Federation leader who spoke as an individual, also urged that proposed police department appropriations for 1949-50 be reduced to this year's amount—about $82,000.

Top officials of Suburban Hospital attended the hearing to protest a plan by County Manager I. G. McNayr that welfare patients be hospitalized at Suburban for a flat $10 a day.

Present billings at the hospital average $14.40 a day, hospital officials said. They asked the county to appropriate $14,920, the amount of the deficit they estimated might result from the flat payment plan.

The hospital will receive a $25,000 State appropriation next fiscal year for indigent patients. McNayr has tentatively budgeted $20,000 for welfare patients hospital fees after the State's funds are exhausted.

The council made public a recommendation of its hospital facilities advisory committee that $7650 be appropriated to pay for a technical staff to assemble factual information and data for the committee over a six-month period.

Speaking for about nine public health nurses who attended, Mrs. Doris Fisher, a staff nurse of the county health department, asked for higher nursing salaries. A 10 per cent "cost of living" increase plus normal increments was suggested.

She was supported by Mrs. William W. Hinckley, chairman of the Montgomery County Public Health Lay Council, who said the members are not up to the professional pay scale.

Mrs. Waring Dies; Church Worker Here

Mrs. Frank E. Waring, 87, the last surviving charter member of the Calvary Methodist Church, died yesterday at her home at 1423 Newton st. nw.

She was the widow of Frank E. Waring, a Postoffice Department employe until his death in 1923.

Born Henrietta Gledhill in Laneside, Churwell, England, she came to this country at the age of 10. She was married to Mr. Waring in 1887 in Oswego, Kansas, and they moved to Washington to make their home here.

Mrs. Waring was mentioned in a recent history of the Calvary Methodist Church as the "only one of the adult members who remain at this tiem and know from experience the vision, the faith, the courage and the persistence which marked the early years of the Church."

Mrs. Waring is survived by two sons, Paul Edward Waring, 3637 Veazey st. nw., and Ralph Gledhill Waring, Syracuse, N. Y.; and a daughter, Grace Anna Waring Martin of the Newton st. address.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday in the Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will be at Forest Oak, Gaithersburg, Md.

Wife's Charges Held Untrue By Lawrence

All the unkind things his wife says about him are untrue, she has lot of money and doesn't need his, she wants to ruin him, and besides they aren't legally married anyway, Navy Capt. Harold Latta-Lawrence said officially in District Court yesterday.

After two months of a bickering crossfire between the parties by affidavits, Capt. Latta-Lawrence's attorneys filed his formal answer to the suit by blonde and vivacious Eilene Diana Latta-Lawrence for separate maintenance of $300 a month. He lives at the Shoreham Hotel and she at the Roosevelt.

The answer admits that on April 22, 1948, the couple went through a marriage ceremony.

"Such marriage ceremony," he said in his answer, "did not constitute a valid, legal or binding marriage between plaintiff (her) and defendant (him) and that plaintiff (her) at the time said marriage was performed was a married woman under a previous marriage contracted with another man."

Although she seeks $300 a month from him, "plaintiff at all times represented to defendant that she is a woman of large financial means and with a large independent income and that her income was approximately four times that of defendant," the handsome captain said.

He also said she owns more than $100,000 worth of property while all he has is his Navy pay and allowances and $500 in cash.

Civic Association Thanks Kefauver

The Northeast Boundary Civic Association last night approved a resolution expressing its "gratitude and appreciation" to Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) for his home rule leadership.

The resolution, approved at a meeting in the Burrville School, 50th and Hayes sts. ne., praised Senator Kefauver's "great leadership in legislative efforts to provide self-government in the District of Columbia."

At the same time a petition was directed to the House of Representatives asking for passage of the Senate-approved home rule legislation.

248 Killed In Ship Blast To be Buried

Group burial services for the 248 servicemen killed on the cargo-ship Serpens, which exploded off Guadalcanal in January, 1945, will be held Wednesday at Arlington National Cemetery.

Two former District area residents, both of the Coast Guard, will be buried in the 1:30 p. m. ceremony.

F/1 Harlow

MM/1 Turner

They are Machinist Mate first class Hubert Turner, husband of Mrs. Mary Turner of 1841 Columbia rd. nw., and Fireman first class William Henry Harlow, son of William L. Harlow of 316 South Patrick st., Alexandria, Va.

The Serpens was completely destroyed in an ammunition explosion off Lunga Beach, Guadalcanal, on January 29, 1945, in one of the worst Coast Guard disasters on record.

E. H. Myers, Ex-Ordnance Worker, Dies

Funeral services will be at Fort Myer Chapel at 2 p. m. today for Everett H. Myers, 68, retired War Department ordnance worker, who died last Tuesday in Bay Pines Veterans Hospital at St. Petersburg, Fla. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Born in Elsberry, Mo., Mr. Myers was a veteran of both the Spanish-American War and World War I, serving as a captain of ordnance in the latter. For his World War I service he was awarded both the Distinguished Service Medal and the Purple Heart.

Mr. Myers had been employed in the office of the Chief of Ordnance in various capacities for more than 25 years before his retirement in 1944. While working here, he made his home in Bethesda, Md., but about a year ago moved to Zephyrhills, Fla.

Mr. Myers was a life member of Zeredatha Lodge, No. 198, F. A. A. M., of St. Joseph, Mo.; a past high priest of Washington Chapter No. 2, Royal Arch Masons, and a member of Washington Council No. 1, Royal and Select Masters.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Minnie B. Myers, of Zephyrhills; a son, L. H. Myers, of Omaha, Nebr.; a daughter, Mrs. Walter Massey, of Venice, Calif., and a sister, Mrs. J. J. McNeill, of Cushing, Okla.

Samuel W. Sisson, Sr.

Samuel Walter Sisson, sr., 82, retired carpenter and lifelong resident of Fairfax County, died Sunday after a long illness at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ernest Jerman, The Plains, Va.

Mr. Sisson

Funeral services will be held Wednesday, which would have been his 83d birthday, at the Everly funeral home in Fairfax. Burial will be in Fairfax Cemetery.

Mr. Sisson was a judge of elections for Fairfax precinct for more than 20 years. He belonged to the Fairfax Council, Order of Fraternal Americans.

Besides Mrs. Jerman, his other surviving children are Mrs. Florence M. Whalen, Mrs. Leonard A. Dewey and Samuel W. Sisson, jr., all of Fairfax; Edward L. Sisson of Falls Church, and John C. Sisson, 1307 New Hampshire ave. nw. He is also survived by 21 grandchildren and 24 great grandchildren.

Rev. Ward G. Brown, Jr.

News of the death yesterday at Chattanooga, Tenn., of the Rev. Ward Gabriel Brown, jr., a youthful evangelist known in several Southern States, was received by relatives in Washington whom he has visited frequently.

The evangelist, who was 22, has been preaching since he was 18. Though still pursuing theological studies at Emory University, Atlanta, Ga., he was licensed as a minister in his home at Louisville, Ky. While attending Emory, he was serving as assistant pastor of First Methodist Church, Griffin, Ga. He was injured in an auto accident while returning from a church conference with another theological student, and died in a Chattanooga hospital.

Surviving are his parents, of Louisville; his grandmother, Mrs. Lulu P. Wisdom, and an uncle, John B. Wisdom, 1468 Newton st. nw. Funeral services and burial will be at 10:30 a. m. Wednesday, at Louisville.

Robertson Rites to Be Held Today

A contractor for many years, Mr. Robertson helped in the construction of the Roosevelt Hotel, Jewish Community Center, Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, All Souls Unitarian Church, American Red Cross Building, the Norfolk, Va., Naval Base, and the Army's Camp Stewart in Georgia.

A native of Lynchburg, Va., Mr. Robertson had lived in the District since 1911, graduating from Georgetown University Law School in 1916.

For the past 15 years he devoted most of his time to his law practice. He was a member of the District and American Bar Associations and had been admitted to practice before the Supreme Court.

He was one of the founders and general counsel of the Shirlington Business Center in Virginia.

Mr. Robertson is survived by his wife, the former Juliette Covington; a son, James C. Robertson, jr., 4003 N. Glebe rd., Arlington, Va.; a daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Draeger, 2409 N. Military rd., Arlington, and four grandchildren.

Funeral services will take place at 10 a. m. today at the Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Private burial services will be held at Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Mrs. Julia B. Howe

Mrs. Julia B. Howe, 80, a District resident for the past 20 years, died Sunday at Gallingher Hospital after an illness of about a month.

Mrs. Howe, whose home was at 1422 N st. nw., had also resided here previously at various times during her life. A native of Faison, N. C., she attended college at Greenville, N. C.

She was the widow of Earle W. Howe, who died last year. They had lived in Charleston, S. C., for about 10 years before they came to Washington permanently.

Mrs. Howe was a constant attendant at meetings of the Unity religious group, and attended the National City Christian Church.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p. m. on Wednesday at the Chambers funeral home, 1400 Chapin st. nw., with the Rev. W. Kenneth Lyons of the Anacostia Methodist Church officiating. Interment will be in Washington National Cemetery.

She is survived by a son by a previous marriage, Marion E. Fisher, 69 Hawaii ave. ne.; three sisters, Mrs. Annie Lou Von Miller of 1020 10th st. nw., Mrs. Pearl Martin of Arlington, Va., and Mrs. Ralph K. Thornley of St. Louis; a brother, Herbert H. Clifton of Faison; two grandsons and one great granddaughter.

Ladylike Linen Makes Summer Debut

By Peggy Preston

LINEN, that most ladylike of summer fabrics, is currently making its annual fair-weather bid for recognition.

It's getting a nice reception, too. Crisp, dainty and with an air of aloof good taste it is lending itself prettily to such articles of fashion as shoes, handbags, full length costume coats, hats, sportswear and evening frocks.

We specially like it in Washington because we are accused of having a tropical climate here on the Potomac from May until September, and linen found its first devotees, generations ago, in the Tropics. The loosely woven linen was the earliest of the so-called "air-cooled" fabrics, and proved so sturdy as well, that men claimed it for their warm-weather suits.

Chiffons, voiles and lightly woven rayons are rivaling the daytime popularity of linen this season, but pure Irish linen, crease-resistant and handsome, is not apt to suffer greatly from this competition. It remains at the head of the list with women who like both chic and comfort in their dress.

Color Combinations

Dramatic color combinations can be achieved with these versatile linens, which launder like a dream. White, of course, enjoys a never waning importance season after season. Combined with touches of black velvet it becomes sophisticated enough for formal wear.

Other cool effects are achieved with natural, beige and earth tones; or with parchment, platinum and gray. You can look fresh-as-a-daisy on a wilting day (for a few hours or so, at least) in a simply cut light gray linen, accessorized with white—a white brimmed white hat, bag and gloves. If you want most drama, wear a cool aquamarine hat with dyed-to-match linen pumps.

Natural and beige linens take on added character when combined with colors. Try matching one with a shiny brown straw hat, a natural straw bag, bronze sandals, and a leather belt. For a more self-assured mood, team up earthy hues in your linen dress or suit with black accessories.

Word from Manhattan tells us that the picturesque woolen "priglavci"—the hand-woven woolen slippers known for centuries as the "people's slipper"—will make their bow in America this year.

These comfies, made in Yugoslavia, are on exhibit at the Canadian International Trade Fair which opened in Toronto on May 31. So soft even with leather soles they can be rolled up in the pocket of a robe packed for traveling, they will find a ready welcome with America's travel-minded public.

Ancient Handicraft

The "priglavic" are typical of Yugoslavia's centuries-old handicraft industries, in which whole villages join in the production of the same item. The woolen slippers are woven in a variety of designs typical of the Bosnia Province. Reds, tans and greens are used in the upper half which comes just above the ankle. The thin leather sole, back and tip, also come in colors.

Outgrown Shop to Hold Summer Sale

The annual summer sale at the Junior League's Outgrown Shop will take place Thursday and Friday, June sixteenth and seventeenth, from 9:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. The shop, located at 2001 Massauchetts ave. nw., is operated by League members for the benefit of the Department of Psychiatry at Children's Hospital.

Mrs. James Q. May, Shop Chairman, and her assistant, Mrs. Robert Bogue, have a corps of volunteers ready to assist as "saleswomen" during the two day sale. Included are Mrs. J. William Herron, Mrs. B. Gordon Dickey, Mrs. William Easton, Miss Betty Easton, Mrs. James F. Flynn, Mrs. John B. Stanley, Miss Mary McLaugrlin and Mrs. Clyde Doran.

Mrs. David P. Guest, Shop Manager, announces that several new lots of children's clothing will be displayed following the sale. The shop will remain closed Wednesday, June 15, and Saturday, June 18. It will be closed for the summer on July 15.

Barbecue Held at Thomas Farm

A SWIMMING POOL and barbecue supper helped lure almost 200 friends of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Thomas to their summer home in Warrenton, Va., Saturday evening. Guests at North Rock also had their choice of croquet, badminton or a competitive game of horseshoes between dips in the pool.

When appetities were sharpened by the activity and cool evening air—and the fragrance of food broiling on the barbeque — the guests were served a buffet supper which included food from the kitchen range as well as the tempting barbeque items.

The guests sat around small tables on the lawn, listening to the alternating happy and sad folksongs of the Virginia mountins, sung with guitar accompaniment by a Warrenton singer.

Shakespeare to Sartre

If the Chopin Centennial Falls, There's Always the Existentialist 'Nitery'

By Mary Van Rensselear Thayer

PARIS—Besides the razzle-dazzle, there are all sorts of very special things to do and see in Paris—an exhibition of eighteenth century drawings at the Musee de Jeu de Pomme; a magnificent exhibition of four centuries of French tapestries at the Musee des Arts Decoratifs; music and ballet inspired by the Chopin centennial. A ballet performance at the Palais de Chaillot with stars and corps de ballet honoring Chopin. And, most moving, what was called a "Concert Historique" given at 12 Place Vendome in the room where Chopin died.

Victor Gille played a "Mazourka" found on Chopin's desk after his death; the Comtesse Delphine Potocka sang the "Pasume de Mercelle" at his piano; poems and eulogies were recited. The windows of the high ceilinged room were thrown open and a large, respectful crowd stood below in the Place Vendome. Afterward a "Souper Romantique" was served in the nearby salons of Drecill's dressmaking shop.

Over at the Invalides, a new collection of Napoleonana was displayed, hats, shoes, bibelots, portraits of the Emperor, of Josephine and Louise. And, to be classed with culture, the midnight show at the Existentialist night club, La Rose Rouge—merely a small, pathetic man called Zozo, who acted a minute scene on the rear platform of a Paris bus. But the scene is played in at least 15 different styles, from Shakespeare to Sartre.

Radishes by Night

FASHION wise, Paris is doing fine. The indefatigable personalities of the high couture, during the Paris season, never miss a social outing. Though, presumably, they work daytimes, all turn up nights as kings or queens, radishes, popular songs, or bedecked with exotic plumage. Most retiring is Christian Dior; most spectacular, who hunt in couples, are the Marcel Rochas and the Jacques Faths. Bachelor Jean Desses is often accompanied by his handsome publicity director, Madame Bory; Elsa Schiaparelli's extra man list is stupendous and Captain Molyneux's ditto of pretty ladies, equally impressive.

Schiaparelli, who lives in a magnificent house, magpie-full of valuable bits smothered in a kaleidescope of silver mounted horns, feather flowers sous cloche, fur rugs and shoals of flexible silver and brass fish, is definitely on the up-and-up. Her gayest current idea is summer hats made like tiny houses. Around town, half the smart ladies wear Dior's dress with the pointed pockets shooting shoulder high. Best Dior advertisement is Mme. Henri Bonnet who, at Mme. Jacquline Patenotre's big dinner party, launched a slim gray dress embroidered with thickly massed crystal beads which spread, down and up from the waistline, in a spatter of tear-sized crystal drops.

Jean Desses' clothes are lovely, wearable. Princess Margaret Rose made a beeline there soon after her arrival. Though the pocket-sized princess wasn't allowed to orde rany French creations, she admired a number and, later that night, leaving Florence's, she pleased the Desses publicity department no end by wearing one of their scarves over her head. Mrs. David Bruc, who has bought some of the prettiest models, received at an embassy cocktail party in a navy blue and white printed frock with a wide decolletage, a short, intricately peg-topped skirt.

Generally speaking, practically "everyone" in Paris owns a white hat, carries a long handled umbrella, wears the most elaborate, often "trained" evening gown, small fur neckpieces of flat, headless platinum fox.

Hen Parties Click

THE David Bruces are an overwhelming success and "all" Paris is outdoing itself with praise. Before trunks were unpacked or the two Bruce children installed, the Secretary of State and Mrs. Acheson, the Secretary's adviser, Mr. Battle, arrived as house guests. Without pause, the Ambassador's lady plunged into a series of dinners and cocktail parties.

Mrs. Bruce continued a startling innovation launched last winter when her husband was chief of the ECA mission in France. The novelty, hitherto unheard of in Paris, where gents insist on lunching at home, is a hen party! Classing large hen parties as the ultimate social horror, it was quite a shock when a French lady gurgled, "It is such FUN, these hen parties of Mme. Bruce!" However, in Paris, a hen party seemed different. Possibly it was the wine or the indescribably lush dessert, but probably it was the potent charm of Mme. Bruce!

Of those recently transferred from Washington's French Embassy back to the Quai d'Orsay, the Francois Charles-Rouxs own a delightful apartment high under the roof of an old house on the Rue des Sts. Peres. Francois Charles-Roux handles the press at the Big Four Conference, briefing them in a manner similar to State Department Counselor Charles Bohlen. The Henri Claudels, who now own a ravishing Louis XIV house smack on the Seine at Chatou, have also acquired a Briard dog. Christine Claudel has a job, too; she's a fashion editor of Elle, a weekly magazine.

It's so gay in Paris that Monica Wallner, whose husband "Woody" formerly headed the State Department's French desk, said half jokingly, "The only meal we're not asked out to is breakfast." Oh, for a couple of more weeks in Paree!

India to Keep Free From Power Blocs in Aiding Democracy

By Genevieve Reynolds

"IT WAS inevitable that India should march side by side with the democracies," India's Ambassador Mme. Pandit told members of the Woman's National Democratic Club yesterday in a luncheon speech.

She said that the most oft-repeated question here is, "Where is India going in the struggle between the East and West.

"If people had had any idea of Indian history there should be no questions of where she is going," explained Mme. Pandit.

"Ancient India was essentially a democratic country," she continued. "At that time it was further advanced in democracy than any country in the world."

Referring to India's stand during World War II, she said that India announced it wouldn't cooperate yet some 200,000 soldiers were aiding the Allies.

"The position taken was that India had contributed liberally in 1914 thinking it would get reforms," she averred, "but instead got further restrictions. So the people made up their minds that they wouldn't fight in World War II unless they knew they would be rewarded with freedom."

With the announcement of the Atlantic Charter India's hopes rose. However, the hopes were dashed again when she was told that India might or mght not be included, according to the Envoy.

Opposed Invasion

Then she reminded her audience, the largest ever at the club luncheons, that when Manchuria was invaded, India was the only country to pass resolutions opposing it; that when Mussolini invaded Ethiopia it again raised her voice in protest.

She also pointed out that India was perturbed by the rise of fascism in Italy, Spain and Germany and disturbed over the Munich Pact.

"My party had predicted years before what would happen," said Mme. Pandit. "So if today, India tries to keep free of power blocs, it is so we may be more effective in aiding or contributing to the democratic forces when needed.

"The West has tried many methods and failed," she continued. "There have been two wars which have changed so much the face of the earth that it will never be the same. Nothing is lost in exploring and exploiting a new method?"

Asked specifically what India's contribution to the world and democracies would be, she replied, "The unique contribution India can make is her technique of nonviolence by which we won our freedom."

Queried if India is interested in a United India to include Pakistan, Mme. Pandit answered, "It's too early yet to say. But an Indian-Pakistan reunion is possible because the partition of the two is artificial."

To the question, "When do you expect India to complete and adopt its new constitution?" Mme. Pandit replied that she thought the new Constitution now being drafted would be adopted by the end of 1949 and elections held in 1950.

As for the status of women in India, the silvery-haired, soft-spoken envoy cited the fact that in the recent election held in her home province—United Province of India—32 women were named president and 10 vice presidents of village and province governments; that 28 women were elected court judges and 700 to the executive committees of councils.

Women Demand a Voice

Asserting that the women of India have complete equality with the men and are working side by side with them in all phases of national life, she added that she doubted if the Indian women would be willing to accept the exclusion from policy-making jobs as American women do. "We women want a say in the making of the policies of our nation," she added.

Mrs. Julien Friant, club president, presided and introduced Mme. Pandit, who received a spontaneous ovation when club members and their guests rose spontaneously on their feet. Even the overflow of guests in the garden stood when the envoy was presented.

15 to Receive Honor Scrolls From Negro Women's Council

REPRESENTATIVES Frances Bolton and Chase Going Woodhouse will be among 15 women to receive scrolls of honor from the National Council of Negro Women at its annual honor day event, next Sunday, 5 p. m., at the council house, 1318 Vermont ave. nw.

Miss Frieda Miller, chief, Women's Bureau, U. S. Department of Labor, and Dr. Martha Elliott also have been selected for the award.

Others chosen to honor scroll recipients include Anthropologist Ethel J. Alpenfels for her "outstanding professional contributions in the field of human relations from the anthropological point of view," and Charlotte Hawkins Brown, founder-president of the Palmer Memorial Institute "for her prominence in the field of education and her outstanding service to humanity."

Athlete Included

ALICE COACHMAN, Olympic gold medal winner, was chosen for international achievement in the field of athletics, and Eleanor Curtis Dailey for outstanding services in interracial and international actvities.

Stage Star Cornelia Otis Skinner was picked for her "distinguished service in the promotion of human rights and freedom of opportunity to attend and enjoy the theater."

Scrolls of honor also will go to Christine Ray Davis "for her 12 years of distinguished service as a congressional secretary and for her appointment as chief clerk of a major congressional committee; Rosa Slade Gragg, founder-president of the Slade-Gragg Academy of Practical Arts, for prominence in the field of human relation and distinguished service to her community; Ella Griffin, editorial assistant of the United States Department of Education, for outstanding service in the field of adult education with special emphasis on the development of materials for literary education and education for better living.

For Social Service

ALSO, Julia West Hamilton, president of Phyllis Wheatley YWCA, for "leadership among women and for service to civic and social progress"; Majorie Stewart Joyner, founder-president, National Association of Beauty Culture School Owners and Teachers, "for outstanding service in the field of cosmetology and successful organizational activities; to Muriel Bahn, concert artist, for her contributions in the field of music and "for her meritorious service in local and national activities.

Mrs. Bolton was selected for "distinguished meritorious service as a legislator in the fields of nursing education and public health."

Mrs. Woodhouse was chosen for her leadership in the organization of women and for outstanding contributions as a legislator to social progress."

In announcing the women to be honored, Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, founder-president of the council, said "these women are but a symbol of the mind, the heart and soul of the womanhood of the world who unitedly work for a world of peace, freedom and justice for all."

Misses Tartiere and Foskett Make Debuts

AT A tea in Middleburg, Va., on Sunday afternoon, Miss Elaine Marie Tartiere was presented to society by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond F. Tartiere. The party was held at the Tartiere residence, and the guests who attended were drawn from Middleburg, Warrenton and neighboring towns.

Miss Tartiere wore a cool gray frock of organdy tied with a pink sash, and she carried a bouquet of pale pink roses and babies-breath. Her mother was in white and blue to match the blue and white flowers placed in the drawing room.

A cousin of the debutante, Miss Monique Tartiere of Paris, attended the party. Friends of Mrs. Tartiere who took turns presiding at the tea table were Mrs. James B. Skinner, Mrs. Thomas Furness, Mrs. Howell Jackson, and Mrs. Paul Llewelyn of Middleburg; Mrs. Warren Snider of Leesburg, and Mrs. Morris Parris of Marshall, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Tartiere will give a dinner dance for their daughter on Saturday in the garden of their country home. The Tartieres are redecorating a house in Georgetown, and they will divide the summer between Middleburg and Washington. Elaine Marie has taken a job doing radio research work which will claim a good part of her time during the coming months.

Just a week ago, the debutante was graduated from Baldwin School in Bryn Mawr, Pa. She is also a graduate of the Sacred Heart Convent.

Miss Foskett Bows

At the home of Mrs. John Kent Kane in West Chester, Pa., on Sunday, her granddaughter, Miss Margaret Kane Foskett, daughter of Rear Adm. and Mrs. James H. Foskett of Washington, made her debut to Philadelphia society. The debutante, who was graduated from Mount Vernon Seminary last week, will be off with her mother early in July for Saunderstown, R. I., to spend the summer at her grandmother's summer home. Admiral Foskett, unable to be on hand for his daughter's party, is expected back in mid-September from Europe, where he is serving as commander of a cruiser division in the Mediterranean.

For her debut tea Miss Foskett wore a bouffant gown of peach-colored tulle trimmed with silver lace and she held an old-fashioned bouquet. Mrs. Foskett's gown was of aqua taffeta and lace, and Mrs. Kane wore blue-gray silk. Mrs. Charles J. Foskett, other grandmother of the debutante, was also in the line, wearing gray crepe accented with pastel bead trimming.

Mother Saves Baby Hanging By Neck From Rungs of Bed

A mother saved her 7-month-old baby from probable strangulation yesterday when the child's neck became caught in the rungs of her mother's bed.

Mrs. William Shaffer, of 336 13th st. se., said she entered the second-floor bedroom to find Linda suspended by her neck, her body hanging completely outside the bed. She had left the child on the bed while she went into the yard.

Mrs. Shaffer, wife of an electrician's helper, freed the baby, and tried to give artificial respiration before calling the telephone operator, who notified police and called an ambulance.

The baby was taken to Children's Hospital, where her condition last night was reported satisfactory.

Miss Bernadino on Radio Broadcast

Lunching in The Mayflower Lounge yesterday and enjoying the weekly fashion show were Miss Minerva Bernadino, Miss Malvina Stephenson and Mrs. Robert Sherrod, all three of whom were interviewed by Bab Lincoln and heard last evening in her WOL broadcast.

Also lunching in the Lounge were Mrs. William O. Douglas, wife of the Associate Justice; Mrs. Allan Moulton of Warrenton; Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Tiedman of Gibson Island; Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, jr., Mrs. William T. Mann, Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Ansberry.

D. C. Court Upheld In AAUW Decision

The United States Court of Appeals yesterday upheld a District Court decision that the Washington branch, American Association of University Women, cannot be expelled by the parent body because it refuses to accept Negro members

The appellate decision, written by Judge Bennett Champ Clark, upheld the opinion of Chief Judge Bolitha J Laws, on July 16, 1948, that the Washington branch had a right to pass on admission of women eligible for membership

The court's decision yesterday also upheld Judge Laws' ruling against a minority group in the branch which has sided with the national organization

Convention in Seattle

The Washington branch in a referendum last month voted to withdraw from the national association if "autonomy" of local branches is restricted by action taken at the biennial convention. The convention will be held in Seattle June 19-23.

The dispute, as a result of which the Washington branch has moved from the national clubhouse at 1634 I st. nw. and established clubrooms at 1515 New Hampshire ave. nw., arose in October, 1946, when the local group refused to admit as a member Mrs. Mary Church Terrell, a Negro. Mrs. Terrell, widow of a Municipal Court Judge, had been a member of the Washington group at one time but dropped out. She is a member of the national association.

Judge Laws said that under the by-laws of the national, the national directors have powers to carry out the provisions of the AAUW charter and its by-laws, but may not act in conflict with existing by-laws or amend them. The by-laws, he said, may be amended only at the national convention.

Society Style

The decision yesterday said: "We agree fully with Chief Judge Laws' position. But we think it desirable to add that there is another very important provision to be considered. That is, that on the undisputed record the national by-laws contain provisions for not only branch memberships but for national memberships not dependent on any branch."

Judge Wilbur K. Miller and E. C. Barrett Prettyman heard the appeal with Judge Clark.

Polio Victim Peggy Walker Gets Diploma From Fairfax

Peggy Walters, 17, has never been to school in her life, but she was one of 138 who received diplomas at Fairfax High School's graduation last night.

Peggy

When Peggy was 5, both her legs and one arm were crippled by poliomyelitis. She couldn't go to school, so school came to her. Once each week the county teacher for homebound children came to her Oakton home to hear her lessons and give her new assignments. She was largely on her own during 11 years of schoolin.g.

Her most recent instructor was Mrs. Grace Arnold, of Falls Church.

Peggy took the commercial course and hopes to do bookkeeping at home for some nearby business concern. Until the graduation activities of the last few days, the only time Peggy had been with her classmates was an occasion when she visited a typing class to see if she was keeping pace with the rest.

Another home-confined student, Alice Byrd Bailey, was graduated from Herndon High School last Friday.

The other two county high schools also held graduation ceremonies yesterday. Falls Church graduated 123 at afternoon exercises at the high school. Mount Vernon High School awarded diplomas to 122 yesterday morning at the Reed Theater in Alexandria.

1000 Women Register for Short Course

By The Associated Press

More than 1,000 farm and small town women registered at the University of Maryland yesterday for a short course offering subjects ranging from homemaking to parliamentary.

This year's five-day rural women's week is built around the theme "today's home builds tomorrow's world."

The women, ranging from those just out of the bobby sox stage to matrons well up in the 60's, began arriving early this morning.

They were assigned rooms in the student dormitories and given dining hall tickets, and then spent most of the rest of the day getting acquainted for renewing old friendships.

Some return year after year.

Meeting of the executive board Homemakers Clubs and of the homemakers Clubs and of the official board of the State Women's Rural Short Course Club were held this afternoon.

Later a tea for members of the State board executive council and for county council presidents was held. Dean Marie Mount of the university's college of home economics was hostess.

The first formal gathering of all the "students" took place at 7 p. m. vesper service conducted by the Rev. L. Ralph Tabor of the Luther Place Memorial Church.

Classes and general assemblies start tomorrow.

Dr. Chih-Mai Chen, Counselor of the Chinese Embassy, will describe the spread of communism in Asia at tomorrow's assembly.

Consecration Of Bishop Set Thursday

Archbishop-elect Francesco G. Lardone, of Catholic University, will be consecrated as Titular Archbishop of Rhizaeum and Apostolic Nuncio to Haiti and San Domingo at ceremonies June 30.

Catholic University authorities said the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicogani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States, will be the consecrating prelate at the 10 a. m. ceremonies in the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception.

The co-consecrators will be the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, and the Most Rev. Egidio Vagnozzi, Titular Archbishop of Mira and recently named Apostolic Delegate to the Philippines. Archbishop Vagnozzi, who was formerly assigned to the apostolic delegation here, was consecrated in Rome on May 22. He will come to Washington en route to the Philippines for the consecration of Archbishop-elect Lardone.

Archbishop-elect Lardone, a native of Moretta, Italy, came to the United States in 1924, joining the Catholic University faculty as professor of Roman law.

He was elevated to the rank of domestic prelate with the title of the right reverend monsignor in April, 1937. In April, 1940, he was appointed director of studies of the ecclesiastical schools of the university.

In May, 1940, he received the Papal Cross "Pro Ecclesia et Pontifice" from Pope Pius XII for his work on the golden jubilee observance of Catholic University.

In April, 1946, he was honored with the rank of Prothonotary Apostolic, which gave him the privilege of celebrating pontifical high mass with the use of the ring, pectoral cross, miter and other evidences of his office.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

"Speak to Bruce First"

The adjustments of the young child to a new baby are often made more difficult because friends and relatives don't stop to think. They are likely to "ooh" and "ah" over the baby as soon as they come in and then, as an afterthought, say something to the older child. Naturally, he feels even more out of things than usual and may show his jealousy in some of the ways that children do.

Recently I heard of a family who after a number of such experiences, worked out a little scheme that helped a good deal. On the door of the house a large sign was posted which said: "Speak to Bruce First." Just this simple though rather direct hint did the job. Two-year-old Bruce got the attention he needed and felt so good about it that he showed very few signs of jealousy when visitors were around.

You may not want to put signs up around the house, but the principle of the thing is very sound. However you do it, help the folks who visit your new baby realize that the other youngsters are still in the family.

Recipe For Making a Perfect White Sauce

In making a white sauce, melt the fat in a saucepan, then remove from the heat before adding the flour. Now add cold milk gradually, with the saucepan still off the heat, stirring as you do so. After all the milk has been added, continue to stir well until there are no more lumps. A half teaspoon of salt is usually plenty for two cups of the sauce.

About Giving A Baby Shower

I am planning on giving a baby shower and will invite about 30 people. Would you kindly suggest a clever way of decorating, presenting the gifts, and give me suggestions for light refreshments? I would like a good, but inexpensive punch recipe. Are there any games we could play, or what sort of entertainment should I plan, if any? F. L.

The "Cokesbury Shower Book" by Katherine Fite and Garland Clawson Paine (Abingdon Cokesbury Press) outlines in detail arrangements for several baby shower parties. One of the party ideas given is for a Layette Shower.

The invitations for this party are written on a sheet of paper folded like a diaper and pinned with tiny safety pins.

For entertainment each guest is provided with a small celluloid baby doll and several pieces not more than four inches square of soft, pastel-colored material. Provide needle and thread but no scissors. The person dressing her baby in the neatest fashion in a prescribed length of time receives a prize—perhaps a rattle or paper of safety pins.

Another game suggested by the authors for this party is to give each person a slip of paper upon which a nursery rhyme has been written. One person pantomimes the rhyme given to her while the others try to decide what she is doing. The most clever actress receives a prize.

The decorations for the party can center around the table from which the food is served. As a centerpiece for the table you could arrange a tiny, gaily decorated umbrella with wrapped gifts under it. Or, you could just decorate the rooms with a profusion of early summer flowers.

Another way to present the gifts would be to have them brought to the hostess in advance of the party. She would then wrap them in a baby blanket so it appears to be a baby. When the time arrives for presenting the gifts the hostess brings in the bundle carrying it as she would a baby and lays it in the lap of the honor guest. The blanket could be the hostess' gift.

Here is a very attractive fruit punch:

MINT JULIP ICED TEA
2 cups tea infusion
1 bunch mint, crushed
½ cup lemon juice
1 cup orange juice
2 cups grapefruit juice
¾ cup sugar
3 whol. cloves.
MIX AND CHILL several hours.

When ready to serve strain and add ¼ cup each of diced pineapple and sliced marachino cherries, 1 orange sliced thinly and 1 quart carbonated water. Pour into tall glasses half filled with ice and top with sprig of fresh mint. Serves 15 tall glasses.

Please tel' me the best method to use in preventing the chrome stripping around the sink from rubbing off on the front of clothes. I have tried varnish, but this only lasts for a few weeks. Is there a permanent or long-lasting prevention? R. A. E.

I want to buy an electric wash boiler in order to be able to boil diapers, etc., in my basement. In England such boilers are common but I have been unable to find one here. Are they available? If not, do you think an electric bottle sterilizer would be any use for this purpose? Can you tell me what is usually done here? J. C.

I don't know of an electric wash boiler available here. You could buy a two-burner electric plate and a regular wash boiler to use in boiling diapers in the basement. I'm afraid you would find the bottle sterilizer inadequate to heat the amount of water you would need.

Mothers here seem to be getting away from boiling diapers. One substitution for boiling them is to add a cup of household bleach to the washer full of hot soapy water when they are washed. The bleach is a disinfectant so takes the place of sterilization and it also whitens the diapers. When bleach is used in the wash water be sure to rinse the diapers three times in clear water to completely remove every trace of bleach.

I'm interested in joining a child study group. I've been unable to locate such a group in this area (North Arlington near Falls Church). Could any of your readers help me out? V. V.

How about it, readers?

I know of nothing which would be more permanent than a spar varnish. Perhaps, if you would apply several coats it would last longer. Also, are you sure the surface is entirely free from oil and wax before the varnish is applied? If it was not clean the varnish would peel off quickly. To clean it, wash with turpentine or benzine and allow to dry completely before applying the varnish.

A cleaner I left in my apartment recently soaked the top pieces of my gas range in a strong cleaner, but used my light green kitchen sink to soak them in. It, of course, took a lot of the enamel off. Is there any enamel paint or anything of that kind that can be successfully used on the sink? E. R.

The finish of a sink must be baked on to be impervious to heat and water. Because of this, there is nothing you can apply now to your sink to restore the enamel.

PETUNIA!

Frequently my potted plants
Need a hearty sip
But when I drench the hanging one
Drip . . . drip . . . drip!

Bishop-Bracken

SUSIE Q. SMITH

"Oh, THIS? . . . Slugger and I are gonna have a game of catch during intermission."

A summertime filling for tea sandwiches is one made of finely chopped or grated cucumber mixed with creamed butter or margarine; add salt and freshly ground papper to taste and spread on thin whole wheat bread.

Be sure to dry fish fillets after you have washed them, using a paper or some other soft towel. To give the fillets a delicious crisp crust, dip them in slightly beaten egg and cracker crumbs before frying, or in milk and corn meal. Lemon wedges are a "must" when it comes to serving the fillets.

ONE on the Aisle—

32 Warner Films A Happy Augury

By Richard L. Coe

PEOPLE: The Brothers Warner—Jack, Harry and Albert—are a happy band . . . They've just concluded a three-day convention and, after a rough winter of studio inactivity, they've got 32 pictures completed or in the works . . . This is much to the liking of theater owners, whose wails about the movies always exceed the public's . . . Apart from their sturdy stable of stars, to which Jimmy Cagney is returning after trying the track on his own, they've also lured in some of the players under contract to the retiring Mr. Selznick . . . These include such hot folk as Gregory Peck, Burt Lancaster, Jennifer Jones, Joseph Cotten, Louis Jourdan and Rory Calhoun . . . They've grabbed Kirk Douglas, now riding high from his "Champion" success, the reliable Randolph Scott, the wonderful Dietrich and the gallant John Wayne . . . The Warner trio claims it can't miss with this setup and the Independent Film Journal is more than pleased at what the future holds for the world's 90,097 movie theaters.

IRVING BERLIN'S music for "Miss Liberty" was completed months ago, but suddenly a batch of new and delectably tuneful numbers was put into rehearsal . . . "What's up?" he was asked . . . "Well, I'll tell you. I went to see 'South Pacific' and decided to show the boys how to write tunes." . . . "Miss Liberty" is at Philadelphia's Forrest Theater this week, but unless you've got your tickets, stay put . . . It's a sellout for three weeks in the Quaker town and the Gotham advance is outrunning "South Pacific" and "Kiss Me, Kate."

FRED S. KOGOD, the K-B theater man and Variety Club wheelhorse, is about to have a fiftieth birthday celebration befitting Queen Victoria's golden jubilee . . . His Variety Club pals are planning a Mayflower dinner on the 22d that will be one of the events of the year in Capital film circles . . . Kogod's push to the neighborhood theater chains has been tremendous and his accent on handsome neighborhoods has given him a unique name among theater men . . . As master of the Apex, Atlas, MacArthur, Naylor and Senator theaters, he's proud of the earlier runs he's forced for neighborhoods and of playing the foreign film hits, often neglected in the nabes . . . Fred is on the D. C. Public Welfare Board and you'll find the theater boys have circled his birthday with a very strong pencil.

DREW PEARSON'S picture, as "City Across the River" is sometimes called, comes into the Capitol Thursday, an adaptation of "The Amboy Dukes" . . . It's just gotten the stamp of approval from New York's police department, which also has been pleased with Sidney Kingsley's play, "Detective Story."

JOHN GASSNER keeps on the track as one of the theater's busiest anthologists . . . Now he's out with a new companion to his two volumes on "Best Plays of the Modern American Theater." . . . This, published by Crown for five smacks, contains 25 "Best Plays" from 1916 to 1929, going from O'Neill's "The Hairy Ape" and "Desire Under the Elms," through "Paris Bound," "The Road to Rome," "The Front Page," "Street Scene" and "Saturday's Children" to Edna St. Vincent Millay's "Aria da Capo." . . . The previous volumes cover the periods from '29 to '39 and '39 to '47 . . . That means Gassner gives you every word now of 62 plays over the past 33 years for $13. . . . Good buy.

SAM ROTH, the Virginia exhibitor, has bought him another Washington theater, the Stanton at 6th and C sts. ne., adding it to his recently purchased Carolina Theater, 11th and North Carolina ave. se.

KENT SMITH has joined the cast of Helen Hayes' "Good Housekeeping," which will close the Olney season prior to the McCleery comedy's Broadway opening . . . Which reminds you that Smith was one of those fabulous University Players which in the early thirties contained such youthful enthusiasts as Henry Fonda, James Stewart, Joshua Logan, Bretaigne Windust, Mildred Natwick and Margaret Sullavan . . . Didja see Miss Sullavan sightseeing here, by the way, over the weekend? . . . Yup, 'twas she, not a double.

FATHER HARTKE and Walter Kerr of Catholic University's drama department, are busy shaking hands these days out in Los Angeles, where the Catholic Theater Conference is bringing together 1000 delegates of diverse theater groups across the land.

TONIGHT at Olney brings the opening of Frances Starr in "The Corn Is Green." . . . with her two children, Mary and James Gordon MacArthur, in the cast, it's a reasonable bet that Helen Hayes will be in the house some night this week . . . Eleven-year-old Jamie has one line and for it he'll get $25 and board . . . In case you haven't yet caught on, the Olney's downtown box office is at Jordan's, 13th and G.

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK—There are special rules governing the employment of foreign actors in the American theater—Actors Equity rules similar to those set down by the actors' organization in England. Under special circumstances, Equity frequently waives these rules. Last week Sarah Churchill, daughter of the former Prime Minister, was given permission to tour the summer-stock theaters in "Philadelphi Story" . . . At the same time, in England, Marion Cleveland, granddaughter of President Cleveland, had a chance for a role in a London play, but couldn't get the required permission. Miss Cleveland therefore returned here, and will join her father, Francis Grover Cleveland, at his summer-theater work in Tamworth, N. H.

Danny Kaye, who visited G. B. Shaw last month, knew how to extend his visit to a three-hour one. He brought with him a Polaroid camera, which develops pictures immediately. Shaw, whose hobby is photography, never had seen one and kept Kaye there for three hours trying to get the camera . . . The Intl. Organization of Journalists, a Red-controlled group in Prague, sent questionnaires to several American newspapermen asking, among other things, how often they've received disciplinary fines, where they spend their holidays and their military service . . . Jesse Lasky is in New York trying to find a "Trilby" for his Svengali film.

Richard Conte, the screen star, asked Herman Mankiewicz, the producer-writer, about a Yiddish phrase he had heard, and whose literal translation is "a lively day." Mankiewicz explained that this is a unique phrase with a special connotation, and Conte asked: "Give me an example" . . . "Well," Mankiewicz said, "let's suppose you're visiting your agent and you're both sitting beside the agent's swimming pool. And then the butler comes to the pool and tells your agent that the President of the United States is on the phone, and your agent replies: 'Tell the President I can't speak to him now. I'm busy talking with Richard Conte.' In that case," said Mankiewicz, "you would be justified in uttering the expression 'A Lively Day!'"

Charles M. Lincoln, the former managing editor of the New York World, is in Maine writing a book about his newspaper experiences—and of his association with the four greats of the newspaper world, Bennett, Pulitzer, Munsey and Ochs.

Drinks DDT Solution, Baby In Hospital

Samuel Greenfield, 17 months old, was admitted to Children's Hospital for observation yesterday after he reportedly drank a quantity of a household DDT solution.

The child's mother, Mrs. Robert Greenfield, 6217 4th st. nw., said she noticed he had opened a can of the solution and that there was a noticeable odor of it on him.

A pump was used to empty his stomach.

Hearing Opens On Virginia Phone Boost

Richmond, Va., June 13 (AP).—Counsel for the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. of Virginia today told the State Corporation Commission the company needs increases in rates and charges sufficient to yield a fair return on its property.

"We believe we are entitled to such rates under the law of Virginia; we believe they are essential to the provision of the type of telephone service to which the public of Virginia is accustomed," Attorney T. Justin Moore declared.

His remarks were part of his opening statement made as hearings began on the company's third plea for rate boosts since the end of the war.

Morton L. Wallerstein, counsel for the League of Virginia Counties and certain municipalities opposing the C&P petition, said the objectors in the case represented 637,000 county residents and 750,000 residents of municipalities.

Moore emphasized that the factor contributing most heavily to the company's low earnings situation is the impact of extraordinary public demand for increased service. This, he said, has required the company to enter upon a program of unequalled plant expansion.

The attorney told the commission the proposed schedule will increathe the utility's gross revenues approximately four million dollars and produce additional annual net earnings, after takes, of about $2,300,000.

The attoreny said that the combined effect of increases in 1946 and 1947 raised the average rate for service less than 14 per cent. He declared the company would show in the present case that it is earning a return today which is less than when its second application was filed in September, 1947.

Presentation of the company's case is expected to take at least a week.

Delay Asked In Amendment Of Hatch Act

The Montgomery County Civic Federation last night urged Congress to defer action on HR 1243, which would liberalize the Hatch Act, until the Service Commission reconsiders the act's liberlization.

HR 1243 would amend Section 16 of the Hatch Act to permit Federal workers to actively participate in party campaigns in areas near the District of Columbia where 10 per cent of the voters are employed by the Federal or District governments.

Last night's resolution, proposed by the federation's legislative and legal action committee, said that, while the group favors liberalization of the act, legislation on the amendment should be deferred until the Civil Service Commission has opportunity to liberalize its interpretation of Section 16 after consultation with representatives of local civic groups, especially the Interfederation Council.

During the meeting, all incumbent officers of the federation, except the recording secretary, were reelected.

Returned to office were Herbert N. Eaton, Chevy Chase, president; Walter H. McClenon, Takoma Park, vice president; Mrs. W. W. Rubey, Westmoreland Hills, corresponding secretary, and Mansfield Lonie, Kensington, treasurer.

Joseph M. Mathias, Kensington Estates, was elected recording secretary to replace Ernest Woodchek, who was not a candidate. Woodchek, who held the post for six years, was presented with a brief case in appreciation for his services.

Gravel Truck Death Weapon In Indictment

A charge of second degree murder with a gravel truck as the weapon was contained in an indictment returned by a District Grand Jury yesterday against William Simms, 31, of Forrestville, Md.

The true bill alleges that on May 16, Simms fatally injured John F. Beall, jr., 45, of Hall's, Md., by running him down in the 1500 block of Kenilworth ave. ne.

Beall, according to police, was a passenger in the auto of Ralph A. Garner, Largo rd., Upper Marlboro, Md. After a right-of-way dispute between Garner and Simms, in which Simms' truck banged the rear of Garner's car, the parties stopped. Simms was disarmed of a club and a shoe he brandished, officers said, whereupon he climbed into his truck, started it and ran down Beall, who was standing in the street.

The indictment was one of 24 returned against a total of 31 defendants.

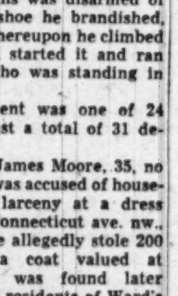
In another, James Moore, 35, no fixed address, was accused of housebreaking and larceny at a dress shop at 1016 Connecticut ave. nw., on May 14. He allegedly stole 200 dresses and a coat valued at $2537.95, and was found later selling them to residents of Ward's Court.

Three men were indicted in separate true bills on charges of taking indecent liberties with young girls.

The three were Jesse J. Crawford, 53, 59 H st. ne., offense against a 10-year-old on April 9 and 11; Lee Poy, also known as Bennie Lee, 74, laundryman, 1412 North Capitol st., offenses against three girls 10 to 15 years old, October 4 and October 14, 1948, and John I. Stely, 24, 3701 13th st. nw., offense against a 10-year-old, on May 25.

Glasser Named To Supervise Child Planning

Melvin A. Glasser has been named director of planning for the Midcentury White House Conference on Children and Youth, it was announced yesterday.



Glasser

Glasser, whose appointment was announced by Katharine F. Lenroot, chief of the Children's Bureau, Federal Security Agency, succeeds to the conference post held temporarily by Dr. Bernice Baxter, on leave of absence from her position as administrative assistant, Oakland (Calif.) Public Schools.

Glasser, who has been active in public and private welfare activities sine the mid 1930s, comes to the Children's Bureau from the American Red Cross, where he has been responsible for foreign operations.

October Set For Exchange Of Pastors

An area-wide exchange of ministers among Presbyterian churches, originally set for May 1 and postponed twice, will take place October 9, it was announced yesterday.

The pulpit exchange was delayed by the Presbytery of Washington City six days before it was to take place after only 2 of 12 churches questioned agreed to accept Negro ministers for the day. The presbytery, composed of 42 churches, has three Negro pastors.

Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, Chevy Chase Circle nw., and Metropolitan Presbyterian Church, 4th and B sts. nw., were the two churches which originally agreed to accept the Negro pastors. Later, Western Presbyterian Church, 1906 H st. nw., announced it would accept the third Negro minister.

After the three churches had announced acceptance of the Negro pastors for a Sunday service, it then was reported the exchange would take place on June 5. When it was found, however, that many of the churches in presbytery had designated June 5 as Communion Sunday, on which there is usually a brief meditation in place of a sermon, the exchange again was put off.

The October date, set yesterday at a meeting of the presbytery at Berwyn (Md.) Presbyterian Church, is definite, spokesmen said. A list of proposed pulpit assignments for the day was distributed and many of the ministers signified their acceptance of the list at the meeting.

Assignments must be accepted by the session of each church before the exchange can be completed. The session is composed of the minister and three to 15 lay members and is the ruling body of the church.

The Rev. James Curtis Fahl, pastor of Metropolitan Presbyterian Church and chairman of the committee arranging the exchange, said the approved list will be mailed out as soon as acceptances have been received from all church sessions probably in August.

Fairfax P-TA School Unit Reorganizes

Reorganization of the Fairfax (Va.) Elementary School P.-T. A., with Joseph R. Brennan as president, was announced yesterday by the group.

FOR BEST SERVICE PLACE YOUR ADS EARLY

The steadily growing volume of classified ads in The Post, combined with the practice of many advertisers who phone late in the day, is making it difficult to devote the time and assistance to these late callers which is needed to prepare the most effective possible copy.

To assure receiving this help from your ad-taker, please try to call during the morning or early afternoon.

A RARE BARGAIN

You'll slow down to a stop when you drive by this home, the charm of its design, together with its lovely lawn and landscaping really compels attention. It is a large home consisting of spacious bedrooms, a paneled den and a dinette, as well as a lovely dining room. It is located in the exclusive University Park area, near the University of Maryland. Nine comparable homes that I have built in this area have sold for around $20,000. This is my last home available, and I will sell it to a qualified purchaser at its market value. It is financed for veterans, with a $17,150 trust; for nonvets with a $13,300 trust. No reasonable offer will be refused, so phone me, and will arrange for inspection at your convenience. AP. 0588.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

So the British Have No Sense of Humor, Eh?

There's an old, old story about the penguin at the South Pole who cables her mate: "I am with Byrd."

According to legend, this was a favorite story of a British Ambassador of years gone by—except that he never told it right.

Old-timers tell me that he used to delight in using the gag, only to blunt the point by quoting the cable as: "I am with Admiral Byrd."

One day, a friend drew the Ambassador aside and asked what was so funny about the story. The great man laughed and explained:

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Last Saturday afternoon I was watching the players at a public tennis court. It was a hot day, and players and spectators alike were glad to see a young man drive up in an ice-cream vending truck.

But a policeman drove up right behind him and ordered him to move along. It seems there is a regulation prohibiting sales by vendors within a block of a public playground.

I wonder if other District Liners feel these laws are as unfair as I do?

Leroy Krider,
527 Tuckerman st.

Dear Leroy:

Here's one guy who agrees with you.

I knew that vendors were prohibited from selling on Sundays (they "make noise, and disturb people") but this "one-block" law you mention is a new one on me.

The "Sunday" law seems to me to be rank discrimination against street vendors, and I doubt that it would stand a court test handled by an able lawyer.

It's ridiculous to ban street vending on Sunday because "the noises annoy householders." Anybody who disturbs the peace on any day of the week is liable to prosecution—so that alibi just doesn't hold water.

This is a regulation specifically designed to put street vendors out of business on Sunday, whether they're noisy or absolutely silent. It would make just as much sense to shut up movies, taverns, restaurants, stores and Griffith Stadium on this day. When the Nats stage a rally, there's more noise at the Stadium than all the street vendors in town could make.

Why single out the poor street vendors? On what legal grounds?

Bill.

P. S.: I bought some ice cream from a blind vendor on the Ellipse Sunday. Shall I give myself up as an accessory to the crime?

THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Maxine Boyd of 5405 Dix st. ne. sighs: "Week-ends are grand. The only thing wrong with them is that Sunday night and Monday morning are too close together."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Mother cat and three cute, playful 8-week-old kittens." (Georgia 3148 after 6 p. m.)

"Three charming kittens, named in honor of our favorite ballplayers—Sam Dente, Clyde Vollmer and Edwina Robinson." (Chestnut 6641.)

"Excellent female watch-dog; 2 years old, well trained." (Alexandria 4242.)

"Two beautiful, pedigreed, registered female cockers, 4 years old, want home in country." (Metropolitan 8596.)

"Three housebroken kittens." (Taylor 1396.)

"Upright piano, needs minor repairs; free for the hauling." (Hudson 9024 after 5:30 p. m.)

"Two adorable balls of kitty fur; one male, one female. Will deliver." (Oliver 7812.)

"Three lovely kittens, black—two with white mittens." (Axminster 6991 after 6 p. m.)

VACATION DAZE

Where'll I go? Canada, where it's cool? New York for shows, races and night life? Out through the West and the National Parks? Back home to Ohio? Ocean City, which won't cost as much?

By the time I decide, I'll be too worn out to enjoy the vacation.

TECHNIQUE

On afternoons that the Nats are playing, the phones in our sports department ring incessantly.

About 99 out of each 100 calls are inquiries regarding the score. The other is a business call.

One of our copy boys was answering the phones with a streamlined technique the other day.

Without the usual "hello," and without giving the caller a chance to say a word, he'd announce the baseball score. The caller would say "thanks," and that would conclude the conversation.

A second copy boy shook his head dubiously, and launched this dialog:

SECOND: I don't think I'd better use your system.

FIRST: Why not?

SECOND: It would be just my luck to try it on the wrong caller. What would I do, for example, if the guy at the other end turns out to be the big boss, and snaps: "Young man, do you realize who this is?"

FIRST: Very simple. You'd say: "Yes sir. I know who you are. But do you know who THIS is?"

SECOND: Then what?

FIRST: When he says "No," you say "That's good" —and hang up.

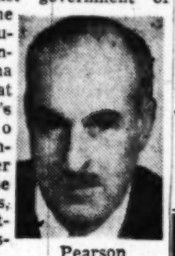
The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Chinese Reds Row With Russians

By Drew Pearson

Biggest news from the Orient has only been reported so far in the diplomatic cables. It is that the Communist government of Russia and the new Communist government of China are already at each other's throats. Mao Tse-tung, conquering leader of the Chinese Communists, has become bitterly anti-Russian.



Pearson

Here is the inside story of what happened:

Under the Big Four peace agreement, the key Manchurian city of Dairen was divided between Russia and China. Developed by the Japanese, Dairen stands at the tip-end of the Lao-Tung peninsula, also at the terminus of the South Manchurian Railroad, is one of the best seaports in North China.

But when the Nationalist Chinese moved out of their part of Dairen, the Russians promptly moved in. And now that the Communists control North and Central China, Gen. Mao Tse-tung sent word to Russia that he wanted to take over the Chinese half of Dairen.

Thereupon the Russians said no. They said it emphatically and they have refused to budge since.

As a result, Mao Tse-tung and Chinese Communist leaders are boiling mad. They have come to believe that under the much-vaunted Russian-Communist system, China may not have have as much land as she did under the old-fashioned capitalists.

Barkley's Son-in-Law

The sanctimonious set among Washington newsmen say it shouldn't be written about, merely be buzzed about at Washington dinner tables. However, one of the political misfortunes of Washington is the manner in which the Vice President's son-in-law, Max Truitt, is cashing in on Alben Barkley's fine name.

Truitt is an able, likable law partner of Ex-Attorney General Homer Cummings. Both get plenty of law practice on their own. However, since his father-in-law became Vice President of the United States, Truitt's law business has expanded so the clients almost jostle each other getting inside the door.

In addition, young Truitt is not too selective. On his list are the three chief dictators of the Latin world—Franco of Spain, Trujillo of the Dominican Republic, and indirectly, through the largest Argentine shipping company, Peron of Argentina.

In fairness to the Vice President, it should be noted that he is frequently on the opposite side of the fence from his son-in-law. When Truitt was retained by the tidelands oil lobby, Barkley fought on the Senate floor to kill the tidelands oil bill. And when Truitt registered as the paid agent of Dictator Franco and lobbied for his full recognition, Barkley was known privately to oppose such recognition.

Meanwhile, Truitt gets in on some of the most inner circle parties in Washington—thanks to the fact that his wife is official hostess for the Vice President. The White House dinner for Winston Churchill was one of the most exclusive ever thrown by the Trumans. Not even Senators Tom Connally and Arthur Vandenberg, on whom the President must depend for his bipartisan foreign policy, were invited.

But Lawyer-lobbyist Max Truitt was.

Ignoring Stars and Stripes

Latest of Max's operations has been to demand that the Maritime Commission permit Standard Oil of New Jersey to transfer six modern oil tankers to the Panamanian flag.

The Maritime Commission had refused to do this for Standard Oil, so Standard then hired the versatile Max. The commission's refusal was based on the fact that oil is getting scarce in this country and, in time of war, the Nation's entire economy will depend on having enough tankers to bring in foreign oil. If the tankers are under a foreign flag, however, the United States loses control.

The Vice President's son-in-law used to be general counsel of the Maritime Commission, later was a full-fledged commissioner.

Pension Predictions

Those interested in higher pensions and more social security benefits can figure that it's a safe prediction Congress will split 50-50 with President Truman on his plea to put 20 million more people on social security rolls.

In other words, Congress will cut the figure to 10 million, including self-employed workers (salesmen numbering almost seven million), permanent domestic servants and other smaller employe groups.

On the other hand, Truman's request for inclusion of all types of farm employes, members of the armed services and casual domestic servants will be rejected.

The pension retirement age will be kept at 65 years for men, but dropped to 60 for women.

Hottest controversy when the Ways and Means Committee starts voting behind closed doors on Truman's social security reforms will be over his request that minimum pensions for retired workers with dependents be raised from $10 a month to $25 and that maximum pensions be raised from $82.50 to $150.

Insiders believe the minimum pension will be voted, but that the new maximum pension will be closer to $100 than $150.

To help finance these benefits, the present aggregate payroll tax of 2 per cent on employer and employe will be raised to 3 per cent (that is, ½ per cent additional on both employer and employe)—effective January 1, 1950.
